Trouble Shooters Enter Steel Talks

PITTSBURGH (AP)—President Johnson ordered two special mediators to Pittsburgh Saturday to try to head off a nationwide steel strike set for Tuesday midnight.

Sen. Wayne Morse, an Oregon Democrat who has served as mediator in several big labor disputes, and Leroy Collins, undersecretary of commerce, arrived in Pittsburgh hours after the President picked them as trouble shooters.

"We are here to offer our services and see if we can be of any help. You never know in mediation, you can only try," Morse said before hurrying into an hour and three-fourths meeting with negotiators for the basic steel industry and United Steelworkers Union.

Join Top Mediator

Morse and Collins joined William E. Simkin, director of the federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, who has been here for more than a week, trying for the second time in four months to avert a nationwide strike.

Simkin said the joint session, only one of the day, was exploratory.

Morse, Collins and Simkin met into the night with the industry and the union in separate sessions then scheduled separate meetings for today.

There was no comment from any of the three to indicate how things were going.

Dispatch of Morse and Collins followed Simkin's gloomy appraisal of the talks Friday night, and what highly authoritative union sources said was Simkin's decreasing effectiveness.

Simkin said, "The situation is not promising."

Reports of growing union dissatisfaction with mediation efforts gave rise to speculation that Simkin had called for assistance. This could not be confirmed.

Collins, a lawyer who has no experience in mediating a major labor dispute, was asked his qualifications by newsmen.

"It's nice to have the confidence of the President," Collins said.

If no agreement is reached, 450,000 workers in basic steel can strike next Tuesday midnight, halting 80 per cent of the nation's steel production.

This was the second time Johnson has taken a direct hand in the steel talks. He talked by phone with the top bargainers for the United Steelworkers Union and the industry Thursday and told them he expected their cooperation.

Johnson directed Morse and Collins to "isolate the issues between the parties and to see what steps can be taken to bring them together."

Recovering

Recovering from a heart attack suffered Aug. 5, Roy C. Cash of 108 Fairview Dr., West Monroe, member of the Ouachita Parish School Board, says he's home after 18 days at Glenwood Hospital and would like his friends to drop in for a chat. Cash said he's getting along fine, but his physician ordered bed rest for a while yet.

Viet Troops Battle Cong In Key Delta

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — South Vietnamese troops fought sharp battles in the swamps and rice paddies of the Red infested Mekong River delta Saturday with mixed results. U.S. Navy jets struck Viet Cong positions within earshot of Saigon in a follow up of an attack by U.S. B52 strategic bombers.

A South Vietnamese search and destroy operation ended at 4 a.m. Saturday 100 miles southwest of Saigon after fighting had blazed through 10-inch rice grass, trees and swamps for 20 hours.

50 Cong Killed

The spokesman said one of the U.S. helicopters ferrying government troops into the action was shot down by Viet Cong groundfire.

Two of the craft's four-man American crew were reported wounded but rescued.

A newsman at the scene of the fighting about 20 miles west of My Tho said he saw two U.S. helicopters shot down. There was no comment on this in Saigon.

About 40 miles southwest of this battle, Viet Cong forces inflicted heavy casualties on a government unit in an attack on an outpost near Ca Mau. The guerrillas shelled the outpost, then withdrew when government artillery was called in from Ca Mau.

Closer to Saigon, B52s of the U.S. Strategic Air Command flew in from overseas to bomb Viet Cong concentrations about 30 miles northeast of Saigon late Friday night.

A U.S. spokesman gave no indication of the effectiveness of the raid, the 12th by the eight-engine bombers in the war. The spokesman did not say how many bombers took part or where they came from. Past attacks have originated from Guam.

In a later attack, eleven U.S. Navy carrier-based jets pounded rice paddies and pineapple fields 15 miles southwest of Saigon. A U.S. spokesman said there had been reports that about 400 Viet Cong guerrillas had been in the area. No results of the raid were announced.

Military authorities announced that U.S. and South Vietnamese planes flew 300 sorties against suspected Viet Cong positions in South Viet Nam in the 24-hour period that ended at 6 a.m. Saturday.

In the air war against Communist North Viet Nam, U.S. Air Force and Navy planes, some flying in heavy rain, attacked bridges, military barracks and warehouses.

U.S. spokesmen said all planes returned safely.

Greek Premier Fails To Gain Crucial Votes

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — The Greek Parliament early today voted no confidence in Premier Elias Tsirimokos' government, bringing its downfall and prolonging the six-week-old political crisis.

Tsirimokos, 58, had expressed optimism over his chances of getting a majority throughout five nights of debate, but Parliament rejected him in post-midnight voting.

The vote in the 300-seat chamber was 159 to 135. Some deputies were absent.

Papandreou, 77, Center Union party leader who has opposed two palace candidates and sought to return as premier, boycotted the week-long debate.

But he walked into Parliament dramatically when his name was called on the roll in the 300-seat chamber, just as he did almost a month ago for the vote that defeated George Athanasiadis Novas.

Center Union deputies applauded the politician. The 99 National Radical Union deputies booed. Papandreou raised his right hand, shouted "no!" when asked if he favored Tsirimokos, and walked out again.

Just before the vote, Tsirimokos made a last-minute appeal for support. He pointed out that his 36-man bloc of Center Union dissidents now represented the third largest force in Parliament. He said the Center Union, once claiming 170 members, would be broken up even further if he should be defeated.

Orbit Cut Off Gemini Flight As Betsy Roughs Up Seas

MEMBERS OF THE team of airmen and divers who this morning will recover Gemini 5 Astronauts Gordon Cooper and Pete Conrad from the Atlantic after splashdown, drill aboard the carrier USS Lake Champlain Saturday. ## Controllers Move Splashdown Area

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) —Rough weather in the Atlantic caused space officials Saturday to cut the flight of the Gemini 5 by an orbit. Splashdown was reset to 7:55 a.m. EST, 600 miles east of Jacksonville, Fla.

But their noses were stopped up from breathing oxygen steadily, and both were weary enough that doctors considered giving them pep pills for the critical, fiery re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

The recovery net consists of the aircraft carrier USS Lake Champlain, three destroyers and scores of airplanes and helicopters — a force of more than 3,000 men.

Destroyer Added

The destroyers are the USS DuPont, which will take up a station 100 miles uprange from the Lake Champlain, the USS Waldron, which will be stationed 50 miles uprange from the Lake Champlain, and the USS Weeks operating close to the Lake Champlain.

The Waldron wasn't in the original recovery team, but turned out to be in the new splashdown area on another mission and was assigned to join the operation.

Flight director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. told a news conference that two problems in the fuel cells — first with oxygen and later with too much water — were the most bothersome problems of the flight.

Asked if this has been a really "cranky" mission, Kraft said:

"It's the first time we've tried to do one of this length, so I don't know whether it's cranky or not cranky. Maybe the next time we fly one of this length we'll find out. I think we're happy with its performance."

In all the manned space flights, this is the first to be brought in early.

Cooper didn't get much sleep Friday night, and Conrad's nose in particular was plugged up. Flight surgeon Charles A. Berry told the astronauts consideration should be given to taking a drug for the nose and a dexedrine preparation for weariness.

Saturday the astronauts practiced sighting early objects at White Sands, N.M., and at Laredo, Tex. At Laredo a sort of gigantic eye chart has been laid out on the ground, and Conrad said he could make out some of the markings.

Possibly the biggest news aboard the Gemini 5 Saturday was that the tumbling had ended.

Because of power troubles, the ship has been floating free in space. Normally the craft would remain relatively stable in this condition, but the venting of hydrogen gas started the ship revolving, or tumbling, as space officials describe it.

This could build up to a troublesome rate — at one point Cooper reported the Gemini 5 was revolving every 30 seconds. But the hydrogen stopped venting early Saturday and now the ship turns over only once every 24 minutes.

Saturday was a big one for the astronauts' families. Jane Conrad and Trudy Cooper and her two teen-age daughters were up early to see the Gemini 5 shoot past at 5:19 a.m., Houston time.

They were among the scores around the space center who managed to glimpse the craft as it streaked by at 17,500 miles an hour.

Cooper and Conrad were told that their wives had seen them just after they had been given the go-ahead for their eighth and final day.

Capsule communicator David R. Scott passed on the orders:

Conrad: "Roger. We're pressing on."

The capsule communicator James A. McDivitt took over to say: "Good show."

Cooper: "As Pete would say, over the ocean, over the blue, from Gemini 5, we thank you."

McDivitt: "Great. Now that we're discussing poems here, I was talking to both Jane and Trudy this morning and they both went outside and saw you. And Jane sent up a little poem here, Pete. It goes:

" 'Twinkle, twinkle, Gemini 5,
" 'How I want you back alive.
" 'Up above the world so high,
" 'I saw you today as you went by.
" 'Twinkle, twinkle, Gemini 5,
" 'Tomorrow you take your great big dive,
" 'Zinging toward the ocean blue,
" 'And I send my love to you.' "

Conrad: "Tell her I think it's real great."

An orbit later McDivitt said: "Gordo, Houston. As I said, on your last pass, Trudy saw you up there without too much trouble at all. She sends her best wishes and she says that she had the girls up quite early this morning and they all went out and saw you and they certainly enjoyed it."

Cooper: "Very good, thank you."

Betsy's Wind Gains Speed; Warning Out

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Tropical storm Betsy brushed the Leeward Islands with gales Saturday night, picked up speed and forced an early end to the flight of Gemini 5.

Residents of the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and the northern Leeward Islands were warned to take precautions against gusty winds and moderate flooding.

Although still a weak storm, her forward speed of 21 miles an hour will push her over the Virgin Islands at daybreak and close to the Grand Turk area where splashdown of Gemini 5 had originally been planned, the Weather Bureau said.

As Betsy whipped northwestward along the eastern edge of the Caribbean Sea, her strongest winds of 45 m.p.h. swept the Leeward Islands. St. Maarten reported a gust of 35 m.p.h., but litlte damage was expected.

Gale warnings were flying at Dominica, Guadaloupe and the rest of the northern Leeward Islands and were ordered raised at Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands at midnight.

The Weather Bureau predicted Betsy would be centered about 200 miles east of Grand Turk island at 5 p.m. today.

Showers May Fall In Area

A few afternoon thundershowers have been forecast for today and Monday in the Monroe-West Monroe area, with no temperature changes in sight.

High mercury readings today should be 84 to 88 and the low reading should be 68 to 72, following Saturday's high and low of 87 and 74.

Late Saturday morning and noon showers brought .11 of an inch of rainfall in the Twin Cities area, according to FAA at Selman Field. This brings the month's total thus far to 2.10 inches, which is still 1.37 inches under the average August precipitation amount.

Variable mostly northerly winds today will be eight to 16 miles per hour.

Recovery Force Shifts Safety Net

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) —A huge recovery force shifted its position Saturday to form a giant safety net 276 miles southwest of Bermuda to catch the returning Gemini 5 space twins.

Earlier the group was near Grand Turk Island but tropical storm Besty, picking up speed, forced it to steam 420 miles farther north where it will seek to recover astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr.

Flight director Christopher C. Kraft Jr. kept a wary eye on Betsy, but flight controller Eugene Krantz made the decision to shorten the mission from 121 to 120 orbits.

Most On Champlain

Weather Bureau forecasters predicted the storm would be about 400 miles southeast of Puerto Rico this morning at splashdown time.

The 2,000 men aboard the Lake Champlain make up the bulk of the force. About 450 sailors are on the Weeks. Others are para-rescuers, airplane and helicopter pilots, and frogmen.

Both astronauts hoped to stay in the Gemini 5 capsule until it is lifted aboard ship.

"We would prefer ending the flight by stepping out on the deck of the carrier," Cooper said recently.

Helicopters were poised to fly as soon as the astronauts fired the braking retro-rockets near Hawaii, and frogmen were prepared to attach a rubber collar to ensure the spacecraft would float until hoisted aboard the ship.

Cooper set his Mercury Faith 7 capsule down only a few miles from the recovery carrier in the Pacific May 16, 1963. He hoped to improve on that this time.

"I hope we can set Gemini 5 down on the deck of the Lake Champlain," Cooper said before launch.

Thompson estimated the cost for maintaining the recovery force at about $1.5 million — the cost for actual time spent supporting the eight-day flight.

Fighters Douse California Fire

LA CRESCENTA, Calif. (AP) — Water-dropping helicopters and 500 men contained a brush fire Saturday that charred 500 rugged mountain acres north of this Los Angeles suburb.

With a line of bare earth hacked around the perimeter and the flames no longer spreading, complete control was hoped for Saturday night, officials said.

Johnson Signs Bill Financing Road Program

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson signed into law Saturday the largest single-year authorization for the interstate highway system — $3 billion — but said it is only part of what is needed.

The $3 billion will go to the states to finance 90 per cent of the cost of their work on the 41,000-mile superhighway system.

This is in addition to a $1-billion apportionment he signed Aug. 13 for federal aid to primary and secondary highway systems and their urban extensions. The federal government pays 50 per cent of the cost of these projects.

Bus-Truck Collision Kills 11

VINTON, La. (AP) — A Houston-to-New Orleans bus collided with a truck carrying heavy lumber near this southwest Louisiana town Friday night, killing 11 persons and injuring 30.

The front 10 feet of the Greyhound bus were sheared off. The impact catapulted giant timbers from the truck through the passenger sections of the bus.

"It was just awful," said W. M. Pierce, a Houston truck driver who reached the scene moments later.

"When I arrived I saw three passengers walking around," Pierce said. "They were covered with blood. Another passenger was hanging out of a window and apparently dead."

A deputy sheriff said some of the bodies were so mangled that identification could only be made through fingerprints.

State police said their checks showed there were 40 persons aboard the bus, only three of whom escaped injury.

The truck driver, Henry C. Gregory, 35, of Houston, was one of those killed.

The bus driver, Jeff Blankenship of Houston, was seriously injured. He spent several hours in surgery at a Beaumont, Tex., hospital. First reports that he was dead later proved erroneous.

The injured passengers were taken to hospitals in Lake Charles and Sulphur, La., and Orange, Tex. The three most seriously injured appeared to be Mott Musgrove, 13, of New Orleans, whose mother was among the dead; Ernest Campbell, 45, Port Arthur, Tex.; and Juanita Vyes, 35, Birmingham, Ala.

The two vehicles met in the center of the highway, state police said.

"I was sitting about the middle of the bus, and it seemed like all of a sudden the bus was trying to stop," recalled Willard Coleman, 47, Lake Charles. "Somebody hollered, 'Watch out.' From that point, I don't remember too much of anything."

Coleman could not recall how he got out of the bus. He suffered leg and shoulder injuries.

Charles Nowman, 25, of Houston, was three seats behind Coleman.

"I was going to sleep when I felt the bus trying to dodge," he said. "I thought it was going off the highway. Then it crashed.

"All the lights went out but no one screamed. I couldn't see anything around me. I found myself on the floor."

Bowman climbed out a window.

Danny Daniels, 18, of Pascagoula, Miss., was thrown from the bus. He had to be restrained by police from re-entering the wreckage in search of his brother Terry, 12. Terry's body later was recovered.

Six other winners were among the injured.

Parish Teachers Workshop Is Set

A workshop for teachers of the Ouachita Parish Schools will be held Monday and Tuesday at the First Baptist Church in West Monroe.

This event, which kicks off the 1965-66 school year, will be followed Wednesday by meetings of teachers and principals in their individual schools.

Registration for students will be held Thursday and Friday from 8 a.m. until 12 noon.

There will be no school on Labor Day and sessions from Tuesday, Sept. 7 through Friday, Sept. 10 will be conducted only for one-half day.

Professional Day for the teachers will be Sat., Sept. 11.

The pre-school workshop will begin with an 8 a.m. General Assembly Monday, with P. B. Mangum, assistant superintendent of parish schools, presiding.

Don Spargo, package development supervisor at Olin Mathieson Corp., will address the group.

Other highlights of the session will be music by the Ouachita Junior High School Band, under the direction of Phares Corder; introduction of consultants by Mangum; and announcements by J. M. Waldrop, parish elementary supervisor.

Dr. Charles E. Bish, associated with the academically talented student project of the National Education Association, will address the second general session of the workshop at 2 p.m. Tuesday. Subject of his talk will be "The Intellectually Gifted Child."

Milton C. Hall, superintendent of Ouachita Parish Schools, will also address the session. Special music will be presented by the workshop chorus, directed by Alfred E. Tellinghuisen of Louisiana Tech, and the workshop band, conducted by James T. Matthews, director of the University Band of Houston.

Consultants will direct special workshop sessions in various fields of education from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. on Monday and from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m. on Tuesday.

Consultants for the workshop are:

Dr. Charles E. Bish, director Academically Talented Student Project, National Education Assn.; Miss Joan Blondin, assistant specialist in Nutrition, Agriculture Extension Department; John Conner, L. W. Singer Company; Mrs. C. F. Crawley, teacher of Latin, Neville High School; Dr. Lena Y. deGrummond, professor of Library Science, University of Southern Mississippi; Dr. Marie Dunn, Northwestern State College; Walter L. # Campaign Leaders Named

Campaign leaders for the Northeast State Concerts Association membership drive, slated for Sept. 18 through Oct. 2., were announced Saturday by David Bingham.

Mrs. Charles Petrus has been named chairman of the campaign. Other leaders are Mrs. Davis Bingham, chairman advisor; Mrs. Henry H. Davis Jr., chairman of group captains; and Mrs. Kent Anderson, publicity.

Sales representatives throughout the Northeast Louisiana area have been organized by 12 group captains. The captains are Mrs. James Dennis, Mrs. W. H. Anders, Mrs. H. H. Davis Jr., Mrs. John Jussel, Mrs. Noland Harvey, Mrs. M. L. Bank, Mrs. N. W. Hickman, Mrs. Earl Graser, Mrs. Norman Coon Sr., Mrs. Eloy Fominaya, Mrs. Allan Kutner, and Mrs. B. F. Anderson.

Six top attractions for the 1965-66 season include Music of Richard Rogers, featuring Henri Rene and his orchestra and starring Elaine Malbin and George Gaynes, on Oct. 25; The Fred Waring Show on Dec. 13; Carlos Montoya on Jan. 6; San Antonio Symphony Orchestra on Feb. 3; Les Feux-Follets on Feb. 10 and Jose Iturbi on April 25.

All concerts begin at 8:15 p.m. at Neville Auditorium.

Last year's drive netted the association more than a 100 cent increase in membership. A complete sell-out in anticipated for this year's drive.

Membership is by season ticket only. Prices range from $11 per person reserved, $8 general admission, and $4 student.

Egyptian Force Begins Leaving Area Of Yemen

SANA YEMEN (AP) — An Egyptian military spokesman said Saturday Egyptian troops massed near the Saudi Arabian borders have started withdrawing to areas in central Yemen.

The move was made after President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic and King Faisal of Saudi Arabia signed an agreement last Tuesday to end the three-year-old civil war.

Scoutmaster Larce Holder Is Honored

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Farmerville scoutmaster Larce M. Holder Jr. has been selected by the Northwest District Committee as "Scoutmaster of the Year 1964-1965."

In order to be selected for the honor, the troop has to have 100 per cent in Boy's Life, have qualified for the National Camping Award, registered with a five per cent gain in boys, registered on time, attend a long-term camp (summer camp), and be active in both district and council activities.

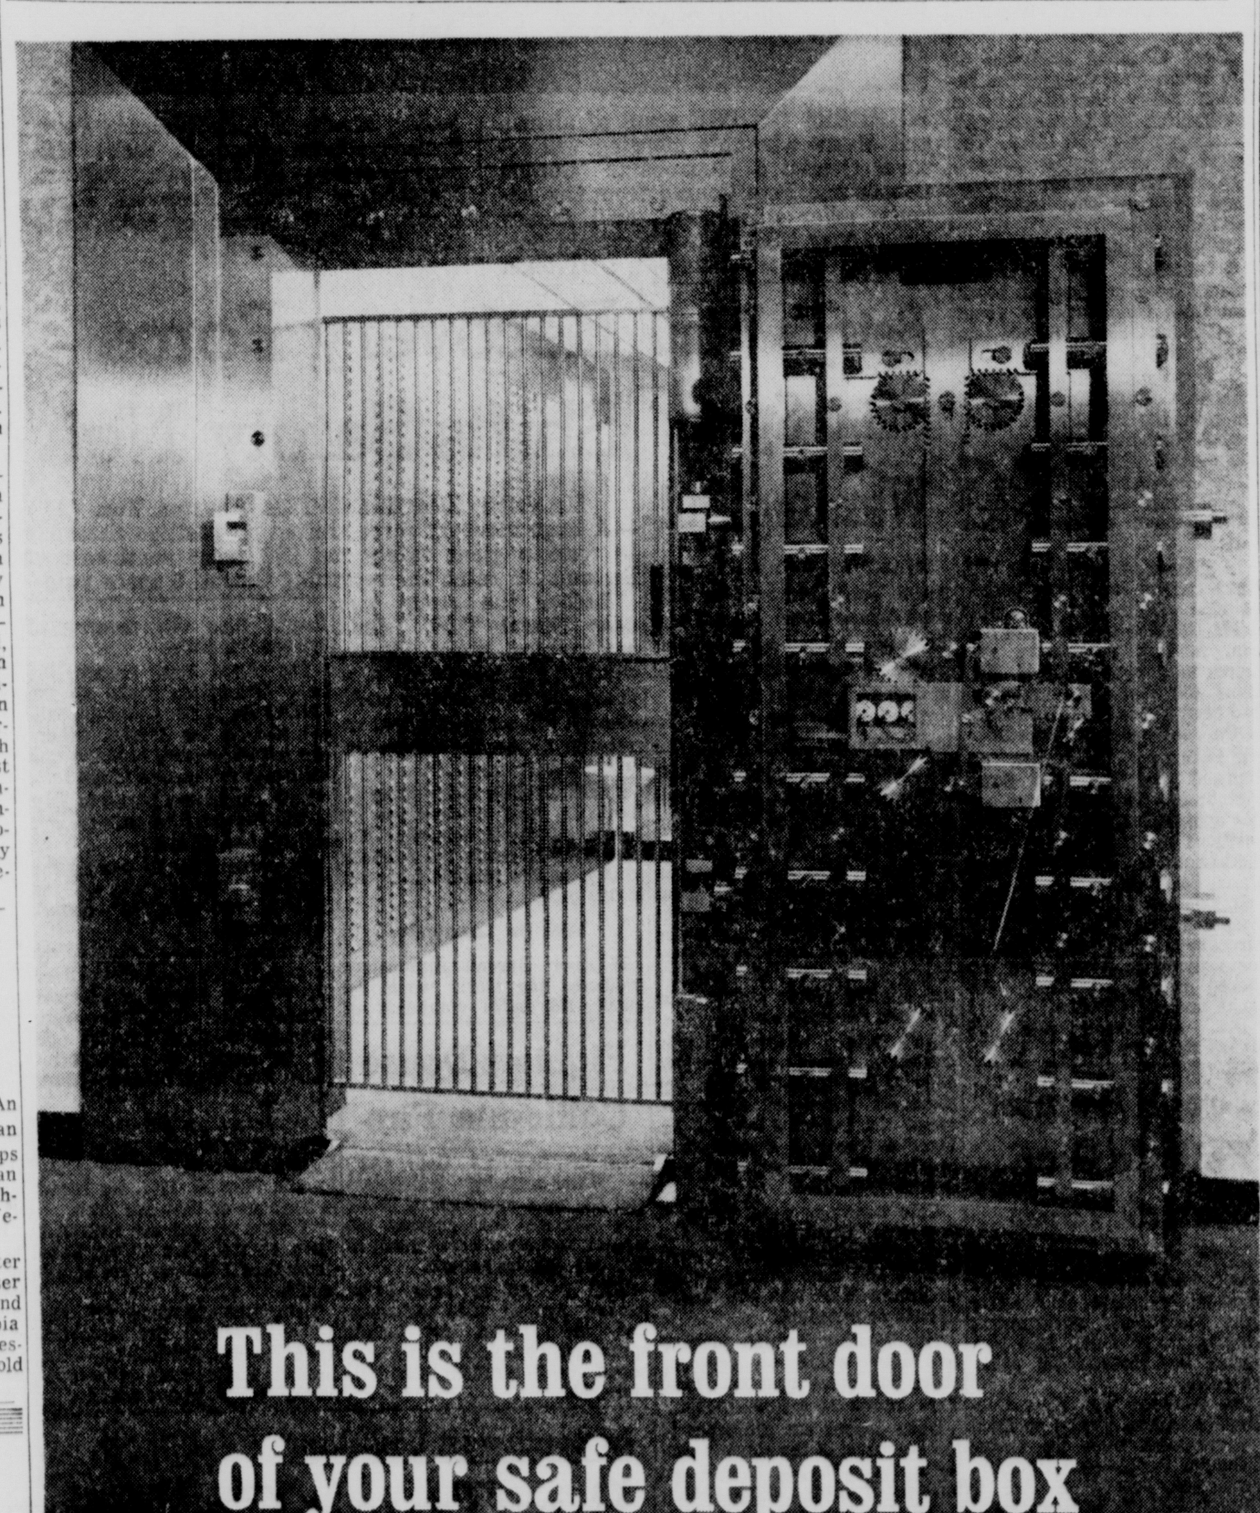

In addition to complying with all of these requirements, the Farmerville Troop has had two boys attend and serve on the Scout Service Corp.; one boy received National Recognition in the Nathan Hale contest; and four boys attend the National Jamboree at Valley Forge, Penn.

Officers Scatter Swedish Protest

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Several persons were arrested and a policeman hurt during an anti-American demonstration outside the U.S. embassy Saturday.

About 100 demonstrators, mostly youths, marched on the embassy carrying placards with anti-American slogans such as "America commits murder in Viet Nam."

As the demonstrators neared the huge glass and concrete embassy building the police pounced on a placard bearer whose slogan was "Johnson, how many children did you murder today?"

House Bloc Will Challenge LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — A small bloc on the House Armed Services Committee is rebelling against an administration proposal for solving differences over President Johnson's veto of the $1.78-billion military construction bill.

They feel an administration's compromise proposal to give Congress a 30-day notification of planned military base cutbacks is too weak.

And some of them feel the issue should be fought out on the House floor. However they acknowledge they would face almost certain defeat with the White House having already telephoned members to muster support against any drive to override Johnson's veto.

"The issue is important enough to take a licking for," said Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., usually an administration supporter. "If the President can close one base without Congress' approval, he can close all bases without Congress' approval."

Johnson vetoed the construction authorization because of a provision that would have required the secretary of defense to report to Congress — in the period between Jan. 1 and April 30 — any plans to cut back installations and to delay the plans for 120 days. This was intended to give Congress a chance to block a shutdown with legislation.

Johnson contended that this was congressional encroachment on executive authority and the time involved was too prolonged. But he said a "reasonable reporting procedure" would be acceptable.

Since then the administration has suggested to the committee a proposal that would give Congress 30 days' notification before any base closures.

The proposal reportedly had been accepted by most of the ranking members of the committee, including Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., who has led the group this year in asserting congressional authority in military matters.

Rep. William H. Bates of Massachusetts, the senior Republican on the committee, argues for the provision this way: "It will put us in a true partnership with the Pentagon on this, and that's all we want."

But Rep. Alton Lennon, D-N.C., who is among those who wants something stronger, asks "If a 30-day reporting period is constitutional, why isn't a 120-day period?"

Young American Freed By Police In East Berlin

BERLIN (UPI) — Communist East Germany Saturday released unharmed a young Tulsa, Okla., tourist and a British student who had been suspected of helping refugees escape to the West.

The Communists said the American, Benjamin Franklin Franklin Whitehill III, 21, and the Briton, John Thwaites, 19, were freed from custody because they were unaware of East Berlin conditions and were "taken in" by West Berlin underground organizations because of their inexperience.

Whitehill and Thwaites told Western allied officials they were innocent of the Communist charges. They said they had not helped any refugees escape.

Birth Control Finds Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Roman Catholic archbishop Saturday sharply opposed any government involvement in birth control programs.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, archbishop of Washington, indicating he was presenting the official position of the church, attacked what he said are attempts to promote birth control through the administration's antipoverty program.

He opposed also a bill pending in the Senate that would provide federal funds for the dissemination of information and materials dealing with birth prevention.

"In a situation like this, involving serious moral issues in which people strive to form a right conscience, the role of government is clear — strict neutrality," he said in a sermon prepared for delivery today.

Archbishop O'Boyle said he felt compelled to speak out on the controversial subject of birth control because the position of the church has become clouded.

A number of Catholic "'experts," he said, have ignored a warning by Pope Paul VI to declare a moratorium on speculation about the church's policy until a commission he appointed to make a broad study has reported. He apparently referred to Catholic laymen and some priests who have spoken in favor of birth control as a means to attack economic ills such as poverty.

"Though they doubtless acted in good faith, the result has been to raise false hopes in some quarters, and to spread discouragement in others," the archbishop said.

"Moreover, committees of the Congress and other public bodies, hearing no official expression to the contrary, have assumed that 'silence gives consent' and have initiated programs intruding on the private lives of citizens — programs in which, to put it bluntly, the government has no business."

Archbishop O'Boyle said the attempt to deal with the problem of overpopulation by limiting births is "a negative approach, unworthy of our American tradition."

A positive solution, he said, would be to make better use of the still vast wide open spaces in the United States through decentralization of industry and the consequent spreading of the population. He also suggested programs to raise the incomes of the poor so they could afford to move out of crowded slums.

The archbishop said the administration's proposed legislation dealing with birth control and its dissemination of birth control information through the antipoverty program are "a clear invasion of the sacred right of privacy which the Supreme Court holds to be inviolate."

It is proper, even desirable, he said, for the government to sponsor research into the subject of human reproduction. "However," he added, "the moment that government presumes to 'give advice' in this delicate area, it opens the door to influencing the free decision of its citizens."

The archbishop told Catholics they are "obliged in conscience to oppose any regulation which would elevate to the status of public policy a philosophy or practice which violates rights of privacy or liberty of consicence."

Treasury Chief Goes To Europe For Money Talk

Advance indications were that he would get, at best, a lukewarm reception in some of the seven countries on his itinerary.

Fowler has scheduled talks with top financial officials in Paris, Rome, Frankfurt, Bonn, Stockholm, Brussels, The Hague, Amsterdam and London.

Accompanying him was Undersecretary of State George W. Ball whose presence underlines the close connection between world money and world politicies.

Their swing follows Fowler's July 10 speech in which he announced the United States was ready to take part in an international monetary conference to consider what might be done to achieve "substantial improvements" in the international monetary system.

That system, established at the Bretton Woods conference in 1944, is based on gold, dollars and credits supplied by the International Monetary Fund (IMF).

While emphasizing that the U.S. government was not wedded to any set procedure for convening a conference or to any rigid timetable, Fowler said Washington was determined to move ahead "carefully, deliberately—but without delay."

This is because of the growing U.S. conviction that once the United States ends its balance of payments deficit and stops sending dollars abroad, the world will need some new means of creating international "liquidity" — the stuff that countries use to tide themselves over periods when they are earning less overseas than they are spending.

It is generally agreed that a shortage of world liquidity would seriously hamper world trade and development. In a now - famous speech last June, Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McChesney Martin Jr., cited current weaknesses in the international monetary system as one of the most "disquieting similarities" between the current era and the years that preceded the world economic collapse and the great depression of the 1930's.

Indians Fighting In Pakistan Area

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Indian troops have attacked across the Kashmir cease-fire line and were reported fighting deep ni Pakistani territory Saturday to trap a large-scale guerrilla force.

An official Indian spokesman said the attack, the third large-scale Indian assault across the United Nations cease-fire line in 13 days, was driving south from Uri and attempting to link up with Indian units near Punch.

This would turn a large Pakistani salient on the west-central front into a trap for what the spokesman said was a "sizable number" of "Pakistani infiltrators" massing for an assault into Indian-held Kashmir to join the 23-day-old guerrilla war there.

Unofficial reports said more than 1,000 guerrillas were in the pocket and that they, as well as regular Pakistani army units were putting up resistance.

"We have encountered resistance but our army is quite satisfied with its progress," the spokesman said.

The Indian government has clamped tight secrecy on the whole Kashmir affair but it appears this attack is taking Indian troops deeper into Pakistani territory than ever before.

One report said a forward Indian unit was more than 10 miles inside Pakistan.

In attacks Tuesday and Wednesday, the Indian army crossed the cease-fire line near Tithwal in the northwest sector, and penetrated about 1½ miles toward the Pakistani state capital of Muzaffarabad.

An attack Aug. 15 in the northern Kargul sector took Indian units a shorter distance across the cease-fire line to seize three Pakistani mounton top positions.

Indians claim all the attacks were designed only to seal off infiltration routes of guerrillas to enter Indian territory.

Foreign Secretary C.S. Jha put it this way:

"We are merely taking measures of self-defense and this advance happens to be across the cease-fire line."

JHA said the situation was "very serious" and made it clear the Indian government is awaiting a response from President Mohammed Ayub Khan of Pakistan.

"The Pakistani attitude is a mystery," he said. "We cannot fathom it. Evidently it is not a rational mind in operation."

An Indian newsman told JHA some foreign diplomats said that after skirmishing over Kashmir for years, India and Pakistan were now "on the verge of war."

"That is not too much of an exaggeration," the foreign secretary replied.

He added, however, India has not contemplated mobilizing all its forces as it did during the April-May confrontation with Pakistan in the Rann of Kutch territorial dispute.

SAFETY WEEKS SET

AUSTIN (UPI)— Gov. John Connally has proclaimed the week of Aug. 29-Sept. 6 as Labor Safety Week in Texas, and the week of Sept. 8-15 as Child Safety Week.

MISS MURRAY BURFFORD

Theatre School For Area Young People Slated

A program of dramatic training called the Theatre School will be offered this fall to young people of the area, according to Mrs. O. A. Easterling Jr., president of the Little Theatre of Monroe.

Patterned after the highly successful children's program of the Midland, Texas, Community Theatre, the Theatre School will consist of instruction courses at Strauss Playhouse for students from the first grade through high school. Classes will meet once a week by age groups with enrollment limited to twenty per class.

The junior division, running through the fifth grade, will stress creative dramatics to encourage the child's self-expression, stimulate imaginative thinking and develop poise and confidence. Older students will work in the fields of acting, voice, diction, set design, stagecraft, lighting and make-up. Numerous one-act plays and several full-length productions will provide acting and backstage experience for all in the senior division.

Director of the Theatre School will be Murray Burfford of West Monroe. Miss Burfford is a graduate of NLSC and has done graduate work toward a master's degree in theatre at Southern Mississippi where she was a member of the USM Summer Stock Company of 1964. George Black, executive director of the Little Theatre of Monroe, will also instruct in various phases of theatre.

The class schedule for the Theatre School will be:

Grades 1-2 Monday or Tuesday, 3:30 — 4:30 p.m.; Grades 3-5 Wednesday or Thursday, 3:30 — 4:30 p.m.; Grades 6-8 Saturday, 9 — 10 a.m.; Grades 9-12 Saturday, 10 — 11:30 a.m.

Registration will be held from Sept. 1 to 10 and classes will run from Sept. 13 through June 11, 1966.

A brochure concerning the Theatre School has been mailed to Little Theatre members. To request a copy or secure further information, parents are invited to call Miss Burfford or George Black at Strauss Playhouse, 323-1235, starting Sept. 1.

Application may also be made to members of the Theatre School committee consisting of Mrs. Robert L. Curry, III, chairman, 325-8442, Mrs. D. C. Bernhardt, 323-1167, Mrs. Tex R. Kilpatrick, 325-2218 or Mrs. Herbert C. Wilson, 322-8467.

Cooperative Dirksen Balks At Union Law

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., who has helped the administration pass some of its major bills, said Saturday he is going to the mat with President Johnson on the union shop issue.

Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, said in an interview that Republicans will put up "a spirited and sustained fight" to prevent passage of a measure repealing Taft-Hartley Act provisions permitting states to prohibit union shop contracts.

"This is not a labor issue so far as I am concerned," Dirksen said. "This is a pre-emptive issue. If the federal government pre-empts the power of the states to act in this field, the states will never regain their right to deal with union matters."

Dirksen gave the administration vital help in obtaining Senate passage of the Negro voting rights measure. He helped engineer a compromise last week under which the House-passed bill to end the quota system on immigration is likely to get Senate approval. He also has given strong support to Johnson's course in Viet Nam.

But of the House-passed union shop bill, Dirksen said:

"I told him there is going to be a fight — a spirited and sustained fight — to prevent the passage of this bill."

Asked how Johnson reacted, Dirksen replied:

"He said he had a commitment. I told him 'So have we'."

Dirksen indicated that Republicans will be ready with a series of amendments. He declined to say how many of them will be willing to participate in the extended debate they are planning.

Advisors Tell Steel Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's closest counsellors are saying there ought to be a steel wage settlement based on 3.2 per cent increase, with no accompanying boost in the price of steel.

These advisers are talking in these terms:

—The Steel Workers Union should be persuaded to accept an offer at or near the administration's wage guideposts, which would permit a 3.2 per cent boost.

—The steel companies should be persuaded to up their offer to the 3.2 level—and, as one of them puts it, "We shouldn't have to buy them off with a price increase to do it."

While this type of talk is going on among presidential consultants, the word unquestionably is getting through to Johnson, who reportedly is spending more time on the steel situation than on any single domestic issue at the moment.

And doubtless it also is getting to management and labor negotiators.

The industry figures its latest offer as an increase of 3 per cent but the union says it would amount to only 2.3 per cent. The union estimates its latest demand would raise costs 4 per cent.

The President's concern was underscored Saturday when it was announced from the weekend White House at Johnson City, Tex., that Johnson is sending two special mediators to Pittsburgh to seek a settlement before the Tuesday midnight strike deadline.

Directed to go immediately to the Steel City were Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and Undersecretary of Commerce LeRoy Collins.

Before becoming a senator, Morse was a well-known mediator of labor disputes.

Collins, a former governor of Florida, had considerable experience in mediating civil rights matters when he was head of the Community Relations Office.

As the advisers see it, there is no good economic reason why the government, in order to get the steel firms to come forward with an offer of a 3.2 wage hike, must give in and say a price boost would be all right.

Under the price guideposts, they say no price increases are warranted. They take the position that when any reasonable base period is considered, steel prices have gone up relative to steel costs.

In support of that position, they offer sets of figures such as these:

—Using the years 1957 to 1959 as a base period of 100, labor costs per unit of steel output in the first half of 1965 were 97.9, prices of steelpmaking materials were 95.6, and steel prices in July were 103.4.

—Taking 1961 as 100, the corresponding figures on labor costs, materials and prices were 88.3, 98.2 and 101.7.

—Using the first half of 1964 as 100, the figures were 95.6, 104 and 100.4.

Another point Johnson advisers are making is that profits are way up compared with any recent base period: about 50 per cent from 1957-59, nearly 100 per cent from 1961 and 36 per cent from the first half of last year.

Still another point the counsellors raise is that from a purely economic standpoint, the country would gain if a steel wage boost were below 3.2 per cent. But from the practical standpoint, they say keeping a pay increase under 3.2 per cent probably is unrealistic.

Hence the contention that the companies should be persuaded to raise their offer to that percentage.

Carpenter To Stay 30 Days Underwater

LA JOLLA ,Calif. (AP) — Astronaut M. Scott Carpenter and three other divers plunged into the Pacific Saturday to start a 45-day underwater experiment Carpenter said could be "more damaging than space flight."

Before beginning the 205-foot dive to Sealab 2 on the ocean floor 1,000 yards off this Southern California resort, Carpenter told newsmen, "The excessive pressure at which we will live is a little more rigorous than space flight."

Asked what he meant by rigorous, Carpenter said:

"More damaging."

Carpenter will try to stay 30 days in the 12-by-58 foot steel cyclinder as part of a Navy experiment to see how long men can function at extreme depths.

A Navy spokesman said 30 days would be a record at such depth. Four men spent 11 days at a depth of 192 feet last year in Sealab 1 off Bermuda. Seven Frenchmen who spent 30 days living under water in the summer of 1963 were at a depth of 30 feet, the spokesman said.

The nine others of Carpenter's team will be relieved at the end of 15 days. In all, three teams will man the underwater base in rotation over the next 45 days.

Carpenter's planned talk by radiotelephone with fellow astronaut L. Gordon Cooper Jr. in the orbiting Gemini 5 spacecraft was delayed to 9:45 p.m.

Carpenter entered the water at 1:43 p.m. with Navy divers Berry L. Cannon of Panama City, Fla.; Cyril J. Tuckfield of Panama City, and Wilbur H. Eaton of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

Carpenter reported some water had leaked into Sealab 2 around a port but said "this is a condition we can live with for a while."

There was little danger that a great amount of water would seep in. Sealab 2 is pressurized at slightly more than ocean pressure at that depth — 100 pounds per square inch, or about six times the pressure at sea level.

This is the excessive pressure Carpenter called damaging. He did not elaborate, but Navy officials said such extreme pressure forces atmospheric gases deep into human tissues. This can cause the crippling disease known as "the bends" unless divers take great care in decompressing slowly after they surface.

Before entering the water, Carpenter, a Navy commander and a veteran diver, said "I don't think it will be very hard to stay down 15 to 30 days. You can make this sort of thing as safe as you want to."

Asked if he were looking forward to the peace and quiet of the ocean deeps, he said, "well, I'm looking forward to getting away from you fellows for a while."

Mrs. Cooper Pens Appropriate Verses

SEABROOK, Tex. (UPI)— Jane Conrad proved today she has a sense of humor and a knack for poetry to match that of her orbiting husband. astronaut Charles (PETE) Conrad, and his Gemini 5 spacecraft teammate, L. Gordon Cooper.

The wives of both astronauts got up at dawn to catch a few minutes' glimpse of the spacecraft, tiny as a star in the morning glow, passing over the Houston area.

Mrs. Conrad had capsule communicator James McDivitt read her poem to the astronauts today in their spaceship:

"Twinkle, twinkle, Gemini 5
How I want you back alive;
Up above the world so high,
I saw you today as you went by.
Twinkle, twinkle, Gemini 5,
Tomorrow you'll take a great big dive.
Zinging toward the ocean blue,
I send my love to you."

Mrs. Conrad, a tall, slim, calm and charming woman, also showed her sense of humor. She looked up the horoscope for her husband, born under the sign of Gemini (his birthdate is June 2), and had McDivitt report its indications to Conrad.

McDivitt told the astronaut by radio, "Pete, Jane said the Gemini horoscope said you should put your house in order, and this evening would be good for dining out."

Trudy Cooper, wife of astronaut Cooper, got her daughters Camala, 16, and Janitu, 15, out of bed today in time to see the spacecraft whizzing through the sky near the horizon.

Officials Meet, Map Dry Plans At Winnsboro

WINNSBORO (Special) — Winnsboro and Franklin Parish officials, along with interested citizens, held a meeting in the parish courthouse Saturday morning to formulate plans to keep Franklin Parish and the town dry.

Officials at the meeting included Sheriff A. J. Stephens, District Attorney E. Rudolph McIntyre, Franklin Parish Rep. Lantz Womack, Winnsboro Mayor W. E. Marioneaux and Marshal A. W. Wright.

Bill R. Wilson of Winnsboro filed an application Thursday, Aug. 26, at the City Hall for a permit to sell beer within the city limits. E. G. Posey of Winnsboro filed a protest which took the case out of the hands of town officials and placed it with the State Board of Tax Appeals.

Traffic Heads Police Activity In Twin Cities

Monroe police booked Clyde Tidwell, 27, of 404 S. 24th St., Monroe, with driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages. He was apprehended in the 1400 block of Texas Avenue at 4:20 a.m.

West Monroe police booked two for simple battery. They were Wayne Fontenot, 20, Alvis Hotel, Monroe, and Jerry Saucer, 18, of 617 Whellis St., West Monroe. Saucer was also charged with disturbing the peace.

Ticketed for speeding were Reginald Futch, 36, of 504 Belmont St., Monroe; Matthew Walker, 22, of 810 Garland St., West Monroe; Evans Short, 21, of 133 Lee St., West Monroe; Bobby Albritton, 35, of Rt. 4, Box 233, West Monroe, and Ronald Holloway, 25, of 505 Otis St., West Monroe.

Ticketed for reckless driving was Wiley Coulter, 30, of 1217 DeSiard St., Monroe.

Monroe police booked Dennis Holland, 31, of No. 5 Ross Alley, Monroe, with aggravated battery. Charged with theft by check was Billy Donelson, 26, 413 Park Ave., Monroe.

Also ticketed for reckless driving in West Monroe were Robert E. Smith, 18, of 103 Jerry St., West Monroe, and Andrew L. Pate, 23, of 201 Lincoln Rd., Monroe. Also ticketed for speeding was Archie Green, 58, of 120 Lisa Lane, West Monroe.

Negro Charged With Slaying Of State Woman

ST. MARTINVILLE, La. (AP) —A 30-year-old Negro who had served time for the burglary of a woman's home some months ago Saturday was under charges of murder of the woman.

The victim was Eileen Carter, 50, sister-in-law of Louisiana Rep. Edwin E. Willis, chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Mrs. Carter, a widow who lived alone, apparently was beaten to death last Monday night, but her partly-nude body was not discovered until Friday.

Dist. Atty. Knowles Tucker said the accused man, Russell Alexander, led officers to the woman's body in a field near a commercial crawfish pond, about nine miles east of here. Chief Deputy Sheriff Allen Durand said the death weapon was a hammer, found in the area.

The district attorney said the Negro handyman had been convicted and had served time at state prison for the burglary of Mrs. Carter's home two years ago. He was released early this year. Mrs. Carter had reported seeing a Negro loitering near her home.

Dr. E. M. Yongue, St. Martin Parish coroner, said Alexander admitted raping the woman. He said X-rays were ordered to determine if the body had any bullet wounds. Dr. Yongue said the Negro had a .22-caliber pistol which had been fired two or three times.

Yongue fixed her death at between 7 and 8 p.m. last Monday night. Friday night, a friend went to Mrs. Carter's home and found blood stains in several rooms. Later, the victim's auto was found about a half block from her home. The front seat was spotted with blood.

8th Day Rough On Spacemen

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The eighth day in space with Gemini 5 astronauts L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr.:

Rough weather in the Atlantic caused space center officials to cut the Gemini flight to 120 from 121 orbits.

The pilots reported writers' cramps while mixing a few delayed experiments with the development of plans for stowing equipment for Sunday's re-entry and splashdown.

With a fuel shortage still limiting activity and dictating a powered down and drifting flight condition, both crewmen spent considerable time receiving flight plan revisions from Gemini control.

"Have you got writer's cramps?" the Carnarvon, Australia, communicator asked after dictating a long list of figures.

"Yeah," replied Conrad. "We do an awful lot of writing but not much work."

Cooper spent more time than usual sleeping. Ground controllers wanted the command pilot to have as much rest as possible prior to the retro-fire and, at one point, asked Cooper to estimate the quality of his sleep.

"Very good," Cooper reported.

A few experiments were reinstated despite continued emphasis on conservation of fuel. Maneuvering fuel was down to six pounds, with 4.8 pounds needed for retro-fire.

Cooper saw the sled track at New Mexico's Holloman Air Force Base but was unable to spot, during a vision test, the firing of the rocket sled. Conrad spotted two visual acuity ground markings north of Laredo, Tex., but Gemini control said evaluation of the accuracy of his observations would be delayed.

HOW TO GET GIRLS

LONDON (AP) — Michael Caine, star of the spy movie "The Ipcress File," has started work on the movie "Alfie" in which he has six girl friends. His advice on how to get along with girls? "Be nice to them. They won't even sit with you if you aren't nice to them."

Angola Warden Favors Change In Guard Setup

BATON ROUGE (AP)—State Prison Warden J. Wayne Allgood said Saturday he favors eliminating the use of inmate guards and state leaders are sending out feelers to the 1966 legislature for additional funds to do it.

Allgood said, "I have never been an advocate of inmate guards and I'm certainly in favor of eliminating the system when we can."

He said, however, that he was not sure inmate guards were the real cause for last week's sit-down strike by 300 inmates.

"I'm trying to find out now what happened and why," Allgood said. He is a trained sociologist.

Legislative leaders, including Rep. Robert Munson, of Rapides, House Appropriations chairman and an administration leader said he doesn't think the state penitentiary has any choice but to use inmate guards now because of the shortage of funds.

Munson said, "We can examine what state funds can be used for replacing inmate guards. We will attempt to replace them as fast as we can, in line with what Gov. John McKeithen said."

McKeithen had called for replacement of the inmate guards when the money was available.

Institutions Director Wingate White said all prison money is currently being used and only additional funds will allow the hiring of additional civilian guards.

Kremlin Seeking A United Front

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

The Kremlin is rummaging for old tools to use on new problems. The result may be a revival of Stalin-era tactics to guard Soviet security in time of grave danger while simultaneously trying to repair damage from the world Communist split.

Possibly urged by some Communist chiefs in the West, Moscow seems toying with the idea of a new central directorate for international communism similar to the Comintern or its successor, the Cominform.

The Kremlin appears on the verge of a new drive for a "united front" of all leftist and middle-of-the-road elements in non-Communist nations.

Moscow may also experiment with a new peace offensive, intending to exploit dissensions among Western nations.

Hints of all this are appearing in Soviet publications. No basic change in foreign policy is indicated, but rather shifts in tactics and strategy.

Is it back to the Comintern?

Lack of a general staff for world communism has been felt by Red leaders in non-Communist nations. Now the authoritative journal Kommunist notes an urgent need for "'coordinated action".

The advisability of a Moscow-Based general staff was discussed by Soviet and European Red leaders seven years ago in Prague. M.A. Suslov and B.N. Ponomarev were Moscow's representatives then.

Ten days ago two European Communist chiefs, Luigi Longo of Italy and Waldeck Rochet of France, were in Moscow. Both discussed international Communist problems with Suslov, Ponomarev and Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev.

Moscow's clash with Peking on how the world revolution should develop has split the movement around the world. A new Comintern-like center could be a means of tightening the reins on what is left of the pro-Moscow parties.

Will the united front be revived?

In 1936, Stalin told Communists abroad to promote a "united front against war and fascism." The primary goal was to help protect the U.S.S.R. as war clouds were gathering. The front proved useful.

Seeing a new threat to world peace, the Kremlin may view Viet Nam as a potential repetition of the mid-1930s, when Spain was a testing ground for contending political forces in Europe on the threshhold of war.

More more more

Pravda used a Comintern anniversary as an occasion to call for a new, mid-1960s united front of leftist elements against "U.S. imperialism." It would extend the front to "young independent countries," a popular thirst for peace could be a powerful weapon to bring pressures on non-Communist governments. Pravda calls the need even greater than 30 years ago.

Guide To Good Reading

New Books In Library Listed

By FRANCES FLANDERS,
Ouachita Parish Librarian

New books which should be interesting to our reading public have been added to the book collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week. In the fiction category there are several interesting novels. "The Third Side Of The Coin" by Francis Clifford has an English and Continental background and is the story of a young English bank teller, defeated by fate. "A Long Way to Go" by Borden Deal is the story of three youngsters who were left in a Florida Motel by their parents. They did not want to be turned over to the Police and so began the six hundred mile hike home. They met with an assortment of kindly people and the adventure is a memorable one. "Father Hilary's Holiday" is the title of Bruce Marshall's latest novel and is concerned with the adventures of a very unusual priest on the island of Santo Tomas.

A romantic novel in the grand tradition is "The Man From The Mist" by Mary Elgin. The setting is Scottish, and the book will appeal to readers who enjoy the works of Mary Stuart or Daphne Du Maurier. "The Major" by David Hughes is a well written portrait of a military man who could not adjust to civilian life. The author has done a masterly job of making us feel contempt and compassion at the same time. "The Bronc Rider" by William Crawford paints an unforgettable picture of life on the rodeo circuit and will interest many readers. "Time Was" by John Foster West is a story of the poor people of the Carolina Hill Country and the efforts of one of them to rise above the obstacles in his path. The writer shows real understanding and compassion for these people and the book will be well-received.

"Week With No Friday" by Willard Marsh is the story of an American living in Mexico and how he was forced to face reality. The author has done his work well and this novel will be one which the reader will find to his taste. "Yankee Doodle Dandy" by Noel Bertram Gerson is a biographical novel of the life of John Hancock. Mr. Gerson has written many historical novels and this one catches the spirit of the times.

There are also several interesting books of non-fiction this week. "Flight" by H. G. Stever is the new volume in the Life Science Library and is well-illustrated and readable. "A Guide to Decoration In The Early American Manner" by Nadien Cox Wilson will be most useful to women who like this type of home decoration. A critical work is "The Art of William Golding" by Bernard Oldsey. This book should be useful to students of contemporary literature. A new and very well-written history of the American Revolution is "The Great Separation" by Donald Barr Chidsey. This book should be useful to students and the general readers as well. A fascinating addition to the history of our area is "The French In The Mississippi Valley" written by John Francis McDermott. It is a scholarly work and has a great number of fascinating drawings and illustrations.

Bond Fades Out In West Style In Gun Battle

THE MAN WITH THE GOLDEN GUN. By Ian Fleming. New American Library. $4.50.

The scene of James Bond's last exploit is Jamaica, and the villain is a 6-feet-3 hoodlum and assassin named Scaramanga, who makes an art of shooting his victims with golden bullets from a gold-plated pistol.

There is a brief prologue in London. In "You Only Live Twice," Bond had disappeared after being injured; he was listed as missing and presumed dead. But he had been picked up by Russian agents, brainwashed, and sent back to headquarters to kill his boss. This little ploy fails, and having been restored to sanity, Bond is assigned to a suicide mission against Scaramanga, the scourge of the Caribbean.

Bond manages to get himself hired as a sort of bodyguard to the man he has been sent to kill (this is a bit far-fetched), because Scaramanga needs a tough guy to guard a meeting of "The Group."

"The Group" is an assortment of hoods, racketeers and gamblers from Detroit, Miami, Las Vegas, Chicago and Phoenix — plus a taciturn old gent from Europe, who obviously represents Russia's interest in stirring up troubles for the United States.

Both Scaramanga and Bond grow a little careless, and each has plenty of opportunities to plug the other, but Bond seems to want the issue settled on the basis of which man is the fastest draw.

New Spy Chiller Suspense Drama

THE LOOKING GLASS WAR. By John le Carre. Coward-McCann. $4.95.

In his third novel, "The Spy Who Came in from the Cold," le Carre de-glamorized the spy business. He did it by mixing pathos and irony into a suspense story, relating the somber fate of a small spy named Leamas, who was given a bit of dirty work to do, and then was sacrificed for a more valuable agent.

But "The Spy" took on more literary stature than a mere thriller, because the author had also created a psychological novel of merit.

Once again this is a psychological drama, with spying as its theme, but it is more bitter and scathing than the other.

There is a small, half-forgotten department in a British ministry that served its purpose as a spy apparatus during the last war, but which now has shrunken to a handful of paper-shufflers. Its head, le Clerc, still lives in a dream world, however, of high level espionage.

On very flimsy evidence, le Clerc decides there is a dangerous new missile base in East Germany. When one of his half-trained agents is killed by an automobile, le Clerc assumes the Russians are to blame. He has to send the only young member of his crew to try (unsuccessfully) to retrieve the situation.

Digging up a civilian, Leiser — who had been a young, inept spy during the war — he gives him a ludicrously inadequate period of re-training and sends him into East Germany. In the folly of the whole botched affair, there is an ironic twist to its conclusion.

Again le Carre is dealing with blindly cold men who have no feeling for the individual. But he goes further. He lays bare the danger in Cold War days of allowing old warhorses to play spy with 20-year-old, antiquated methods.

Notable 1st Novel By Olsen

THE VIRGIN OF SAN GIL. By Paul Olsen. Holt, Rinehart and Winston. $4.95.

Olsen has written a remarkable first novel.

One of its most fascinating aspects is the aura of suspended reality in which reality takes place. In creating the dusky light of a dream, which filters out anciety but heightens urgency, Olsen reminds a reader of the Yugoslav, Ivo Andric, and the American writer in Yiddish, Isaac Singer.

The story, which is characterization around an incident rather than a plot, takes place near and in a village, presumably in a backward part of South America. It could be a novel of despair — priests and politicians are not the kind of people we want them to be; some of the characters feel unwelcome death coming uncomfortably close to them; death reaches them, too, as well as some who weren't expecting him. But it isn't a novel of despair; it is a novel of the way things are, making no emotional judgment of the state it portrays.

There are two priests, neither an effective minister of the church. One is old and disgustingly materialistic and tough. The other can't better reality because his gentility, restraint and idealism keep him from really understanding it. There are two politicians, both crooked and ruthless, one gone from young shrewdness to wry old age, the other conniving, younger but less clever.

However, the old, uneducated, destitute woodsman, who finds a statue of the Virgin which has been stolen from the church, is a more fascinating person than the wrong-headed ones.

New Fiction Work On Thomas Becket

THOMAS. By Shelley Mydans. Doubleday. $5.95.

An historic struggle between two masterful personalities, each as mulishly obstinate as the other, is at the core of this fictional interpretation of the life of Thomas Becket.

Thomas was a commoner who had the good fortune to become, first, a protege of Theobald, Archbishop of Canterbury, and later, of Henry II. He served the King so well as diplomat and soldier that he became chancellor of England, but it is doubtful whether he fulfilled Theobald's cunning hopes on influencing Henry in favor of the Church.

Nor did Henry succeed in using Thomas to influence the Church. When Henry pulled the royal strings to get Thomas elected as Theobald's successor as primate of England, he thought he was getting a clamp on the Church. It didn't turn out that way. Thomas soon showed that he would fight on the religious side.

As the author tells the story, Thomas received a revelation as he was consecrated Archbishop. So it was Thomas versus the power of a king who was enraged over the matter of religious and civil jurisdiction and taxes.

Who's On First?

With Jimmy Hatten

There are key men in all human endeavors and there are key situations in all events.

In sports, when a key man comes through in a key situation, you usually have a winner. Same with business or politics.

Even when the key men comes through and you lose, you still have the feeling of pride in the clutch deliveries.

Who can say whether Richland Parish residents will win their battle over what they believe to be inadequacies in the Interstate-20 program, onsofar as money paid for their land, lack of access roads and drainage problems?

That they have logic on their side seems indisputable from here. Time after time at a meeting in Rayville Thursday, they hammered their points home. Our state highways department men agree with them; and, as a matter of fact, there seemed to be no one at the meeting who did not, except possibly in some technical aspects.

Here, then, would seem to be a key situation approaching: a time when, if the slugger comes to the plate (the key man) and delivers the hit, it's going to be a good ballgame.

The key men in the highway situation so far have been Benny Christian, Richland Parish representative and James W. Moore, vice chairman of the State Highway Board.

Christian cited example after example of what his people don't like about the new road; he pushed and prodded our own state people to an understanding of the situation to the extent they now feel they can make their case to the federal government.

Okay, Christian came through. What about Moore? It's his turn. Moore, after listening contemplatively at all the arguments, got up and boiled the situation down in a nutshell, then mapped out what could be done — the most important things, perhaps, being a meeting in Baton Rouge Wednesday of the highway board, where, at his invitation, the Richland Parish people will have an opportunity to further their cause, with federal ears, at last, attuned.

Moore came through, too.

So, will Richland win the ballgame? Depends on what kind of pitching the federal men have.

Thursday Meet Of Adjustment Board Is Slated

The Board of Adjustment of the City of Monroe will meet at 4 p.m. Thursday in the Planning Commission office.

Six cases will be considered by the board before they are presented at a public hearing at 4:15 p.m. in the city courtroom of City Hall.

Two of the requests are by Northeast Louisiana State — one to use 4111 DeSiard for research and — or office purposes and one for a special exception use of 4201 Bon Air Drive as a college fraternity house.

Other cases include Mrs. K. L. Clear of 209 McGuire, request for a special exception for a nursery day care center; Monroe Baptist Temple at 1500 So. 2nd for a variance from parking requirements; M. L. Lee of 502 Eason Place for a side yard variance; and Gulf Oil Corp. at northeast corner of DeSiard and Magnolis Sts. for a front yard variance.

School Closes

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The Foundation School, a private institution for nursery and elementary grades here since 1962, will not open this fall.

Dr. T. P. Raggio, chairman of the board of directors of the Baton Rouge Education Foundation, said the decision to close followed declining enrollment.

"I guess I'd have to attribute the closing to public apathy," Raggio said.

"We all thought the school offered many things which a lot of people in Baton Rouge wanted," he commented, "but apparently we were wrong."

Under state law, several thousand pupils attend private, segregated schools with state grants of $2 daily to help finance their tuition.

Building Permits Total $515,868 Here Past Week

Building permits issued in Monroe during the week ending Friday, included 21 for new construction and remodeling.

A total of $515, 868 in building projects is planned by those issued permits in the office of Dale B. Martha, coordinator. Some $12,880 of this figure includes remodeling projects to private homes within the city and $25,000 will be the cost of a new home to be built.

A cafeteria planned at Northeast Louisiana State College will cost an estimated $286,617 and a federal building will cost $58,617. Alteration of two business establishments is estimated to cost some $3,686.

Permits were issued to the following:

Residential alterations — Ernest P. Jones, 1808 Adams; William Davis, 211 Marx; Mrs. Ida Walker, 301 Parker; Alvin B. Coles, 3701 Jackson; Walter Abram, 704 Bethune; George Conley, 2403 Maddox; Mrs. Johnnie Sherrouse, 2313 Marie St.; Linton Hughes, 2103 Oliver Rd.; Roy Martinez, 2300 Bienville; Lula Mae Sykes, 1624 S. 8th St.; Mike Bullock, 611 Downey Ln.; Joe Rone, 4109 Matthew; Ollie Williams, 303 N. 24th St.; Lonnie G. McGough, 617 Richardson; and Annie D. Barnes, 1203 Griffin.

College building — NLSC to erect masonry and steel cafeteria on Bayou Drive.

Federal building — Johnny Johnson, erection of brick and block Federal Social Security Office, 2003 Tower Dr.

Commercial alterations — Drs. Phillips, Phillips and Harrup, office building, 1501 Stubbs Ave.; and F. A. Brown, auto repair shop, 3007 DeSiard St.

Workshop For City Teachers To Open

A two-day workshop for teachers in the Monroe City School System will open at 9 a.m. Monday at the College Union Building on the Northeast Louisiana State College campus.

Theme of the workshop will be "The Challenge of Change," and the four consultants for the session will be DeNux LeBlanc, Dr. Michael J. Cousins, Dean Herman R. Sigler and Miss Mabel Collette.

Other workshop panelists will be Frank L. Harmon, Miss Audrey Babineaux and John Rolen. Mrs. Olive Leigh Cochran, an elementary supervisor, will be coordinator fot the conclave.

LeBlanc serves as director of geographical research with A J. Nystrom and Co., and has done work on his Ph. D. at Ohio University and the University of Michigan. Dr. Cousins, director of special education at Northwestern State College, earned his Ph. D. from Florida State University. Dean Sigler, who recently completed requirements for a Ph. D. degree from Louisiana State University, was acting principal of the demonstration school at Southwestern University while serving as an education instructor there. Miss Collette has recently retired as director of elementary education in the State Department of Education.

Harmon is head of the mathematics department at Northeast. Miss Babineaux is assistant supervisor for foreign languages with the State Department of Education. Rolen, a representative and consultant for A. J. Nystrom and Co., has been a classroom teacher in Webster Parish and was principal in a Lake Charles school for nine years.

LBJ Reveals Plan For Elderly Poor

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson launched Saturday a "foster grandparents" program as part of a $42-million start toward lifting 5.5 million elderly people out of poverty.

The idea is to assist persons at both ends of the age scale by employing the elderly poor to provide company and friendship and help to neglected, handicapped children.

Then there are three other projects to help impoverished poor people over 60—a total of 17,600 at the outset through grants to institutions and organizations in 20 states stretching from Hawaii to New Hampshire.

There were statements and tables and memos to explain it all.

Of the first 17,600 to be employed, the White House said this:

"They will help attack the poverty of 140,000 of the nation's most cruelly deprived — neglected babies, retarded children, the homebound sick and the bed-ridden and isolated elderly."

The foster grandparents program is one of four projects to be financed with an initial $42 million. The aim is to make the needy old folks substitute parents for neglected children in institutions and to expand within a year into all the states at a cost of $10 million.

The grandparents plan is split into two parts.

In one, 2,000 poor people will work with 5,000 babies who live in institutions and are worse off than the old people are. For this, $2,670,941 was made available for 22 projects in a score of states.

Another 2,000 will help care for 2,000 somewhat older youngsters in institutions and the money for this is being promised in about a month.

In addition there are three more projects to account for the rest of the $41 million.

One of them will train 10,000 elderly people to be home health aides to assist and comfort the bedridden sick and disabled — $20 million.

Another will hire 1,800 persons to start work this fall in urban slums and poorer rural areas, caring for children from broken homes — $5 million.

The third will train 2,400 persons this fall to work with mentally retarded children — $6 million.

An office of Economic Opportunity spokesman in Washington said the elderly foster grandparents will be paid, generally, the $1.25 minimum hourly wage.

The fact an elderly person is receiving an old-age pension or on Social Security will be no bar. Most of the work is on a part-time basis.

"Frankly, most of the people the program will reach haven't built up enough work record under Social Security to be covered," the spokesman said.

"We know there will be some volunteers for the program who are above the minimum poverty level."

In the foster grandparents program, most projects will have 38 "grandparents" to 50 children. Each foster grandfather or grandmother will work four hours a day, five days a week, and divide the time between two youngsters — two hours daily with each.

Some other foster grandparents will fill in on the other two days.

An identification with men is particularly important, one of the White House memos says, because these young children are "usually overwhelmingly surrounded by women in institutional life."

"The projects approved today," it says, "are small enough to be warmly human and to permit the essential one-to-one relationship between an adult and a child, but they are large enough to have both immediate impact and to suggest a whole series of important long-range possibilities.

"In some hospitals where children will be served, many have not had a single visitor in six months. They have lain in a crib, been changed, fed, washed, and put down again. The pressured staff has not had time to give them more than custodial, physical care."

Racial Suit

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A New Orleans Negro accused of shooting and wounding a white man during racial demonstrations in Bogalusa, has asked a federal court in New Orleans to take jurisdiction of the case.

Henry Austin asked the court Friday to remove from city court at Bogalusa a municipal charge of firing a gun within the city limits. He also faces a state charge of aggravated battery with a gun.

Cairo's Nasser Tells His Views To Red Leaders

MOSCOW (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser outlined U.A.R. views on world affairs to Soviet leaders Saturday—with Viet Nam apparently looming large—and Soviet President Anastas I. Mikoyan later said they found common language.

Mikoyan told a Kremlin luncheon:

"We immediately found common language and common understanding of problems of international developments. We think this is highly useful, not only for our states but also for all other countries which are fighting against the dark forces of reaction, for the victory of forces of peace and progress."

He said the Soviet Union had a high opinion of "achievements of the Egyptian revolution and the foreign policy" of Nasser. His remarks were reported by Tass, the Soviet news agency.

"We highly appreciate the U.A.R. policy aimed at uniting all anti-imperialist forces, irrespective of racial and other differences, for the struggle against aggressive actions of imperialism and colonialism," Mikoyan said. By standard Kremlin terminology, that would refer to the United States.

Future Spacemen To Drink Problem

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP)—Astronauts on future space flights will have a simple way of taking care of the excess fuel cell water which was a major problem on Gemini 5. They will drink it.

The water produced by Gemini 5's fuel cell threatened to "drown out" the eight-day mission. It caused the astronauts to fly most of the time powered-down because the more electricity that it used from the cell, the more water it produces. Excessive production, if not drained off, can ruin the fuel cell.

Original plans called for Gemini 5 space twins L. Gordon Cooper Jr. and Charles Conrad Jr. to drink the water, but the pre-launch tests showed that the liquid produced by the fuel cell was not drinkable. "It was black with little things floating in it," said Conrad. So two 139-pound tanks of drinking water were placed in the GT-5 spacecraft.

William Dusenbury and Roland Rice, space center fuel cell experts, said the new system would be ready for use on Gemini 7, a 14-day flight expected this year.

When the fuel cell water on Gemini 5 proved unusable before launch, engineers devised a method of replacing stored drinking water consumed by the astronauts with fuel cell water. Their plan did not work because the water production was greater than they anticipated.

It couldn't be unloaded into the urine management system and dumped it overboard because of the high acidity of the fuel cell water, a byproduct of a chemical reaction between oxygen and hydrogen that produces electricity. The acid would have destroyed the lines.

Dusenbury and Rice said that except for adding a filter system, there would be no major redesign of the fuel cell, which will be used on the final six Gemini missions.

Gemini 5 was the first test of the system in space. It had been continuously tested for more than 1,000 hours without a failure.

To find out why the system produced excessive water will be an "iffy affair," Rice said. The fuel cell is in the spacecraft's adapter section, which is jetisoned on re-entry and burns up coming back through the atmosphere. The engineers won't be able to examine it to find the trouble.

"There may be some backup wiring added to the oxygen heating system in the future," Rice said, "but we will have to rely on telemetered data sent back from the spacecraft to find the source of trouble."

One bright spot of the whole fuel cell problem was the capability of the device to operate at much lower pressure rates than were used in testing.

Cuban Emissary Quits In Protest Of Castro Rule

LONDON (UPI)—Communist Cuba's ambassador to Great Britain has resigned in protest against Fidel Castro's "totalitarian" regime, it was disclosed Saturday.

He is the second Cuban diplomat in London to go into exile in five months.

Dr. Luis Ricardo Alonso Fernandez, who has been Havana's ranking envoy to the Court of St. James since 1963, revealed his resignation in a letter to the Times of London. It was addressed to Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos.

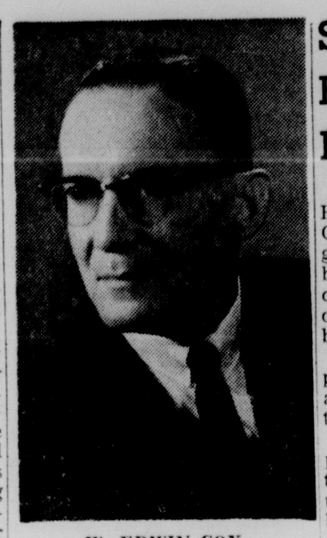

A spokesman for Cuba's government news agency, Prensa Latina, confirmed that Fernandez had quit and said the Cuban embassy here would have an announcement within "the next few days."

Cuban Consul - General Julio Cesar del Castillo defected to the West last April, protesting what he called the "oppressiveness" of Castro's Caribbean police state. His letter of resignation was addressed to Fernandez. Del Castillo and his wife later were granted political asylum in the united States.

Reports circulated Saturday that Fernandez may have gone to Paris to join up with anti-Castro exiles in the area. There was no official confirmation of this and the Prensa Latina spokesman declined comment on the ambassador's whereabouts.

In his letter to the Times, Fernandez called for 11 measures to be carried out by the Castro government.

Among the measures suggested by Fernandez were free elections. He noted that it was "doubly unpleasant" to have to publish his resignation abroad, "but this is precisely one of the inconveniences of abolishing freedom of opinion."

Spacemen Face Heavy Grueling For Debriefing

MANNED SPACE CENTER, Houston, Tex. (AP) — The Gemini 5 astronauts face 11 grueling days of post-flight debriefings, but one of their predecessors said Saturday he never once considered his own debriefings a chore.

James A. McDivitt, command pilot of the Gemini 4 flight, told a news conference in response to a question:

"I think we dictated a 600-page book while we were still on the aircraft carrier and on a Saturday and Sunday after we got back.

"We went through a great number of debriefings after that and never once did I consider it a chore. It was a lot of hard work but so had all the preparations for the flight been hard work."

McDivitt, a mission communicator for Gemini 5, circled the earth four days with his space strolling companion, Edward H. White II, in June.

McDivitt was asked how astronauts Charles Conrad Jr. and L. Gordon Cooper Jr. feel about the extensive debriefings and if they consider them a chore.

"I'll tell you how I felt about it," he replied. "I'd worked for a long, long time to get ready for that flight, and we gathered a lot of data that I thought would be useful to other people.

"I didn't really consider the flight to be ended when we landed on the water, or when we were rescued — so that the amount of time we spent debriefing the flight after we were through really wasn't a chore."

McDivitt, an Air Force lieutenant colonel, said he "felt it was one of the requirements."

Splashdown In Capsule

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SPLASHDOWN — Tropical storm Betsy forced rescheduling of the Atlantic landing for 7:55 a.m. (EST) today after a world record 120 orbits in 190 hours and 55 minutes, one orbit short of the pre-flight schedule. The splashdown site is about 275 miles southwest of Bermuda.

ASTRONAUTS — Air Force Lt. Col. L. Gordon Cooper Jr., 38, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Charles Conrad Jr., 35, started stowing equipment for retrofire and reentry.

SPACECRAFT — Christopher C. Kraft Jr., flight director, said he is "extremely well pleased" with spacecraft's eight-day performance.

EXPERIMENTS — Several photographic and visual acuity experients were reinstated Saturday after being delayed by a maneuvering fuel shortage. Fuel supply dropped to six pounds, with 4.8 pounds needed for retrofire.

Adenauer Lashes Western Powers

BONN, Germany (AP) — Former Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is stumping West Germany, sharply censuring the United States, Britain and Canada before thousands of admirers. He says Washington is so concerned about Asia that it is letting its guard down in Europe.

He says "monstrous, terrible" proposals have been introduced by the United States and Canada at what he derisively brands "the so-called Geneva disarmament conference."

He says the British are undermining the confidence of the Germans in their allies by their plans to withdraw obsolete nuclear-tipped missiles from army units stationed in Europe, and replace the rockets with conventional artillery.

What makes the 89-year-old chairman of the powerful Christian Democratic party voice such acid and bitter criticism?

Is Germany yearning for more military power? Is it politics? Or are the years beginning to tell on "Der Alte"—the old man? Watching Adenauer on a speechmaking blitz across Western Germany, one onlooker's first impression was: Der Alte is making politics, lighting a fire under a tepid electoral race.

West Germany elects a new Parliament Sept. 19. From it will emerge the next chancellor, Mayor Willy Brandt, Socialist and mayor of West Berlin, or Ludwig Erhard the present chancellor, a Christian Democrat.

Adenauer has made foreign policy the main theme of his speeches. By raising the specter of a militarily sterile Germany in the shadow of hundreds of Soviet nuclear missiles he is telling the voters: you need security; vote for the people who have given you security in the past.

His line goes something like this: The United tates is involved in war in Asia. Soviet missiles are aimed at our fatherland. The Canadians at Geneva suggest that Soviet security needs to be taken into consideration.

"Ladies and gentlemen, we don't want to be ground up between two millstones," he tells the crowds. "The next four years will be some of the toughest."

And then comes the sell: You need a strong, experienced government in Bonn.

And, he adds, who has more experience than the Christian Democrats, who pulled Germany out of the war's debris, steered it into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and catapulted the economy into an unprecedented boom?

The theme of danger from the east is effective. There is no love lost between Germans and Russians.

Sometimes what Adenauer says doesn't jibe with the official point of view of the government, under Erhard, but Adenauer says he is critizing the United States because good friends discuss their problems openly.

"I am a friend of the United States and have acknowledged that it saved Western Europe," Adenauer tells the crowds.

But, he adds, "I won't shut up in front of a partner when our future is at stake."

Sources close to Adenauer say he strongly favors closer ties with France, especially so far as defense is concerned.

"Adenauer is convinced that the Franco-German friendship treaty is the cornerstone of the new Europe, and he wants more done about it, even if France acts bigger than other nations," they say.

Two Complete Art Shows At Columbia Set

COLUMBIA (Special) — The Louisiana Art and Folk Festival to be held on Saturday and Sunday, October 9-10 at the Community Center at Columbia will offer two complete art shows for each day including all divisions and categories.

Participants will enter either day or both days and may present the same exhibit which will be judged by different officials.

The program chairmen — Joe Barry Mullin, head of the music department of Northeast State College and Duchein Cazedessus, Louisiana Tech music faculty — are completing plans for this portion of the event.

On the agenda is an illustrated talks, "My Favorite Things" by Mac Ward of KNOE-TV, which will be the theme of the Festival.

Outstanding talent from Northeast State and Louisiana Tech will furnish the major portion of the two-day program.

The Northeast Jazz Ensemble by Glenn Baxter and the Northeast Singers directed by Davis Bingham will be among paramount attractions.

John Cale of Monroe, assisted by Bobby Durham of Columbia and a Northeast student, will arrange their traditional folk sing. They have invited two ballard collectors to speak briefly on this part of the program.

Procession To Open Ecumenical Council

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI will lead 2,500 bishops from around the world in a half-mile procession of penance through the streets of Rome Sept. 14 to open the fourth and final session of the Roman Catholic Ecumenical Council.

The pontiff announced the procession Saturday in an urgent appeal for Catholics everywhere to pray for success of the council and to join with their children and their suffering sick in worldwide ceremonies of penance.

The papal-led procession will sing praises to the Lord and carry the Church's zealously guarded relics of the Cross from Rome's Basilica of the Holy Cross of Jerusalem, where the relics are kept, to the Basilica of St. John Lateran, the Pope's see as bishop of Rome.

The pontiff also announced that throughout the final council session the Blessed Sacrament will remain exposed in the Pauline Chapel of the Vatican's Apostolic Palace.

The announcements came in an apostolic exhortation as the fourth session of the four-year Vatican Council drew near. Pope Paul said prayer was "the indispensible means" of assuring success" of the worldwide Catholic assembly. He predicted "The council will have greater effect than we can estimate."

He said, too, that he hoped his invitation to prayer for success of the council would be "welcomed also by our brothers in other Christian communities."

The Vatican Council, convened by the late Pope John XXIII in October 1962, still has before it 11 topics, including three that touch upon sensitive areas outside Catholicism—religious liberty, relations with the Jews and other non-Christians, and problems of the modern world including birth control and nuclear warfare.

The Pope reiterated that the fourth session would be the last. It may finish its work by Christmas, but the load remaining is so heavy that some have said it might to be recessed over Christmas and concluded next year.

In his call for prayer and penance on the eve of the final council session, Pope Paul said:

"We desire that in every parish, in every church of the Catholic world there be held a ceremony of penance. To this ceremony should be invited the innocent children, the generous minded young men and women, the fathers and mothers of families.

"And let all our most cherished children who are sick, whose power of impetration has singular and irreplacable efficiency before the heart of God, unite their spiritual anguish and their physical suffering to these ceremonies."

Lost Yesterday —

"Lost, yesterday, somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered for they are gone forever."

Aphorism — Horace Mann

The evening is cool and pleasant. A breeze steals its way through the narrow streets of International Plaza, and there are marvelous frozen bananas at the little Philippine refreshment bar. Next door, there is the magnetic aroma of Columbian coffee, and down the street a few doors, the Cafe Luxembourg, so authentic, is almost lost amid the towering pavilions and shining buildings. Its specialty is onion soup and marvelous food. A happy, rosy cheeked Bavarian girl markets the latest in cuckoo clocks at the German pavilion and the San Miguel Beer Tavern does a land office business. There are crowds of people, and the sights, smells, and sounds would have visitors in a dozen foreign lands instead of at the World's Fair.

The beautiful old carousel at Belgian Village joyfully booms out "Sidewalks of New York," and the carillon at Coca Cola chimes the hour. The Pavilion of Morocco does a brisk business in wonderful leather goods at unbelievably low prices, and over at India, there are magnificent woven silk neckties going at a steal. The crabcakes at Maryland's Wharf are better than those at Baltimore, and genial Emmett Kelly Jr. still holds forth at the fantastic Kodak complex. It all seems so permanent, and one imagines upon waking on a bright morning that the Fair will alwasy be there — flags, music, shining buildings, and happy people.

But beneath the gaiety — the lights, sounds, and wonder of this greatest of all world's fairs — things are beginning to signal the end which is a scant fifty days away. Herbert Payne, the Fair's comptroller, talks of demolition bombs and which will be the first pavilions to come down. . . Fair president Robert Moses discusses the post Fair park, and there are those who are bidding on the miniature Long Island Railroad train. General W. E. (Joe) Potter, executive vice president, departs almost immediately for Disneyland. His farewell banquet must have been a red warning signal to those who could conceive of no end — that something would happen for at least another year.

Fifty days to go, and it seems only yesterday that the creaking, rather elderly trains of the Flushing-Main Street Local deposited one at Willet's Point into a sea of mud and construction. On that day, the first piece of curved steel was put in place on the Unisphere. Now, the shining Blue Arrow subway express glides swiftly out to World's Fair Station, and the Unisphere gleams softly in a summer evening sky.

Fifty days, and what will happen to the little bazaar at the Egyptian Pavilion where one haggles over exotic goods and enjoys felafel, honey balls, and mango juice? The man, his family, and dog have told the marvelous General Electric story for almost two seasons and will move to the California coast. But, "It's A Great Big Beautiful Tomorrow," and the exquisite Progressland Pavilion will soon be gone. Nobody knows the future of the irreplaceable General Motors ride into a hundred years of the future but the masterpiece which is the pavilion will join Progressland in the garden of memories.

At least one Roman soldier who has marched across the stage of history at the unforgettable Travelers Pavilion will stand at rest, at home in the South. Who knows what will happen to Suzie, the friendly African giraffe, and travelers will have to fly to Dublin to enjoy better Irish coffee than that served at the Irish patio.

The porpoises of Florida will possibly return home to Marineland, and it's hard to believe anybody would put a heavy hand on the jewel-like Pavilion of Spain. There is some hope the magnificent carillon of CocaCola will go home to the Atlanta area, and the Tower of Light has got to grace the night sky in some part of America.

For fifty more joyful, splendid and unforgettable days and nights, the lights will glow, the fountains will sparkle and the music will play. After that, one wonderful Fair, lost yesterday, gone forever.

Plans For Rodeo In West Monroe Are Completed

The West Monroe Riding Club has completed plans for an Amateur and "Little Britches" Rodeo to open at 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 3, at the West Monroe Riding Club Arena on Harrel Road.

Ages six months to 14 years will eligible for competing in the three-night show, according to Bobby Albritton, president.

Albritton said the rodeo will be for amateur contestants only, "but," he added, "We have some very fine young cowboys in our area as everyone will see during the rodeo."

He said emphasis will be placed upon the "Little Britches" event of the show.

Miniature horses have been secured for this event, Albritton said.

The club hopes to make the show for tots and youngsters an annual affair.

Shows will begin at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Sept. 3 and 4, and at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 5.

Entry fee for all events except the "Little Britches" division will be $10 per event. The "Little Britches" event will have no entry fee, according to S. G. Nolan, who is in charge of entry fees.

Those wishing to enter the show may contact Nolan at S. G. Nolan's Grocery on the Arkansas Road, West Monroe, or by phoning him at 387-0418. Insurance will be handled at the time the entry fee is paid, Nolan said.

Silver belt buckles will be awarded each event winner, including the winner of the "Little Britches" event.

Course On Fires Slated At LSU

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Louisiana State University's first annual "fire college", a week - long course on practical training for firemen, will begin Sept. 13 at the main campus here.

Course chairman Carroll L. Herring said several hundred firemen from both volunteer and paid fire departmens are expected to enroll in the college.

7th District Takes In Wide Interests

By EDWARD J. COCKE
United Press International

Louisiana's sprawling 7th Congressional District has been without a congressman since July 1, when Rep. T. A. Thompson of Ville Platte was killed in a traffic accident in North Carolina.

Five Democrats ranging from a powerful state senator to a druggist who has never run for public office are seeking Thompson's seat

They will meet in a Sept. 11 first primary. If necessary, a second primary will be held on Oct. 2.

The general election has been set for Oct. 26. However, Republicans in the Southwest Louisiana district indicate they will not put up a candidate.

The 7th district takes up most Southwest Louisiana, it ranges from highly-industrialized Calcasieu Parish, with its strong union vote, to St. Landry Parish, whose Yambilee celebration indicates its agricultural nature. Oil production, refining and marketing are big factors throughout the district.

The other parishes in the district are Allen and Beauregard, both lightly settled timber, cattle and agricultural; coastal Cameron, with fishing and cattle and rice interests; Acadia and Evangeline, both with French populations and agricultural economies, and Jefferson Davis, in the heart of the district and generally typical of the area.

President Johnson carried every parish in the district except Beauregard. His lead in the district was 64,096 to 49,244. Thompson was a liberal by Louisiana standards, and won his last primary victory 38,650 to 29,485 over a conservative candidate who is making another bid for the office. Thompson was unopposed in the last general election.

The reasons for this liberal showing in a state carried by the Republicans in 1964 are varied. There is a strong labor vote in the refineries; Negro voter registration is higher in the area than in most parts of the state, and the Roman Catholic influence is not to be ignored.

How these factors will influence the Oct. 26 election remain to be seen. The voters will choose from a list that includes a union member and a former spokesman for an ultra-conservative legislative committee. The candidates range in age from 33 to 47.

Alphabetically, here are the candidates: State Sen. Edwin Edwards, State Rep. A. J. (Tubby) Lyons, druggist Eugene Picou, attorney Paul Tate and former newsman Gary Tyler.

Here are the major issues of the campaign as viewed by the candidates:

Sen Edwards, 36, is a Crowley lawyer who defeated veteran William Cleveland for the 35th District Senate seat. He became a floor leader for Gov. McKeithen, and although the governor is officially neutral, they are considered close associates.

Since this is an area where a large percentage of everyone' money comes from the oil business, Edwards believes in legislation which helps the industry.

"Naturally," Edwards said, "I am unalterably in favor of the 27½ per cent depletion allowance — it encourages more wells to be drilled on more land."

Edwards promises to work closely with the Federal Bureau of Roads if he is sent to Washington.

"We are blessed with more natural resources here than any comparable area of the nation, but we must have better roads to transport our products and continue our industrial development," Edwards said. "We owe it to ourselves to connect our great district with the other areas of the state."

Lyons, 47, is serving his first term in the state legislature from Calcasieu Parish. He is a former Lake Charles city councilman, a refinery worker and a union member.

His platform is based on the problems of Southwest Louisiana and a promise to work for their solution.

"I am opposed to rice allotments intended for Southwest Louisiana going to Arkansas or anywhere else," Lyons said. "I'll continue to work in Washington on projects to bring more fresh water for our sportsmen, our industry and our farmers, and I'll work with anybody in any way to settle the tidelands question to give Louisiana tens of millions of dollars to educate our young people and pay for capital improvements"

Lyons also promises to work to cut oil imports for the benefit of "all production people for more opportunities, more jobs and more benefits."

Lyons also promises "to do all I can to prevent Southeast Asia from becoming World War III. I'm for peace without appeasement."

Druggist Picou, 40, of Eunice says he would bring the attitude of a businessman and an independent candidate to Washington.

"I'm trying to be very realistic," Picou said, "and I believe government is big business and needs that approach. You can manufacture problems, but I'll just tackle them as they come along.

"This is a very complex district with heavy industry on one end and almost pure agriculture on the other. Coming from the country end I'll naturally lean toward agricultural problems, but I've told union audiences and everyone that I can't promote myself as an agricultural candidate or a union candidate. All I can promise is a reasonable attitude."

Mamou attorney Tate, 43, thinks Southwest Louisiana has great potential for industrial development. The 7th district borders both the Atchafalaya and Sabine Rivers—two vast water sources he firmly believes are going to waste.

"The area has definitely progressed," Tate said, "we're picking up again after a slight slump, but with our water supply, power and available labor we should be attracting more industry."

He said he would pursue the construction of locks making the Sabine navigable to the Lake Anacoco and Toledo Bend areas and work to destroy the floodway image of the Atchafalaya Valley.

"Why there hasn't been a flood there since 1927," Tate said. "It's no more a floodway than the area between Baton Rouge and New Orleans."

Tate said he would also follow Rep. Thompson's wildlife programs, try to get a bigger rice quota for Southwest Louisiana and have Arkansas rice exports shipped through the port of Lake Charles instead of Mobile, Ala.

Tyler, 33, lists his profession as a television newsman. He has severed connections with a Lake Charles television station twice to run for Congress as a conservative. After losing to Thompson by more than 9,000 votes last year he went to work for the state Legislature's Joint Committee on Un-American Activities as its Americanism director.

He says he is running to "give the people of the 7th district a choice—that was my purpose last time."

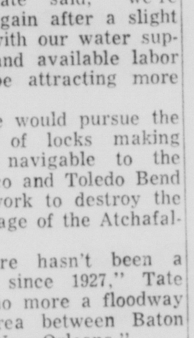

Tyler says the people of the district are becoming more and more concerned about the trend of national politics.

Reds Waiting In The Wing To Take Over In Dominican

EDITOR'S NOTE — "We must use every resource at our command to prevent the establishment of another Cuba in this hemisphere." That was President Johnson, speaking May 2 about his decision to send the Marines into the Dominican Republic. What is the situation today? Here is an analysis by a correspondent who has spent much of the last six years in the country.

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — The shooting has died down, but the Dominican people are still caught up in a flood of frustration fed by suspicion and wide spread feeling against the United States. Offstage, Communist elements seem to be waiting to take advantage of any openings they can find.

Legend says that five Dominicans plot a revolution, 150 fight it, 1,500 benefit from it and the other 3 million suffer from it.

With slight variations, that could be what happened here.

Revolution exploded in the Dominican Republic four months ago. U.S. troops came in, first to protect American lives, then avowedly to prevent a Communist takeover.

Peace Keeping

Later, peacekeeping troops were internationalized under the banner of the Organization of American states.

Today pro Communist elements in the rebel sector of this divided capital still provoke grave concern among Western and Latin American diplomats. Even some among the top level rebel officials now seem worried about left wing extremist control or influence in the rebel movement.

Some progress has been made in the search for a solution to the political crisis but prospects for a lasting settlement remain cloudy. The economy is in a disastrous state. Financial experts say that even if a provisional government were installed tomorrow, it would need at least $55 million between now and December just to cover expenses and other obligations besides the public and military payrolls.

The reconstruction task looks so complex that some feel the inter American peace forces may have to stay much longer than Dominicans want — perhaps all through 1966.

As a whole, Dominicans have had little faith in governments. Last April, in one of the infrequent lulls in the gunfire and bombings, a man stumbled out of the presidential palace with the richly upholstered chair used by many a Dominican president.

"I am taking it away so no one will ever sit in it again," the man shouted in his flight.

Distrust of presidents and governments is notable among younger people and in the expanding middle and professional classes. This feeling helped sow the seeds for upheaval.

Last April, a counter revolution erupted with the announced aim of restoring Bosch.

The revolt, shaped around a group of young officers, revealed the extent of fissures in the once monolithic armed forces with dictator Rafael Leonidas Trujillo had built to keep himself in power 31 years. Cracks appeared soon after the last of the Trujillo clan left four years ago. Lesser officers became dissatisfied because of repressive measures and the privileges and corruption of the traditional military ruling clique.

The April revolt revived deep resentments against the military, among people who indicated they felt cheated by the loss of their first constitutional government in decades.

Now Dominicans on either side of the conflict are blaming one another for the harm that befell their families in the fighting, estimated to have cost 1000-1,500 lives. Both sides tend to blame the United States for almost everything — apparently including the fact it kept Dominicans from killing each other in their own search for a "peaceful solution."

Rising anti-Yankeeism is a byproduct of the U.S. troop landings. Left wing extremism is thriving on this. Some Americans express fear a distorted sense of values could disrupt U.S. efforts to help a country desperately in need of help.

U.S. aid since the revolt started has passed $43 million, excluding $10 million monthly going into the economy as a result of dollar salaries to U.S. government officials and troops. The requirements ahead can be staggering.

U.S. banking sources say the financial situation is nearly hopeless. The National Bank of Reserves is bankrupt, with a debt to the state of $54 million. The National Sugar Corp., owing the Reserves Bank $22.7 million, has obligations totaling $70 million. World sugar prices are low and the corporation stands to lose $18 million more this year. Tightened credit threatens to leave the tobacco, sugar and coffee crops without financing.

The capital's division keeps it in a state of paralysis. The rebel stronghold is a 20 square block area downtown, hemmed in by the sea and the Ozama River on the south. On the north it runs into the barbed wire and steel of the 82nd Airborne Division manning the east-west supply corridor. On the west are Paraguayan, Honduran and Brazilian troops.

There are about 9,000 U. S. troops and 2,000 from Brazil, Costa Rica, Honduras, Nicaragua and Paraguay in the forces which control the international security zone, a buffer between rebel boundaries and the area controlled by the civilian military junta.

Sympathy for the rebels seems widespread throughout the country, perhaps less from support of personalities or ideologies than through antipathy to the military hierarchy and to corrupt political forces deemed responsible for the collapse of constitutional government.

Especially among the mass of less privileged Dominicans, the prevailing sentiment seems to be that the army had too heavy a hand on the helm in the past. This is largely what the fighting is about.

The rebels and many Dominicans sympathizing with them say the military has not been purged of corrupt influences. They demand it be reorganized. They clamor for removal of Gen. Elias Wessin y Wessin, controversial commander of the army's training center, and all top brass, including chiefs of staff whom the rebels accuse of "genocide" in the bombing and shelling of the capital April 26 27.

In Cuba, Fidel Castro destroyed the military as a step toward absolute control. Conscious of this, prominent Dominicans feel that military reforms must be undertaken with care. Hector Garcia Godoy, lawyer and diplomat who is provisional president designate, says some top level changes may be needed but the basic structure of the armed forces must not be altered.

The continued presence of U. S. forces seems certain to nourish fierce nationalist feeling. Rebels insist the intervention was injustified, that it was undertaken on the basis of an inaccurate diplomatic evaluation of the situation and was intended to preserve the ruling military clique.

Few foreigners on the scene at the time seriously questioned the wisdom of landing troops to prevent a bloodbath.

Rebel leaders acknowledged the presence of left wing extremists, whom they called hotheads, but asserted they were no problem. The United States, early in the upheaval, issued a list of alleged Communists in the rebellion, later revising it to 77 names which it said was checked out.

Even today, with some of the heat abating, it is difficult to find in the rebel zone even a handful of the scores of Marxists and Castroites easily recognizable in demonstrations of other times.

Recently, however, seemingly in direct ratio to the progress of peace talks, their influence has become more apparent in resistance to peace formulas. This can be seen in published statements of far left organizations such as the Chinese line Dominican Popular Movement, the Dominican Communist party and the Castroite 14th of June Movement.

Bosch is out of the picture now. His Dominican Revolutionary party, the largest political organization supporting the rebels, is non Communist. The groups seem much smaller. Although Bosch's party claims over all control in the rebel district, this is subject to dispute at least militarily.

A defector from the rebels in July said the far left was "beginning to dominate." Another said 14th of June leaders were openly asserting authority in their areas of the rebel zone.

U.S. Ambassador William Tapley Bennett Jr., who first reported Communist influence in the rebel movement, sticks to his guns. He says the Communists moved out of the spotlight after the first few days but now are back in the front row.

Pakistan Drives Indians To Line

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Troops on the Pakistani side of Kashmir have beaten back Indian forces at the Kashmir ceasefire line in the Uri sector after a four-hour artillery barrage, agency dispatches said Saturday.

The dispatches, quoting officials in the Pakistani Kashmir capital of Muzaffarabad, claimed a battalion-size Indian attack was decimated.

Natchez Paper Decries Bombing Of Negro's Car

NATCHEZ, Miss. (AP) — The Natchez Democrat said in a front page editorial by Jimmy Lambert, editor and publisher, "Natchez was duly shocked" by the bombing of civil rights leader George Metcalfe's car.

"There can be and are no reasons for such an attempt on the life of Metcalfe or any other person, whether white or colored," the editorial said.

"We regret, deplore and condemn this action and other violence and violations of the laws of Natchez, Mississippi and these United States.

"We in Natchez cannot, and will not, tolerate such action," the editorial said.

The editorial called on law officers at all levels "to spare no expense and leave no stone unturned to ascertain the person or persons responsible for the dastardly crime and bring them to justice."

The editorial praised the mayor and board of aldermen for posting the $2,000 reward and called on citizens to lend their cooperation.

Young Kennedy Cuts Leg Badly

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — Robert F. Kennedy Jr., 11, son of New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, was recovering Saturday in Cape Cod Hospital from a severe leg cut that required 100 stitches.

A family spokesman said Robert fell off the roof of a garage behind his father's home at the Kennedy compound early Friday evening. His leg pierced a garage window as he fell, the spokesman said. A tendon was cut the spokesman said.

Thai Planes Hit, Cambodian Says

PHON PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodia's chief of state, Prince Norodom Sihanouk, said Saturday two Thai Skyraider planes flew over the village of Pailin two days ago, and were hit by Cambodian antiaircraft guns.

He said the two planes were flying over the prince's own residence in the village when the antiaircraft defenses opened up. He said several witnesses reported the planes were hit and disappeared in the direction of Thailand.

Corporation To Aid College Here Expand

A non - profit corporation has been formed to assist Northeast Louisiana State College in acquiring land it will need for expansion over the next several years.

Formation of the corporation, the Northeast Louisiana Land Corporation, was announced by Northeast President George T. Walker and W. E. Whetstone, president of the Louisiana State Board of Education.

President of the corporation is G. L. Morgan, vice president is Jack Masur, and secretary-treasurer is Fred Fudickar Jr., all of Monroe.

Other members are Stanley Bagwell, Bernard W. Biedenharn, William R. Boles, Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard, J. C. Loftin, Fred Petty, T. H. Scott, George G. Weaks, and Harold Woods Sr., all of Monroe, and Harvey McDonald, West Monroe.

Registered agents of the corporation are Fudickar and Scott.

Dr. Walker and Whetstone hailed the formation of the corporation.

"We are greatly indebted to the civic leaders who have formed the Northeast Louisiana Land Corporation," said President Walker and Whetstone in a joint statement. "This corporation is in a position to make great contributions to the progress of the college. Northeast's increasing enrollment and services create the need for more land, and we appreciate the unselfish interest and assistance of these men."

The purpose of the corporation, according to its charter, is to "promote, foster, and afford opportunity for the Louisiana State Board of Education and Northeast Louisiana State College to acquire real estate in Ouachita Parish, Louisiana, for use in its education program.."

The corporation will purchase land as individual property owners in the vicinity of the college are interested in selling their properties at reasonable market prices and when there is an anticipated future need for the property by the college.

The State Board of Education has designated a committee to advise with the Land Corporation on parcels of land which will be needed by the college. Whetstone is chairman of the committee. Other members are Leon Gary, Houma, and Enoch T. Nix, Bossier City.

The members of the Land Corporation will serve without pay and will receive no profits from the land transactions.

On behalf of members of the newly organized corporation, President Morgan commended "most heartily the dedicated efforts and achievements of the Northeast faculty, administrative staff and student body."

He further stated that the men who formed the non - profit corporation were "inspired to do so because of their pride in Northeast Louisiana State College and their belief that it is one of the chief assets — educationally, culturally and economically — of northeast Louisiana."

Mountaineers Know Shy Native Climber

By RANGASWAMY SATAKOPAN

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Nawang Gombu is a shy little man. When strangers speak, a blush rushes across his smiling Mongolian features.

Undistinguished he may sound, but Nawang Gombu is likely to be famed in London, Tokyo, Berne — wherever mountaineers gather.

For this 33-year-old Indian, just 5-foot-3, is the only man to twice climb 29,028-foot Mt. Everest, the world's highest peak. Now he wants to do it again.

Gombu first stood atop Everest in 1963 with Jim Whittaker of the American mountaineering expedition. He did it again this year with Capt. A. S. Cheema of the Indian team.

Gombu is a Sherpa, a tough mountain man who makes his living braving injury or death to assist climbers from throughout the world to attempt peaks in India or Nepal.

"This time I want to do it from the western side, more difficult than the traditional south route," he says. "If someone can give me 300,000 rupees ($63,000) I can organize an expedition."

Nepal has closed the Himalayan range to mountaineers, under pressure from Communist China, but this doesn't discourage Gombu.

"I will wait until they open it again," he said.

Gombu, deputy director of the Indian Mountaineering Institute in Darjeeling, got into mountaineering through a combined thirst for adventure and communion with his Buddhist Gods.

His parents sent him to Tibet as a boy to study with monks in a lamasery located within sight of the snow-capped Himalayas.

"I wanted to climb them and be nearer God," says Gombu, "and I ran away to join the expeditions attempting dizzy heights.

"The next five years I was a high altitude loafer, wandering amidst the snows of the Himalayas. I felt at home nowhere else."

Swiss climbers noted the boy's ability to climb like a goat and they showed him the rudiments of professional climbing and taught him a little English.

When Gombu was 16 he won the Tiger Badge, conferred only on Sherpas who repeatedly carry heavy loads to the highest camp. He was the youngest ever to wear the proud symbol.

But the real motivation to become a great climber came in 1953 when his uncle, Tenzing Norgay, reached Everest's peak with Sir Edmund Hillary of New Zealand — the first time the mountain was conquered.

He Has Lots Of Names

Did you ever wonder how many records a law enforcement agency must keep in order to establish a file on the "clients?" Here is an insight into this problem at the Ouachita Parish sheriff's department.

Monroe Morning World
Sunday Features
Editorials — Spotlight — Sports
Monroe, La., August 29, 1965 1-B

By VERNON GUIDRY
World Staff Writer

Deputy Sheriff Warren Sievers rides herd over quite a bunch in the Ouachita Parish courthouse and the number grows bigger every year.

To date, there are about 30,000 inhabitants in Sievers' domain, the identification section of the sheriff's department.

"We have on file over 22,000 persons who have been arrested over the years and over 1,500 persons we have fingerprinted for business concerns. Add to this about 7,000 files sent in by the FBI and other agencies and you have about 30,000. We add about 2,700 each year. Of this number, 900 on the average are new faces, the rest are repeats," Sievers says.

No neophite at the job, Deputy Sievers has been in charge of the department since 1948. He received his training in the early 1940's with the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington.

"The identification section of the department in Ouachita Parish is set up just as the bureau's (FBI's) in Washington, only on a smaller scale of course."

Locally, the responsibilities of the section include "mugging" or photographing prisoners and fingerprinting them, and crime scene investigation including photography and latent — at the scene — fingerprints.

Every person who is jailed by the sheriff's department goes before Sievers' camera and ink roller — with two exceptions. Juvenile offenders and mental cases are exempted.

Each set of fingerprints and other information on an individual — fingerprints made for business firms are excluded from the regular files— is cross - indexed in three ways. First the individual is filed according to fingerprint classification, second by name and third by a number assigned at the time he is "printed and mugged."

Sent To Other Agencies

This filing process doesn't stop with the local files, however. A copy is sent to the Louisiana State Police in Baton Rouge and a second is dispatched to the FBI in Washington.

Special files are also kept to aid in identification. One such file is the single print. It contains cards on which only one finger is printed, 10 cards to a customer. This is employed for offenders in theft, armed robbery, sex crimes and violent crime cases as an extra aid. Also used in these and other cases where the offender may have been seen before, during or after the crime is the color photograph.

Another such aid is the nickname file. Into it go the nicknames of offenders that are sometimes bizzare and puzzling. One man in the file has the initials G. B. but called himself "C. B."

Information gathered by Sievers doesn't stop with fingerprints, pictures and nicknames, however. "The more information you can get, the better off you are," he says.

To this end, all pertinent facts are listed. There is the old stand - by of "tatooes and identifying marks" plus a few not so obvious wrinkles. The form that records this information has been revised four times, each time becoming more detailed. Weight and height are recorded, as is information about eyeglasses, dental work, shoe size, relatives, and whether the subject is right or left handed.

Aside from records of local arrests, the section also receives prints and photos from Louisiana and Texas state police, and from the FBI to swell the numbers. But there are methods to keep the steady flow of new files from pushing the section into the halls of the courthouse.

When a given offender has been in the files long enough for age at the time of arrest plus time on file to add up to 75, he is put in the obsolete file on the theory that his criminal career is over. When the subject has reached the age of 90, he is assumed dead and placed in another file. If a subject 75 or over, or 90 or over, is booked, the appropriate file gets scrutiny.

The local files have been used to identify bodies that otherwise would have gone nameless. They have also turned up violators wanted by other enforcement agencies. In one such incident, an escapee from a Florida jail was picked up by Ouachita Parish deputies and given the fingerprint treatment. A check of the files showed he was wanted. After admitting his escape, the man told local authorities he has been arrested 11 or 12 times but had never been fingerprinted, thus never found out.

In a drowning case handled by the section, the body was in an advanced state of decomposition and unidentifiable by usual means, so the skin of the hand was peeled from the body and fingerprints taken. They checked with a set in the files and the problem was solved.

Footprints, Too

But fingerprints aren't the only means of "nailing the criminal." In one instance, suspects were arrested for armed robbery but no fingerprints were available for a check. Not at a loss. Sievers "dusted" the bathroom floor of a motel where the robbers were known to have stayed and came up with footprints (patterns on the toes and ball of the foot are as distinctive as those on the tips of the fingers) that matched those of the suspect in custody.

Deputy Sievers prefers the fingerprint dust, not unlike talcum powder in appearance, to other methods of taking latent prints. Chemicals are available to do the same job but these, Sievers says, leave marks and stains whereas the dust doesn't. Prints thus taken are transferred to cards by tape.

But things weren't always so well organized and systematic, Sievers recalls.

"When I took over the identification department in 1948, records were only filed by name and the only pictures in the files were of offenders who had been sent to the state penitentiary. They were mugged there and the pictures sent back to the parish. It took 11 months to set up the system and from that time on, we have photographed each individual," Sievers says with justifiable pride as he looks over his section.

"In 1948, there were about 9,000 different files in the section and these, due to the filing system, weren't of much use. To make a detailed system like the one we have now practicle, it must be used to the fullest," he adds.

To utilize thousands of sets of fingerprints for identification, Sievers, like the FBI and most English - speaking nations, employs the Henry system of classification.

The system was originally devised by Britisher Sir E. R. Henry, head of the Bengal police force in colonial Indian and later the metropolitian London force. It uses patterns found on the fingertips — with all ten fingers taken as a unit — to classify prints.

The system divides print patterns into eight basic groups. These groups are reduced to five locally, representing the scope of a parish - sized department. The groups are the whorl, the plain arch, the tented arch, the radial loop and the ulna loop. With these groups and additional subgroups, Sievers estimates there are about 160 million classifications of types of prints.

Sold On Worth

Sievers is sold on the worth of the fingerprint system despite the contentions of some that the patterns may be changed or destroyed. He cites the fact that fingerprints are the only workable means of positive identification found to date.

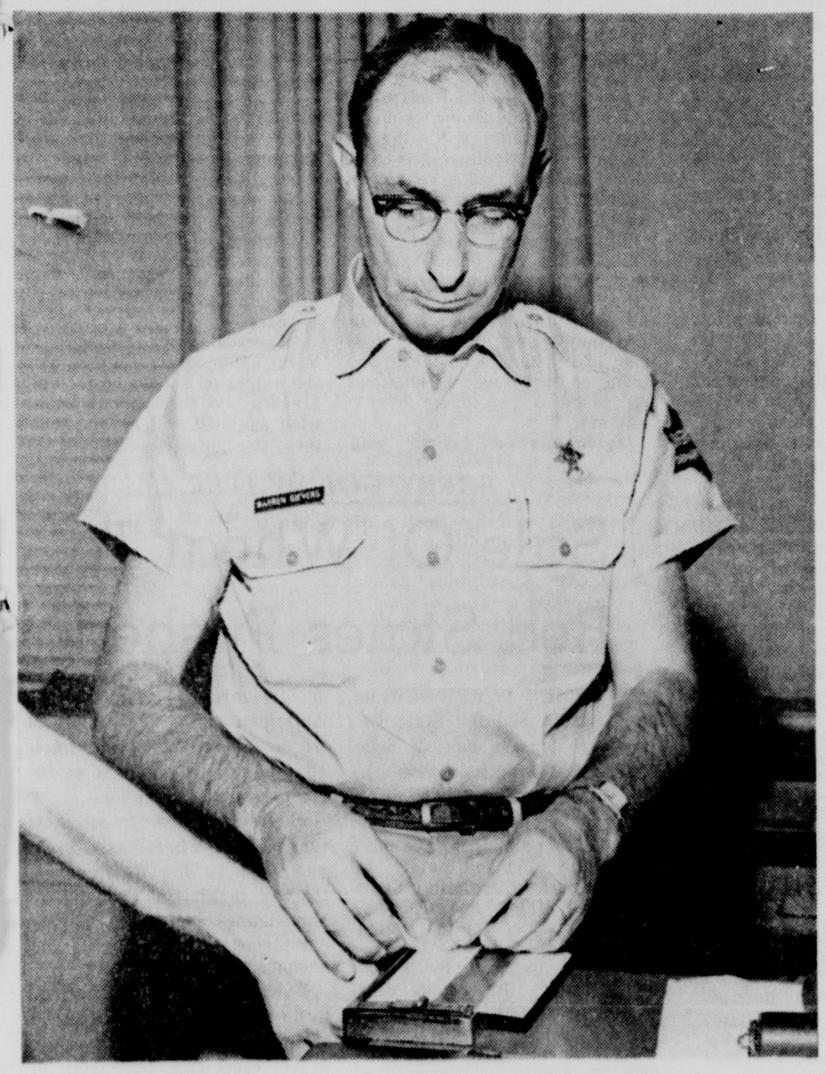

"Other means have been tried such as photos but they aren't as reliable as it might seem. Age and other factors can change appearance greatly. Fingerprints change very little, even in size, throughout a man's life."

Another system used in the past was a detailed set of measurements of the body, such as arm span, skull width and finger length. This too proved ineffective. New systems have been talked about, even identification by ears which are unique to the individual.

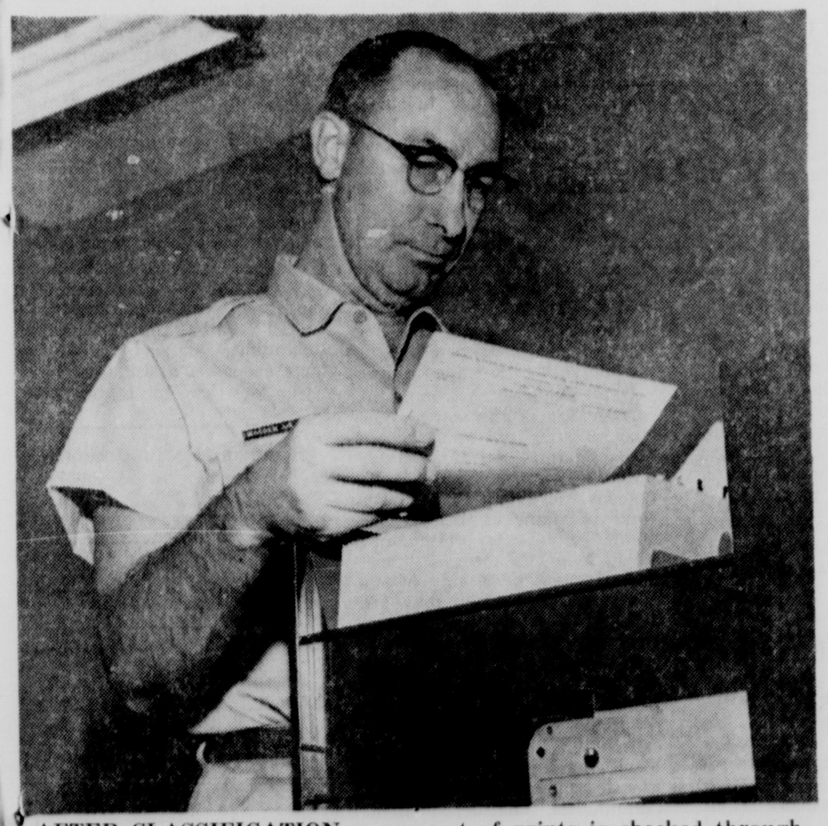

But for Siever's money, the fingerprint will be around for a long time.

AFTER THE PRINTS are taken, Sievers breaks out his magnifying glass and classifies the fingerprints according to the conformation of the various patterns. The deputy estimates that there are about 160 million types of classifications with the Henry system. (Staff Photos by John Fogleman)

THE INITIAL STEP in the identification procedure is of course fingerprinting. Here a "suspect" out of camera range extends an arm and Deputy Sievers illustrates the process of rolling the inked finger from one side to another to get a clear print. The prints are recorded on special cards which become a permanent part of the individual's file.

AFTER CLASSIFICATION, a new set of prints is checked through the files for a possible previous offense or a wanted bulletin. Information on an individual is filed in three ways to furnish a cross-reference. He (or she) is filed by name, by a number assigned at the time of arrest and thirdly by fingerprint classification.

The War In Viet Nam--- It't Just Another Day

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

VINH LONG, South Viet Nam (AP) — Just another day of war in the Mekong Delta.

The charts back at headquarters will show seven government troops wounded, one Viet Cong guerrilla killed, one captured and a Communist weapon and a box of enemy intelligence papers confiscated. Not much to make the strategists linger over their planning boards; hardly enough to rate a new pin on somebody's map.

But to the men who lived it and lived through it, it is another day to be struck off the calendar on the long road to going home. Another day of weariness and crying desperation, of chasing an elusive enemy.

This is the way war is in the delta, a land lush enough to feed much of Southeast Asia but now forced to import rice and other foodstuffs because the roads and canals can't be kept open.

This is the way this particular day went, no different from any other but numbing and maddening with what one American captain called its "periods of protracted boredom punctuated by moments of sheer terror."

Early in the pre-dawn darkness the 13th Regiment of the 9th Viet Nam Infantry Division moves out with their American advisers on a "sweep and destroy" mission in the rice paddies south of the little market town of Cai Son.

Crickets sing incessantly in the canals flanking the road. Life stirs faintly in a hamlet. A lamp is lit, a fire started, a baby squalls. The convoy rumbles ponderously on, headlights dimmed, soldiers sitting silently in their trucks, sullen commuters on a journey that seems to have no end.

From the doorway of every darkened grass hut, from the tiny portholes of houseboats docked along the canal, from the jalousied balconies of the old French-styled colonial houses, alert black eyes are staring out of impassive faces. How many of them are friendly?

This is Route 14, the main road south from Saigon along the delta. Along this same stretch of road, just a few weeks ago, 10 government soldiers were killed and 21 wounded when an armored troops carrier ran over a land mine triggered by a strand of fish net.

Along this same road a little over a month ago, Maj. Oscar Padgett, the senior adviser to the 13th Regiment, drove over a mine with the back wheels of his jeep. It left a crater 7 feet deep and 15 feet wide but the major, a handsome jaunty man from Madisonville, Tex., somehow escaped serious injury.

Up ahead, less than a mile, the night suddenly comes alive with flares lighting up the sky and slowly falling to earth on parachutes. Another outpost is under attack. C47s roar overhead, dropping the flares to show up the Viet Cong for the beleaguered watch tower and drive the attackers back into the mangrove swamps.

The convoy rumbles on, heedless of the battle that is going on.

But suddenly the long line grinds to a halt. The Viet Cong knows government troops are moving into the area and has left a calling card: a crude roadblock of felled trees and piled up mud. Sometimes mines and grenades are buried in such road blocks. The minesweepers arrive with their long-handled vacuum cleaners and find nothing. Just another harassing tactic, jut asnother reminder to the villagers huddling in their grass huts that the VC is brazen and unafraid.

Dawn on the delta is lovely, soft as a lady opening a pink parasol. The first delicate shafts silhouette two sampans moving silently along the wide, muddy river. The convoy turns left down a dirt road into the market place of Cai Son.

Today the market will be conducted at the edge of the road, just a few feet from where the 105mm howitzers are being rolled into position. The regimental command post will occupy the regular market enclosure, so the women with the baskets of vegetables and the pots of live eels and the big piles of mangoes and bananas squat in a long line along the barbed wre enclosure, while the signal boys go to work setting up the radio antenna, the maps and the lone typewriter table.

Vietnamese troops love the bureaucracy of war. They decorate the CP with enormous maps and charts on wooden tripods, as if readying the place for a sales meeting, and chatter away constantly on the radio and on the telephone.

"If you let them, they'd talk themselves to death," said Capt. Hal Spoons, of Ada, Oklahoma, the adviser to the operations officer.

Riflemen climb down from the trucks and wade knee deep into the rice paddies moving down the tree line at the edge of the fields to sweep an area 1,500 yards wide and about 10 miles long.

The artillery adviser, Capt. Ken Meiser from Shamokin, Pa., paves the way for them with an opening barrage. Vietnamese children pour out of the nearby school house to watch.

The sun grows hot and the day grows long. Huynh Ngoc Diep, the province chief, comes out and sits in one of the tubular chairs set up before the charts and keeps track of the operation.

Eighty per cent of the population in Vinh Long Province, Col. Diep says, is loyal to the government, but the other 20 per cent manage to be everywhere. It's easy when you're a guerrilla. Time is on your side, you can pick your targets.

The colonel, who was trained at Command and General Staff College at Leavenworth, Kan., chats amiably about a bus trip he once took from Kansas to California, but breaks off the small talk abruptly when the first casualty figures are put on the board. Two men have stepped on Chinese trip grenades, another has walked into a tiger trap: a sharpened spike concealed in a shallow pit.

The wounded are brought down the canal on SSB's — swimmer support boats — long fiberglass rafts powered by 40 horsepower outboard engines. They are laid under the sheds in the market place and Lt. Nguyen Van Tri, a doctor trained by the French, moves among them, dressing a wound here, probing for shock and concussion there.

IT IS DAYLIGHT, and the canal along a road in the Mekong Delta is just a traffic artery near the South Viet Nam market town of Cai Son. But in pre-dawn darkness, government troops and American advisors on a mission wonder whether eyes staring at them from houseboats are friendly or not. And the canals of the lush delta cannot be kept open, so rice must be imported. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

The Motel Ruling

A Mississippi motel owner the past week was forced by a federal court order to rent rooms to federal voting registrars. In addition, the federal occupants were permitted to do anything they so desired as far as remodeling the area rented.

Although, the Civil Service Commission announced toward the end of the week that the office would be moved, the ruling in itself was almost unbelievable. If anyone had any doubts about the turn of events in this nation toward dictatorship, this should have dispelled it.

With such a ruling on the books to serve as a model, federal authorities presumably could go to any city or area, demand space, apparently even in a private home, and obtain it through a court order.

The ruling emphasized very plainly what many already had known — there actually is no such thing as privacy or private ownership as this nation once knew it.

At one point during the week-long argument over the case, the owners of the motel had closed the business because the guests either checked out or declined to stay.

Under the court ruling, the government was to pay a total of $3,000 for the use of four units for a 60-day period. Shortly after the dicision was handed down, construction workers moved in and began cutting doors connecting the units without permission.

If this ruling is allowed to remain on the books — despite the fact the federal occupants moved — we all might as well throw in our hands.

Another Fantastic Ruling

Along with the ruling in the Prentiss, Mississippi, case several other recent opinions are sickening.

An example of this type of thing all up and down the line was a New Jersey appeals court which recently reversed the conviction of a man found guilty of possession of narcotics on the ground that he was under the influence of narcotics when he confessed the crime.

How unreasonable can a ruling become.

Not only did the court have to prove that the man was in possession and under the influence of narcotics to say that he could not be convicted of possessing narcotics, but it had to accept the substance of the man's testimony to rule that the testimony could not be used in court.

This, perhaps is the ultimate absurdity which can result from the trend toward leniency in our judicial process.

In their attempts to guarantee civil liberties, the courts have bent over backward to protect the rights of hardened criminals by making the task of prosecuting them more and more difficult. Haunted by the ghost of convicting an innocent man, they have been willing to allow the guilty to go free.

Perhaps this would be a price worth paying if it were not for the fact that liberalized criminal and judicial procedures have resulted in an incredibly high crime rate. At the same time they have resulted in making the task of protecting the rights and safety of the law-abiding public almost impossible.

But there is another major facet of this problem that deserves further comment: While the courts have tended to grant every possible protection and advantage to the most dangerous elements in our society — felons, murderers, subversives — they, and the administrative agencies of government, have occasionally violated the same rights and denied the same protection where the basically good, law-abiding citizen is concerned.

A suspect charged with murder is guaranteed due process of law. He cannot be required to testify against himself or to cooperate in any way with the prosecution. He is presumed innocent unless others can prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that he is guilty.

But the farmer who plants a few extra acres of crops, not to market but to feed his cattle, without getting an allotment or permit from the government, can be fined or have his farm seized by the government without due process. He is presumed guilty until he can prove his innocence and must take the government to court to prove his case.

The income taxpayer who runs into difficulties may be brought before a hearing, told to produce his financial records and required to prove his innocence at the pain of further assessments or penalties if he cannot satisfy his accusers.

Businessmen, state and local officials, foundations and a host of others are often subject to rather arbitrary quasi - judicial procedures — employed by the SEC, the NLRB, the FCC and other administrative agencies — which allow for far greater abuse and far less protection of constitutional rights than the courts have insisted upon granting to the hardened criminal.

And while the trend is to grant wider protection in criminal cases, it appears to be moving in the other direction where the basically law-abiding citizen is concerned.

Yemen Civil War

The United Arab Republic (U.A.R.) and Saudi Arabia have agreed to a formula for ending the civil war in Yemen, but it may not be easy to get the two sides to stop fighting.

A tangled web of tribal loyalties and blood feuds complicates the situation in this Red Sea nation on the southwest corner of the Arabian peninsula.

On paper, the agreement reached the past week at Jidda between U.A.R. President Gamal Abdel Nasser and King Faisal of Saudi Arabia looks good.

They have provided the muscle for the opposing sides and presumably should be able to bring the war to an end. However, things are never simple in Yemen, part of what used to be the ancient Kingdom of Sheba.

Under the agreement, Nasser will withdraw the 55,000 U.A.R. troops backing the republican regime, which seized power three years ago, and Saudi Arabia will stop supporting Royalist factions.

The agreement calls for a transitional government of Republican and Royalist officials to rule Yemen, pending a plebiscite to be held before Nov. 23, 1966.

One major difficulty may arise from Nasser's insistence that the Imam, or king, may not return to the capital of Sanaa in any capacity. The present Imam, Mohammad Al Badr, was toppled by an army coup in September, 1962, shortly after his father was assassinated.

The agreement is also understood to exclude the president of the republican government, Abdullah Al Salial, from the caretaker cabinet which will hold power until the plebiscite.

Russia has said little if anything about the situation. However, she has given Yemen help in building a jet airport just north of the capital and supplied the republican government with some military equipment. Moscow presumably will be watching carefully to see if the composition of the new government in Yemen, should it come to pass, offers her any increased opportunity for bolstering her influence and prestige there.

Anti-Poverty Plan

Monroe, Louisiana

To the Editor:

I would like to comment on the so-called Anti-Poverty Program and the article favoring said program that appeared in last Sunday's paper written by one T. O. Moses.

I will begin by saying that I (not we) have followed with admonition and dissatisfaction the manner in which the Ouachita Parish Police Jury and other elected public officials have been trying to rough shod this poverty boom double into Ouachita Parish.

As you know the American Labor Movement is not the only one that has been striving to banish poverty from our midst. There are millions of people who believe that the way to defeat poverty is to work and not accept the mailed fist of the "Feds" that invariably follows the federal handout.

If my memory serves me correct the A.F.L.,C.I.O. Trade and Labor Council went all the way with L.B.J. while a lop sided majority of the people in this area voted for Senator Goldwater.

Now comes a question. Could it be by the remotest possibility that a little back scratching deal is being carried out with our beloved President? Let's say like "you help push the Poverty Program and I will help repeal Section 14-B of the Taft Hartly Law."

Another question, I just wonder if T. O. Moses would like to clarify the pronoun "WE" that appeared so many times in his article. Does this "WE" mean that the rank and file members of the A.F.L. & C.I.O. Unions of this area have endorsed the Anti-Poverty Program, or were they even consulted before the endorsement was made?

Another question and I will direct this to any elected public official that has endorsed this program. Since part of their duty as a representative of the people is to keep them well informed on all issues, will this program be integrated?

Let's assume that the answer to the last question is yes. Is it possible that in our quest for the almighty dollar, that some of us have lost all sense of direction and are willing to cast aside moral principles that we know are right. Could we actually stand by and watch the mongrelization of innocent children in our parish?

In trying to sell this program Mr. Champ Baker is using the age old tactic of comparison by telling of the surrounding parishes that have "accepted" and it's like he says— "That's cash register money."

Mrs. A. M. Kane

Voter Registration

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

The Federal Registrars have arrived. This is the understatement of the year. They have no regard for "voter qualifications." The Negro doesn't have to be able to read, write or even to understand even the most basic of issues. And the Negroes are taking advantage of this by the hundreds.

And fellow citizens you had better wake up an' register if you are not already, and if you know of someone who is not registered keep at them, until they do register. If they can't read or write — well neither can these Negroes but they are being registered. Only at the Polls can we hope to hold on to the things we believe in. It's our only hope. Register now! We need your vote. We will have to have it in the future.

There is too much at stake to sit back with a "let the other fellow do it" attitude. There just aren't enough "other fellows."

If this is your attitude stay home and do nothing. But don't complain because things aren't as you would like them to be. You won't have the right to open your mouth.

But remember that there may come a day when you wouldn't be allowed to express an opinion if you had one. Then it would be too late.

Mrs. B. R. McClain

A Job To Do

(The following letter was written by a seaman from Monroe presently on duty on ship off Viet Nam. To local friends.)

To the Editor:

I'm writing this to inform you I was very glad to receive a letter from you, and I also appreciated the list of addresses of some of the other reservists on active duty.

As you recall I came into active duty as a seaman, but upon arrival at San Diego I changed my rate to a fireman. After about a week at San Diego I got transferred to the USS MIDWAY (CVA-41). On board MIDWAY I finally got into the rate I wanted and that was the Shipfitter rate. Since I plan on being a welder, I knew the Shipfitter rate would be most beneficial to me because it covers most fields of metal work. I worked hard when I came aboard MIDWAY and got recommended for the February E-4 exams. I then took the test and became 3rd Class Shipfitter on May 16th. Since making Petty Officer I have been able to advance further into my work. Making 3rd Class also gave me a nice pay raise, and somewhat easier duty.

In October we made a Mid-PAC cruise to Hawaii. We were gone about one month. Presently we are on a WESTPAC cruise that began March 6th. Since leaving the States we have visited ports in Hawaii, the Philippines, Japan and are presently scheduled to arrive in Hong Kong next month.

Our entire at-sea periods have been spent off the coast of Viet Nam in the Gulf of Tonkin. This cruise has been especially excruciating for the whole crew with sea periods of 40 to 45 days; presently we are on a 45 day sea period. Our pilots are continually bombing the Viet Cong day after day in an attempt to stop Communist aggression of South Viet Nam. We all grumble a little each day about different things, but deep down in our hearts we know we have a job that has to be done in order to prevent communist take over of other free countries like our own. I have read the paper daily and see where so many people are demonstrating about our actions over here. Personally, I think these people are idiots because it takes an idiot not to understand what the Communists are presently doing.

The ship is presently scheduled to arrive back in San Francisco sometime in November.

In closing I would like to thank you again for the addresses of my reserve friends and appreciate your every opportunity to keep me informed on the activities of our reserve unit.

Glimmer Of Truth

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

After an overwhelming volume of controversy, surmise, buck-passing and scapegoat naming, coupled with frantic but weak excuse-making about the Los Angeles-Chicago-Springfield rioting, by everyone involved from the President on down, a faint glimmer of truth is beginning to filter through the propaganda of our censored, slanted news media. Thank you for printing the Knox editorial cartoon in your August 20 issue. Such widespread disorder as we are experiencing could not be happening by simple coincidence. There must be centralized direction and planning behind most of it, and this type of operation bears almost undeniably the stamp of the Communists and their fellow-travelers.

Buried in the brainwashing slag of television, radio, most magazines and many newspapers, we still can find in a few magazines, on some editorial pages and even hidden in the news releases of the controllers a drop here and there of the hard basic metal of the truth. The real issue today is not "civil rights" or "integration" or "beatnikism" or "pacifism" or any other "cause" for which people demonstrate and rebel. The final fact remaining when all the dust has settled will be this: If the rebels, the demonstrators, the bleeding-hearts and the breast-pounders have overcome, the United States will be a Sino-Soviet satellite, and all its citizens will be enslaved. All liberties, civil and individual alike, will have perished.

John H. Filhiol

Police Brutality

West Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

Police brutality we hear this repeated over and over but we never hear anything of the brutality of those who accuse the police when innocent people get hurt and their property destroyed. The so-called Civil Rights are so designed as to agitate until someone gets hurt or killed then when the Police are called in they throw rocks and brick bats at them and resist arrest. When the Police have to use what ever method they have left to stop riots including night sticks and tear gas they claim police brutality.

They are trying to find the cause of the riots in Los Angeles. They have already been making excuses — the ninety-degree weather and unemployment. The Red Cross has moved in to provide food for them while California tomato growers are advertising here in the State of Louisiana for labor to harvest the tomato crop.

I think if the people investigating the Los Angeles riots will be honest if they place the blame where it justly belongs they will find in a large measure the Supreme Court decisions, the vote hungry politicians, and the Federal Government protecting these marchers in breaking local laws until they have come to the conclusion they can and do break laws at will and get away with it.

Omnibus Farm Bill Certain Of Passage

THERE IS EVERY prospect that the 1965 farm bill in its final form will differ in no important aspects from that passed by the House of Representatives.

Undoubtedly there will be the same sort of torrid debate in the Senate as there was in the House, and has been in both branches of Congress every time a major farm bill has been under consideration in the last 30 years. But the House version has the Johnson Administration stamp, even though the Administration acquiesced in some provisions it would rather not have had.

Many of those in the House, both urban and rural, who supported the legislation, did so with a lack of enthusiasm. Representative Harold D. Cooley, Democrat, North Carolina, Chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said that "the bill incorporates the successful features of past programs and draws on new proposals in a determined and comprehensive effort to meet the basic needs of farmers, consumers, and taxpayers." That was the most laudatory thing said about the bill in the House.

A quite different appraisal was that of Representative H. Allen Smith, Republican, California, that "it is hard to find any new approaches in this bill. It is a collection of the same tired formulas which have failed to solve the farm problems in the past."

Representative Maston O'Neal, Democrat, Georgia, said: "The bill has many good features and many bad ones." There was a sharp difference on which features constituted the good and which the bad.

ONE THING BOTH supporters and opponents of the bill agreed on: If any farmers have become rich on past programs, the percentage doing so has been very small.

Said Representative Paul B. Dague, Pennsylvania, ranking Republican member of the House Agriculture Committee:

"Ten years ago the farmer received 42 cents for every consumer dollar — today he receives only 37 cents, which is less than in the depression days of 1935. Retail food prices have increased 29 per cent in the past 16 years, while the net income of agriculture has gone down 29 per cent. Yet farm production and the number of consumers have risen."

Representative Graham Purcell, Democrat, Texas, argued that farm programs were really a consumer subsidy and not an agricultural subsidy. "There are indications that the free ride of consumers on the gravy train of increased agricultural efficiency is just about over," he said.

Representative Cooley said only a small proportion of the Nation's farmers receive a decent hourly wage, adding "the farmer in 1964 averaged about $1.05 per hour for providing this country with the abundance it enjoys. Industrial workers average $2.60 per hour." He said that farm debt had doubled since 1955.

THERE WERE OTHER figures showing that since the end of World War II the farm debt has more than quadrupled, going from $7,600,000,000 in 1946 to $36,800,000,000 in 1964.

In 1932, before the programs started the total number of farms was 6,687,000. In 1964 there were 3,472,000, or just a little more than half as many as in 1932.

Democrats shied away from estimates on the cost of the bill as it passed the House. Republicans estimated the cost at $4,500,000,000 per year — $18,000,000,000 in the 4 years extension which the House voted.

Representative Paul Findlay, Republican, Illinois, said: "The outlay to the taxpayer comes to two-thirds of the value of the entire wheat program. The taxpayer cost represents 22 per cent of the value of feed grains. The taxpayer cost comes to one-third of the value of the cotton crop produced in the United States."

There was a great deal of discussion in the House over the extension of the program for 4 years, instead of the 2 years originally recommended by the Administration.

"It is obvious to even the casual observer that the strategy of the majority party is to dispose of the farm program for the duration of this term of the Johnson Administration," said Representative Ralph Harvey, Republican, Indiana. "By extending this program for a majority of farm commodities of our Nation for 4 years—especially in its present form — we are committing ourselves to an expensive and ineffective policy. This policy could become so imbedded in our economic system as to defy eventual eradication."

Replying Representative Clair A. Callan, Democrat, Nebraska, said:

"May I tell you why this should be a 4-year bill? It is very well understood that most farmers like those in other industry, have to plan their work. What we are trying to do is to set up a program with some continuity so that farmers of America will have an idea of what kind of a program they are going to have for at least 4 years."

Representative Sidney R. Yates, Democrat, Illinois, said the extension should be for only 2 years "because nobody knows what the cost will be and what the crop surpluses will be."

Sale Of Wheat To Red States Pushed

PRESSURE IS BUILDING up in Congress and the State Department for the sale of huge amounts of American wheat to Communist countries. The drive is to make the deals as attractive as possible to the Soviet Union and ultimately to open the way for similar deals with Red China and Cuba.

One phase of the campaign attempts to wipe out the requirement imposed by President Kennedy that 50 per cent of all wheat sold to Communist bloc nations to be delivered in American - owned ships manned by American crews.

This is looked upon by proponents of the drive as a major stumbling bloc. As Sen. George McGovern (D-S. D.) said in a Senate speech supporting new deals:

"American farmers could market millions of bushels to eastern European nations and Russia — to say nothing of China — if we could somehow persuade the Department of Commerce and the maritime industry, including its labor force, to give up this '50 per cent or nothing' regulation."

Remember that even with the 50 per cent regulation there was strong opposition to President Kennedy's wheat deal on the ground that the entire advantage was with the Russians. After deducting subsidies paid to farmers and the shipping industry there was little or no economic advantage for the United States.

Today's opposition is more vocal because of the war in Viet Nam. Critics of the proposed deals claim that they would prove tremendously advantageous to the Communists while providing us with no economic advantage; that they would help bail the Communist countries out of a severe economic problem while they are actively assisting Red aggression in Southeast Asia.

Rep. Charles E. Chamberlain (R. - Mich.) summed up this feeling in a recent speech in the House. Referring to what he called "the campaign to sell huge quantities of subsidized American farm products to the Communists," he urged members of the House:

"GO OUT AND READ the news tickers, and you will find news that the Communists have shot down another of our planes today with the Russian mobile missile, losing another American pilot, the value of whose life cannot be estimated, and a plane valued at between $2 and $3 million.

"I find it difficult to reconcile the sale of wheat and grain and food to the Communists, thereby making it available to our enemies who are destroying our planes, killing our boys and encouraging aggression."

Much of the argument for the former wheat deal was pegged to the insistence that it would prove especially beneficial to the American shipping industry and its workers. If Sen. McGovern and his advocates are successful in wiping out the 50 per cent regulation, even that argument will go down the drain. What's more, a large part of the shipping business would go to foreign governments and further aggrave the U. S. balance of payments deficit.

We can expect the pressure group to make much of the fact that the Canadians will step into the gap if we don't sell wheat to the Communists. There will also be a lot of talk about "building bridges" to the Communist world via increased trade.

None of these arguments makes it worthwhile for the United States to provide the Communist nations with a huge economic assist at a time when they are out to bury us in Asia.

Sunday throught — Sin has many tools, but a lie is the handle which fits them all.

JOHNSON STORIES

There's always a lot of stories about Presidents. And Lyndon Johnson, although exceptional in many ways, is no exception to this rule. Here's the latest we've run across.

It says that LBJ was wandering around Mississippi, taking the pulse of public opinion, when he came upon an ancient Negro seated in a rocking chair on the front porch of an unpainted shack. The President asked the elderly Negro man whether he, as President, hadn't done a lot for the Negro people.

"See Proverbs 26:17," said the ancient Negro.

The Biblical quotation: "He that passeth by and meddleth with strife belonging not to him is like one that taketh a dog by the ears."

IT ALWAYS HAPPENS

And on the subject of strife, there was this guy the policeman helped up from in front of the bar. He was bruised and battered and the policeman asked him if he could describe the man who hit him.

"Oh, yes," replied the drunk, "that is what I was doing when he hit me."

A GOSSIP — and we have a lot of them in our town — is a woman who keeps a swivel tongue in her head.

AND JUST for kicks, a college man is one who gets up at 5 a.m. in the summer vacation to enjoy golf, swimming, etc., but can't make an 8 o'clock class in the school session.

RENEWS FAITH

Even in this day of trials and troubles, every once and a while we run into an item that sorta renews our faith in humanity and American individualism.

Take the case of the John Walkers, as passed on to us by the advertising executive Garland Shell.

The father and son are attending the pharmacy school at Northeast Louisiana State College, while Mrs. Walker is contributing to the cause while working as a secretary to French L. Smith, general manager of the Monroe Utilities Commission.

The father was engaged in a successful business in Jackson, Miss. After graduating from high school, the son, also named John, decided on pharmacy. Then the father decided he would take up that profession also. So he sold his business and both entered Northeast.

The father is scheduled to graduate in 1967, while son, John, will graduate in 1968. Then they plan to go into business together, possibly here.

CHEMICAL ANALYSIS

Element: Woman.

Symbol: Wo

Discoverer: First detected in pure form by Adam in the Garden of Eden.

Physical properties:

1. Boils at anything.
2. Freezes at nothing.
3. Melts when properly treated.
4. Very bitter if not used well.
5. Very unstable under pressure.

Chemical Properties:

1. Possesses great affinity for gold, silver, platinum, and precious stones.
2. Reacts violently if left alone.
3. Has ability on occasions to absorb great quantities of food.

Test: Turns green if placed beside better-looking specimen.

Uses: 1. Highly ornamental.

2. Useful as a catalyst in acceleration of low spirits.
3. Useful as an equalizer in the distribution of weath.
4. Probably the most effective income - reducing agent know to man.

Caution: Highly explosive in inexperienced hands.

This unique analysis was passed on by a friend who pleaded that his name not be disclosed under any circumstances. Frankly, we wouldn't even use this if the boss at our house wasn't out of town.

WHEN ONE door of happiness closes, another opens. But often we look so long at the closed door that we do not see the other which has been opened for us.

GOLF BALLS

Monroe Street commissioner Bill Rodriguez is on a hunt — for an unidentified person — unidentified so far — who was playing golf at a particular hour on a recent Sunday at the municipal course.

Seems the commissioner was trying to get a little rest when all at once he heard a big crash in another part of the house. At first he thought it might have been made by his wife, possibly dropping some dishes.

Deciding to check anyway, Commissioner Rodriguez walked into his living room and low and behold a golf ball was lying on the floor — where it had landed after crashing through a large glass window.

Incidentally, the owner of the ball may have it back by contacting the Commissioner at his office, or his home, 507 Park Avenue, which is located near the golf course.

MONEY

Workers earn it,
Spendthrifts burn it,
Bankers lend it,
Women spend it,
Forgers fake it,
Taxes take it,
Dying leave it,
Heirs receive it,
Thrifty save it,
Misers crave it,
Robbers seize it,
Rich increase it,
Gamblers lose it
With LBJ as president,
The U. S. needs it.

VOTING RIGHTS ACT

Have you — as a citizen — studied the New Voting Act? Admittedly, it is written in language hard to understand. But the message is there — loud and clear — particularly for the southern states that voted against President Johnson.

About the best commentary we've seen on it, is one written by Thurman Sensing, executive vice president of the Southern States Industrial Council, and a leading conservative thinker.

Here is what he writes about it:

Equal justice under the law has been a criterion of America's governmental system for generations. But this is precisely what is denied six southern states by the federal Voting Rights Act.

If there ever was class legislation, aimed at one small group of states in the Union, it is this legislation on registration and voting. The authors of the law reached into the air and picked out a formula by which they defined those states that were allegedly denying the opportunity to vote and register to some of their citizens. The fact that these states are the states that have shown the greatest political independence of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations is not coincidence. The law may be said to represent a direct attempt to smash the last pockets of resistance to Big Government in the United States. Mr. Johnson, in a cornball publicity-seeking move, went to the Capitol and signed the voting bill with a bust of Lincoln in the background. Perhaps millions of naive people will believe that this legislation proceeds from a desire for justice at the polls. But those with a clearer vision of the opportunism and ruthlessness now rampant in Washington know that the federal Voting Rights Act is aimed at completing the process of a One - Party— almost One - Man — regime in this country.

The federal courts long since have been packed by adherents of the super-state. Only recently, Mr. Johnson nominated for the Supreme Court his longtime political crony, Abe Fortas — the man who endeavored to have the Washington press conceal the fact that a sexual offender on the White House staff had been arrested.

Nevertheless, for the historical record, if nothing else, one may hope that some of the states will challenge the federal Voting Rights Act in the courts. The ground on which it should be challenged is that it does not provide equal application of the law, but singles out six states for special punitive measures. Indeed, to be specific, it provides that the authority of these states to conduct registration of voters be taken away from them in certain circumstances.

This is rigged law, and rigged justice. By any fair standard of what is constitutional, the federal Voting Rights Act is unconstitutional on its face. No one should expect that the Supreme Court, which regularly amends the Constitution by its high - handed decrees, will acknowledge that the new voter law is in violation of the U. S. Constitution. But times change and the mood of the citizenry alters, and a few years from now — or a decade hence — the public may become incensed at the voter law and demand its removal from the books. Under these circumstances, the citizens of a future time should have the benefit of the opinions of critics of the law today. They should know that the law was condemned by the constitutionalists in the year in which it was enacted.

In the meantime, the six affected states must live with the law as it is applied. That it will impose staggering difficulties for good government is the understatement of the year. It is likely that in these states every effort will be made to pack the voter rolls with every available herded voter, the only qualification being, it seems, that a voter can breathe and walk to the registration office. That this type of voter will lower the quality of government and representation is obvious. In some areas, it may result in a disastrous situation, with local portions of state government reverting to the near barbarous conditions prevailing during Reconstruction.

The federal Voting Rights Act was passed in a fit of political passion. It was conceived as a way of injuring the interests of six independent - minded states. It was the brainchild of administration politics and the masters of street demonstrations. American freedom suffered a setback when Lyndon Johnson affixed his name to the act and caused it to become law. The act must be overcome in the ultimate court of public opinion.

Twin Cities Week In Review

Money Matters Top Area Events

By ROBERT SIMONTON
World Staff Writer

When August finally grinds to a hot and exhausting halt, it seems to bring the termination of a number of things and turns thoughts to as many other things.

People begin to put aside thoughts of outings, vacations and leisure and turn their attention to the beginning of school, more active civic clubs and more concentrated effort on the job.

The community steps out of the "do nothing" attitude of summer into the atmosphere of a much livelier autumn.

A number of notable activities transpired in the Twin Cities during the final full week of August to herald the approach of a busy September.

Gemini 5 orbiting in space about the earth was of international consequences, but spending of money in large sums was enough to cause some orbiting on the local level.

Money Matter

Most notable event in the money matters category was the adoption of a record $3.7-million budget by the Monroe City Council. This represents a $106,940 increase over last year.

It is interesting to note that the largest appropriations in the budget are for areas in keeping with city progress. Since Monroe is definitely a city on the grow there is an understandable need for additional funds for improvements and expansions for the police department, fire department, sanitation and bus department. Other appropriations are for streets, salary increases and other city departments.

An appropriation for water pollution control was included in the budget for the first time. Many major cities include this type set-up in their governments and it is an excellent device for insuring purer water for the community.

Residents may complain about paying those monthly dual nuisance bills — water and electricity — but utilities account for the largest source of revenue in the city budget. Other major sources are fund taxes and general sanitation.

The budget is for the year beginning last April 30 through April 29, 1966.

Improve Power

Another matter involving a lot of money was the announcement that improvements to the city's electrical transmission system have been completed. This work was to the tune of $1,319,893.

Since this endeavor also concerns improvements which add to the welfare of the city, the amount involved is justifiable. The money went for a new 69,000 volt switchyard at the power plant on Park Ave., two new 69,000 volt transmission lines that loop the entire city, and a new 50,000 KVA sub-station in South Monroe, located at 18th and Hickory.

Also, six new 13,800 volt feeder lines were installed to carry power from the sub-station to the load areas in South Monroe. This will relieve the capacity of present feeders serving the North and East sides of the city.

Money to finance the new construction was from savings in bond monies, from operating revenues and renewal fund. The work was accomplished without increased cost to the users.

Final matter in the "big three" of money spending was the inauguration this past week of a $2,537,017 building program at Northeast Louisiana State.

Ground was broken on the site of a new men's dormitory to accommodate 432 on Bon Air Drive. Other buildings in the project include a women's residence hall to house 400 and a new dining hall.

And, certainly no one can object to the spending of this money when taking into consideration that the local college is one of the largest industries in the Twin Cities.

Research Fund

Another item in the realm of money concerns the Gulf South Research Institute. However, in this case, it is a matter not of spending money but, rather, securing money for a worthwhile proposal.

Business leaders in the Twin Cities and Fifth District joined the rest of the state to raise $1 million for the institute, which is a private, non-profit organization devoted to promoting Louisiana and attracting new industry to the state.

Here again, the money is for a worthy cause — improvements — and improvements to the state no matter on what scale or at what location should be considered improvements for the Twin Cities.

There were a number of events in the news during the week that could be listed under a general heading of "increases."

Perhaps the most notable increase for the Twin Cities was the addition of the latest shopping center. This was the Mid-City Plaza, which was opened formally on Wednesday.

Included in the complex are a complete Penney's department store, Woolworth variety store, The Famous Fabric Shop and The Fashion.

Increase of another nature was the one tabulated by federal registrars. It was announced that 2,544 persons, mostly Negroes, had been registered in Ouachita Parish since Friday a week ago.

The President's order to increase the draft will affect the local selective service board for the first time in September. In August, the board sends 21 for induction and 107 are scheduled for examination. In July, only 18 were sent for induction and only 91 examined. Instructions for September authorize the board to induct those available who were born prior to Dec. 31, 1945.

Gains Shown

Increases were also noted in such widely divergent matters as church memberships, marriages and cases of rabies.

A survey of churches in the Twin Cities showed most churches have increased their memberships during the past five years, mostly because of the growing population in the area.

Churches showing the most gains were those located in residential or suburban areas, while the downtown churches seemed to be suffering some on memberships.

Marriage licenses were higher this summer, compared to last summer. But, the person in charge of issuing the licenses does not believe the current conflict in Viet Nam is responsible.

This report was made before the President's decree that as of midnight Thursday a wedding ceremony would not prevent a call to the colors. Although a number of local residents might have attempted to beat the deadline and be deferred, it came no where near approaching the scope of the run on Las Vegas, Nev. Youngsters converged on that city by plane, train and hot rod to get before the preacher before the doors were closed on deferments of this nature.

The number of rabies cases in the 15-parish area served by the Monroe Regional Laboratory has more than doubled this year over the number reported in 1959.

There have been 146 confirmed cases of rabies in the area during the past six years. The number includes 104 diseased foxes, a rabid skunk, a rabid bat, three cats, five cows and 13 dogs. A substantial increase was noted in the incidence of bat rabies during the period.

Teachers Meet

An orientation program for new teachers in the Monroe City School System was held Friday. A workshop for all city teachers was scheduled for Monday and Tuesday.

Likewise, teachers of the Ouachita Parish School System were to get into the "swing of things" with a workshop slated for Monday and Tuesday.

A number of consultants in various fields of instruction were announced as participants for both the city and parish workshops.

In another school matter, Mrs. Ernie Riser, widow of the late Fred P. Riser Sr., was given the oath of office to complete the unexpired term of her late husband on the Ouachita Parish School Board. She was appointed to the post by Gov. McKeithen.

The World's Week In Focus

Step Ahead In Space

By John Cale

GEMINI 5, after a successful launching more than a week ago, developed troubles in the fuel cell that ran the space ship's electrical power and jet thruster systems.

This unexplained loss in pressure could have brought astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles (Pete) Conrad back to earth after less than 12 hours in orbit, and that was contemplated by officials at Houston's Manned Space Center.

BUT, AS WE understand it, unexplained malfunctions in space capsules — like those in home appliances — sometimes "patch themselves up" to a point where operations continue. After 24 hours in space, the cell built up sufficient pressure to assure some maneuvering of the spacecraft and leave enough for the all-important re-entry slowdown.

Over Monroe

WE TRACKED the Gemini 5 by eye over Monroe Monday evening. Satellite watching calls for a little extra skill in star gazing. If you look for a single object among all those stars you'll probably miss the satellite. Check the bright ones in pairs or groups of three or four. When the pattern changes shape, it's fairly easy to spot the "star" that is moving, and, of course, that's the spacecraft. On Monday, Gemini 5 appeared a trifle larger and brighter than the more prominent stars.

While astronaut Cooper was making his patterns at better than a hundred miles above the earth at a speed of 17,500 miles per hour, his 16-year-old daughter, Cam, continued flying lessons in a more nearly ground-bound situation.

Miss Cooper

Her training ship probably has a speed of around 130 miles an hour and a ceiling of two miles. And instead of a tricky oxygen and hydrogen fuel cell to cause her woes, one of her lessons last week was called off — just as are some baseball games — because of rain.

UPON LEARNING that the U.S. would make every effort to keep Gemini 5 in space for a full eight-day mission, the Russians took note of the propaganda value of such a situation. The comments in Tass, the official Russian news agency, were longer and more detailed than those in connection with any previous U.S. space flight.

The Soviets claimed the directors of the Gemini 5 program had "acted hastily" and "taken risks because they were given orders to beat the Soviet Union at any price."

New Marks

By Friday, the sixth day in orbit for Cooper and Conrad, the following records had been set:

—Longest single spaceflight: Astronauts Gordon Cooper and Charles Conrad passed the Soviet duration mark of 119 hours and 6 minutes at 9:06 a.m. EDT Thursday. The previous record was set by Valery Bykovsky in June, 1963.

—Most total man hours in space: The Gemini pilots moved U.S. space flight time past the Russian total of 507 hours 16 minutes at 1:48 p.m. EDT Thursday.

—Individual man-hours in space: Cooper, with 34 hours and 20 minutes in a Mercury solo flight, passed Bykovsky at 10:46 p.m. EDT Tuesday.

—Most manned spaceflights: The Gemini 5 launch gave the United States nine manned spaceflights compared to Russia's eight.

BUT THE SEEKING of new records was hardly the sole purpose of the program. The eight-day flight approximates the time required to make it from the earth to the moon and back. And the attempt to rendezvous with another space object — which was performed only in simulated fashion by the Gemini 5 crew — also fits that picture.

Seasonal Moods

ONE OF THE financial writers last week must have pegged the season from the "Farmers Almanac." Sam Dawson, business news analyst for the Associated Press, noted: "You don't have to look at the calendar. You can tell from glancing over the financial pages of your newspaper that the Dog Days are here again."

He went on to talk about the stock market taking a breather after its summer rally. He even went on to say that businessmen and consumers alike are paying more attention to plans for the last weekends of summer than to such complexities as whither the nation's economy may be heading.

IN OTHER WORDS, Dog Days is that time in late August when laziness and frustration join forces. The old timers used to say it was the time of year when snakes went blind and bit underwater — so the kids who wanted to go swimming were warned to stay out of the creek.

The financial writer went on to discuss how the Dog Days mood carried over into the nation's steel picture as a threatened strike hung over that industry. As a result, big steel, like the rest of us, appeared to be marking time.

President Johnson, by the way, tried to move this situation off dead center Thursday when he talked by phone to officials of the United Steelworkers union and steel industrial management.

Afterwards, a federal mediator, William E. Simkin, met with the two sides in the dispute.

WHATEVER HAPPENS in steel will have an impact. A strike at first would do little harm to the general economy because for months steel users have been piling up inventories. But a prolonged strike could topple the 4-year-old business boom. And whatever wage settlement is reached, and whatever price adjustments follow, will affect other industries.

In September and October the auto industry will be having a test of its own. At stake will be the continuing life of the precedent-setting sales boom. How the public greets the new models — with open check books or with indifference — will tell with the auto industry continues to support the general boom that started in 1961.

THE STOCK MARKET has managed to produce enough of a rally to satisfy the traditionalists who demand a price rise to make summer official. Market hesitancy in recent days may be just a consolidation of previous gains, or caution born of the steel uncertainty at home and Britain's financial crisis abroad. Or stock traders may be reacting like most everyone else to the last lazy days of summer.

IN THIS PART of the country, where cotton remains high on the list of our economic nobility —though the days are gone when it was the undisputed "king" — we are only beginning to feel the importance of "big steel."

But an obituary from Straubing, Germany, gives some insight into the fact that there's money in steel.

Mrs. Thyssen

Mrs. Amelie Thyssen, head of the Thyssen steel empire died on Wednesday at the family estate near Straubing. She was 87 and the widow of Fritz Thyssen, the German steel king who with Krupp and others had shaped the industrial Ruhr valley.

The industrial assets controlled by Mrs. Thyssen and her daughter — Countess Anita de Zichy of Buenos Aires, Argentina —are estimated at close to a billion dollars.

Surrounded

A LOOK AT THE Vietnamese war in relation to all of Southeast Asia shows that U. S. [illegible]ed South Viet Nam is in a three-way squeeze. North Viet Nam and Red China are to the North; neutralist Laos and Cambodia are to the West; Sukarno's Islands of Indonesia are to the South. Far across the South China Sea to the East are the Philippines. And in the "kettle" with South Viet Nam is the British-protected federation of Malaysia.

Marines took major action on the Van Tuong Peninsula late in the previous week and cleared that area of Viet Cong guerrillas. Then on Tuesday of this week, communist guerrillas replied with a 15-minute mortar attack on the Bien Hoa air base 12 miles north of Saigon.

The raid damaged 45 U. S. and South Vietnamese aircraft, but all were back in action within three days.

On Tuesday, a U. S. Marine transport airplane flying Marines back to Viet Nam from a week's leave in Hong Kong, crashed following takeoff in Hong Kong harbor. Thirteen servicemen survived the crash, but 58 died. It was the third major crash of planes taking troops en route to the war zone, and the disaster raised the toll to 249 servicemen who have died in such mishaps.

Commercial Sidelights

WHILE THE UNITED STATES tries to help defend a relatively small area of the free world against communist aggression in South Viet Nam, the British are having their troubles in that same area with Malaysia. Singapore separated from the British-protected Federation on August 9. Last week, there was a reported assassination attempt on Singapore's Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew.

Evidence pointed to a plot engineered in Sukarno's Indonesia. The attempt was successfully broken up and 21 persons were arrested. But if Sukarno is "exporting rebellion" in Southeast Asia as Castro is doing in the Caribbean area as well as in Central and South America, it will be only a matter of time until such action is pressed again.

INDONESIA WAS FORMERLY a Dutch colonial region that gained an uneasy independence in the years following World War II. A brief business note from Jakarta last week showed how old colonial ties are now working to the advantage of Sukarno — and, in all probability, against Holland, Britain, the United States and all of the free world.

The twin-engine turboprop planes will be used for commercial domestic flights. The contract also calls for construction of an aircraft assembly plant in Indonesia within three years.

THE NAME "FOKKER" will ring a bell with those who recall World War I dogfights, either firsthand or through movies and stories of the "Hell's Angels" era.

The late Anthony Fokker was a Dutch pioneer airplane designer who sold his services to the German Kaiser's air force in World War I. Among other horrors, he devised the first machine gun to fire through the propeller on one of his fighter planes, though he shot up several wooden airscrews in the process.

Blazing the trail for space pioneer Wernher von Braun, Fokker came to the United States after the war and built early commercial airliners and long range Atlantic-flying and polar exploration planes.

Unpredicable

FOR REASONS KNOWN only to the officials up and down the various communist echelons, an American and a French-Vietnamese interpreter were set free last week after four months of captivity.

Miss Emberger

Colette Emberger, 21, and Donald Charles Dawson, 28, who went on a search into Red-held territory for his brother, Lt. Daniel Dawson, both were taken prisoner by Viet Cong guerrillas. Lt. Dawson was reported missing following a flight last November 6.

The American said he learned nothing new as to the fate of his brother. Miss Emberger returned to her family.

From Washington

WHILE GOVERNOR Edmund G. Brown's blue ribbon commission was preparing to investigate the mid-August Negro rioting in Los Angeles, President Johnson appointed a federal team to look into the same matter.

No clash was anticipated as the governor's team, headed by former Central Intelligence Agency Chief John McCone went into action while a presidential fact-finding group headed by Deputy Attorney General Ramsey Clark was preparing to leave the capital for the West Coast.

Somehow, the paths of both groups seemed to lead along a pre-determined route, which made it plain that racial differences were to be played down in favor of sociological and economic factors.

Meanwhile, some California National Guard units were reportedly still on duty last week to keep order in the Watts community of Los Angeles even though rioting had presumably ceased for more than a week.

A HOUSE REPUBLICAN "white paper" — made public last week contended that Democratic administrations, not Republican, bear responsibility for the U. S. position in South Viet Nam.

Further, the 37-page report argued that some of President Johnson's campaign talk was aimed at making Barry Goldwater appear "trigger happy" but may have caused communists to miscalculate and accelerate the Vietnamese war.

IT WAS SERIOUS business for the House GOP leaders, who contend Johnson is trying to push them into the background and silence their attempts to criticize some of his policies and present their own.

As rebuttal to Johnson's statement that he is carrying out a commitment former President Dwight D. Eisenhower made to Viet Nam in 1954, the white paper said the original U.S. involvement had come under the Truman administration in 1950.

Johnson said he welcomed the views of leaders of both parties. "There will be times when we don't see everything alike," he said, "but that may contribute strength to our system."

In any case, he added, Communist North Viet Nam should not be misled. He said he would do everything possible to unite the nation behind U. S. fighting men in Viet Nam and "I think, generally speaking, the country is united behind them."

REPRESENTATIVE CLARENCE BROWN, Ohio's lieutenant governor at 26 and long a Republican power in the House, died Monday at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

The 72-year-old veteran congressman's death was attributed to uremic poisoning. Ailing for years, the big, gruff but friendly Brown entered the hospital for treatment of a kidney ailment last week.

He was campaign manager for Senator Robert A. Taft's bid for the GOP presidential nomination in 1948 and played a leading role for the Ohio senator in Taft's torrid second unsuccessful try for the party's top ticket spot in 1952 against Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Surrender Of Japanese Recalled 20 Years Later

EDITOR'S NOTE — Twenty years have elapsed since that famous scene on the deck of the Battleship Missouri in Tokyo Bay — Japan was surrendering, the bloodiest war in history was ending. Two who were present that day — a Japanese and an American — recall here the dramatic events of Sept. 2, 1945.

By TOSHIKAZU KASE
Written for Associated Press

It was a surprisingly cool day for September, with a hint of early frost in the air.

The members of our delegation, 11 in all, assembled at the chancellery of the prime minister at 4 a.m. to bid farewell to Prince Higashikuni, the premier, and the rest of the Cabinet. In a short and somber speech, the premier thanked us for executing an extremely painful duty and hoped it would, nevertheless, be carried out without any mishap.

Then he called for a toast of cold sake, which traditionally implies that those who depart may not come back alive. This, then, was indeed a farewell. For the imperial command to lay down arms dealt such a tremendous shock to the fighting services that there were recalcitrant troops who were itching to vent their indignation. It was quite possible that they might ambush us on our way to the surrender ceremony. I, for one, warned my wife of it on the preceding evening. In fact, I rather thought that if I fell a victim to violence, it was not entirely deplorable as it was a manifestation of our nation's patriotic fervor, completely misguided though it was. For, without patriotism a defeated nation will never rise again.

Such being the prevalent temperament, it was difficult to choose the delegates for the surrender ceremony. None came forward to undertake the onerous duty and not a few refused. For, in Japan, surrender was an act of dishonor. It was preferable to seek death.

After vain efforts to recruit elder statesmen, such as Prince Konoye, the choice finally fell upon Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu. When he was summoned to the presence of his majesty the emperor, Shigemitsu said that although the fact that Japan was forced to capitulate was most regrettable, it was, in his opinion, a disaster not altogether without blessings. What was most important was that the defeated nation should purge itself of the evils that caused its downfall.

I had worked closely for many years with Shigemitsu. Together, we did what we could to expedite the termination of hostilities to avert the possible annihilation of our people. So it was quite natural that I should accompany him on this mission.

The 20-odd miles' drive to Yokohama over ruined roads was uneventful. Scenes of our devastation met my eyes. There was hardly a house intact. Ruins were still smoldering and the air was thick with a deathly smell. This scene of desolation was, I thought, an eloquent warning of the final doom of the whole nation had we continued the struggle.

As we stood on the quarterdeck of the huge battleship, facing the representatives of victorious allies in various uniforms, we felt as if we were being subjected to the torture of pillory. Besides the ship's normal complement, there was a gallery of spectators which seemed numberless, crowding every inch of space: on the mast, the smokestacks, the gun turrets — everwhere. They all looked hostile and I felt their curious gaze sink into my body with a sharp physical pain. Never had I realized that staring eyes could hurt so much.

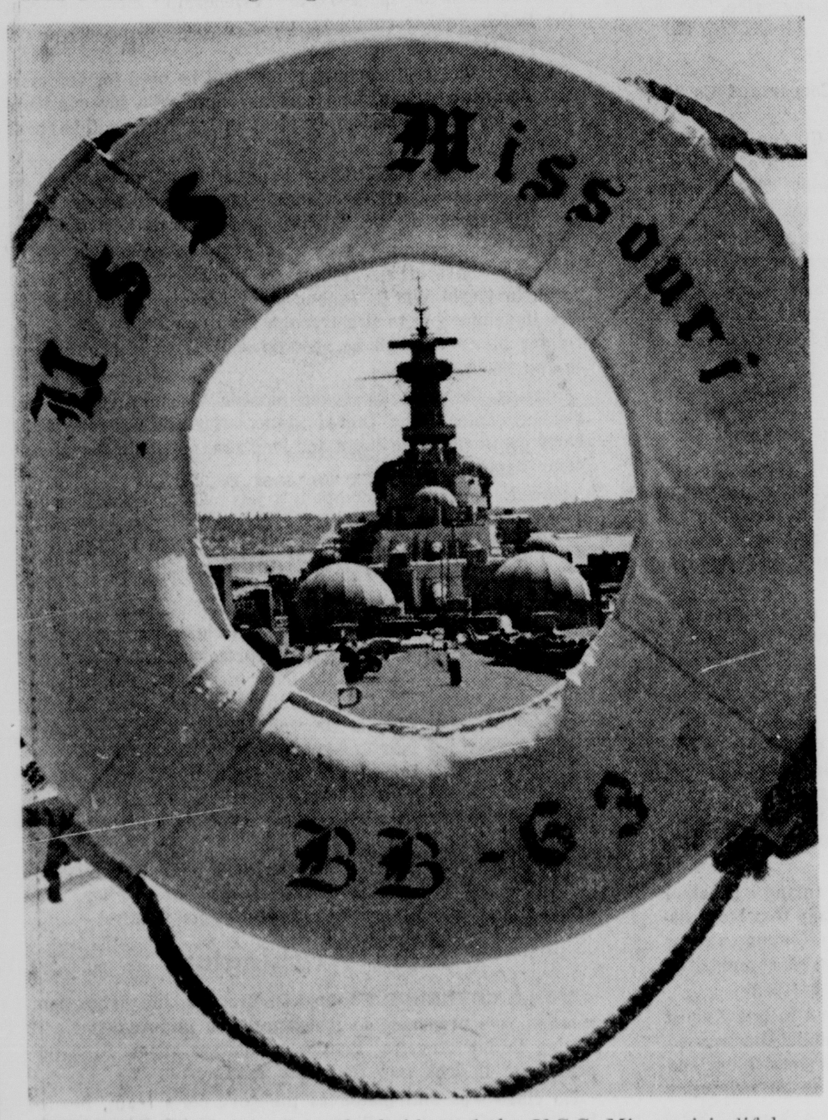

So, great was my relief when General MacArthur appeared and briskly walked to the microphone to deliver a speech. This speech I shall never forget. It was our understanding that there was to be no speech. Surprised, I became all ears, in order not to miss a single word. Then I saw a white paper tremble in the general's hand. That enhanced the sense of drama, emotion now overwhelming the rapt audience.

I believe that this day on the Missouri was the best day in the life of General MacArthur. He was the uncontested hero of a victorious war, announcing the verdict to the prostrate enemy. He could impose a humiliating penalty, if he desired.

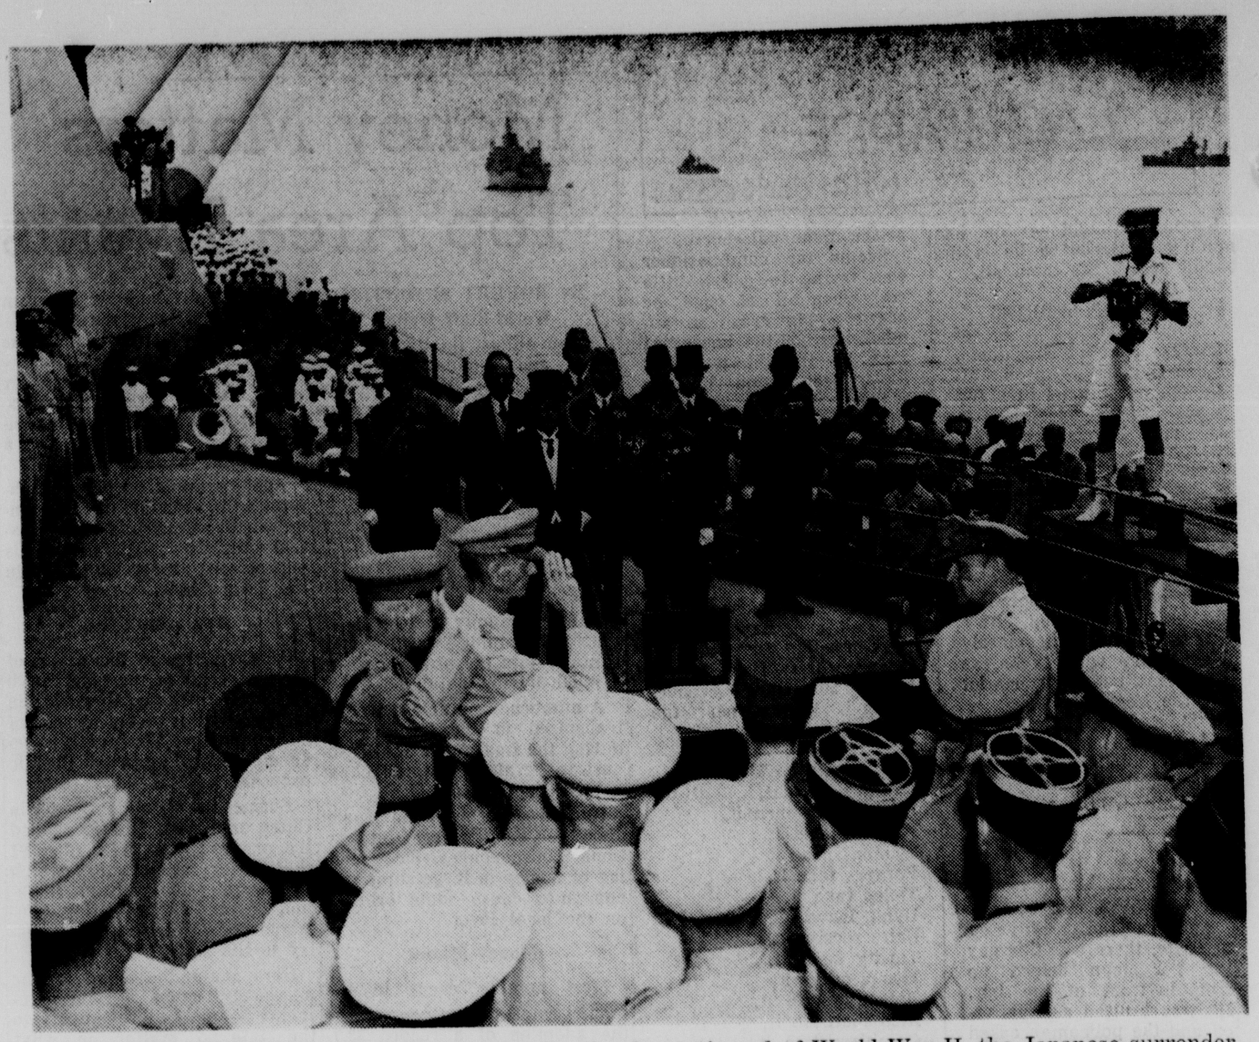

Actually, we of the Japanese delegation expected the worst humiliation at his hands. And yet he pleaded for freedom, tolerance and justice. This was such a surprise that I was thrilled beyond words, spellbound, thunderstruck. My immediate reaction was that Japan was saved.

After this speech, Shigemitsu was called upon to sign the instrument of surrender.

On our return voyage, an hour long, by destroyer to the port of Yokohama, I hurriedly put down my impressions of the ceremony, dwelling on the unique quality of the general's attitude. Shigemitsu took his note to the imperial palace. The emperor was visibly moved by the general's remarks, particularly by parts such as "if the talents of the Japanese race are turned into constructive channels, the country can lift itself from its present deplorable state into a position of dignity."

FRAMED BY A life ring, the bridge of the U.S.S. Missouri is lifeless as the Mighty Mo rides at anchor in the mothball fleet at Bremerton, Wash. But the powerful battleship on which the Japanese surrender ceremony was held 20 years ago, could be readied in about two months to serve again in an emergency, according to the commander of the reserve fleet of which she is a unit. THE BATTLESHIP Missouri is the setting for the dramatic end of World War II, the Japanese surrender ceremony in Tokyo Bay Sept. 2, 1945. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Supreme Commander of the Allied Powers (right foreground,) is seated at the table just before signing the surrender document. Saluting him are British Gen. A. E. Percival (left foreground) and American Lieut. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright (right foreground.) In the background is the Japanese delegation, headed by Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu. The photo was made by Max Desfor, Associated Press photographer with the wartime still picture pool. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

This denoted a certain amount of solicitude for the vanquished and revealed the magnanimity of the victorious warrior. As such, it was most inspiring. In my note, I raised the doubt whether it would have been possible for us, had we been victorious, to embrace the fallen enemy with similar magnanimity. Clearly, it would have been different.

Returning from the audience, Shigemitsu told me that the emperor had nodded with a sign in agreement. Indeed, this was the crux of the whole matter: an incalculable moral distance separated Japan from America.

The chief protagonists of that day are no longer alive. Shigemitsu passed away, then MacArthur. But they met once more at the general's residence in New York City some 10 years later. Shigemitsu was foreign minister again. I was there as ambassador to the United Nations. The general spoke enthusiastically of the spectacular recovery Japan had achieved in 10 years. Another 10 years have now gone by and we have meanwhile achieved what is commonly called the "miracle of Japan," regaining the status of a great nation in the international community. To a large extent, this is due to the towering vision of the general, who was the principal architect of the new Japan.

To us, therefore, Sept. 2, 1945, stands as a most memorable day in our history. It marks the end of military adventures, "the end of an endless journey to no end" which in turn signifies a fresh start on the road toward the goal of peaceful democracy.

By MURLIN SPENCER

ABOARD USS MISSOURI, BREMERTON, Wash. (AP) — The solemn words are what you remember most as you return to the "Mighty Mo" 20 years after the historic surrender ceremony.

You can still remember Gen. Douglas MacArthur, standing erect, his face stern, as he said: "It is my earnest hope, and indeed the hope of all mankind, that from this solemn occasion a better world shall emerge out of the blood and carnage of the past — a world founded upon faith and understanding — a world dedicated to the dignity of man and the fulfillment of his most cherished wish — for freedom, tolerance and justice."

You can still hear that voice warning that while in the past nations had resorted to war when they could not settle their disputes at the conference table, "the utter destructiveness of war now blots out this alternative." Obviously thinking of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, he said: "We have had our last chance."

Looking down on the huge 16-inch guns of the Missouri in their sealed turrets you wonder if once again they might pound shore installations in some far-away land.

"In an emergency, we could have her ready in about two months," says Capt. Gordon B. Williams, of Massilon, Ohio, commander of the Bremerton group, Pacific Reserve Fleet, of which the Missouri is a unit.

"Her 16-inch guns could be useful. They are still the most devastating thing in warfare, aside from atomic weapons."

No one lives aboard. The nine 16-inch guns lie flat, three abreast in their sealed turrets. Eighty fast-firing antiaircraft guns are encased in silver igloos to preserve them for future use.

The 45,000-ton ship looks to the green hills behind Bremerton. On one side is the light cruiser Pasadena, also part of the mothball fleet. On the other side, workmen are overhauling a huge carrier.

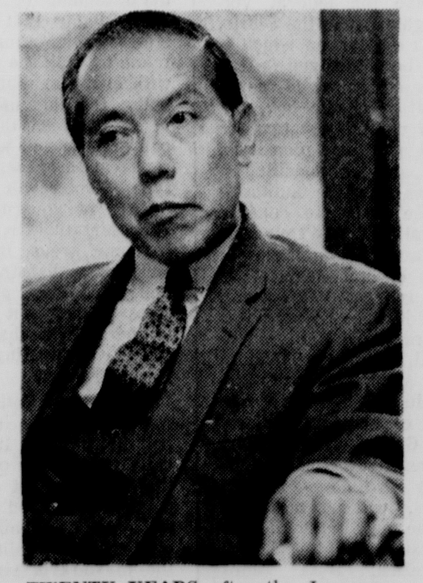

How different it was 20 years ago in Tokyo Bay. White-clad sailors hung from every vantage point, all looking down at the small gallery deck on the starboard side. Their attention was focused on a mess table covered with a green cloth.

The guns were pointed toward Tokyo. Long before the ceremony started at 9 a.m. the 91 generals and admirals from 10 nations gathered to watch. There were men whose names were known throughout the world — MacArthur, Fleet Adm. Chester Nimitz, Adm. William F. Halsey, Gen. Eichelberger, commander of the 8th Army; Kreuger, commander of the 6th Army; Wainwright, Percival and Stilwell and Admirals Turner, Towers and Sherman. Many of them are now dead.

The skies were overcast and it was cool, but the Americans wore their shirts open at the neck. No one carried arms, except the Russians, who wore holstered pistols, and the Chinese, who carried small ceremonial daggers.

Gen. MacArthur came aboard and walked swiftly to Adm. Halsey's quarters. At 8:55 a.m., the Japanese delegation came alongside in a whaleboat from the Missouri and climbed to the deck.

Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu had difficulty negotiating the ladder because of a wooden leg, the result of an assassination attempt before the war. With him was Gen. Yoshijiro Umezo, chief of staff of the Japanese army. Other military men and civilians accompanied them, but Shigemitsu and Umezo were to sign the surrender instrument.

TWENTY YEARS after the Japanese surrender, Toshikazu Kase (above) recalls the ceremony on the Missouri in Tokyo Bay. Then secretary to Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu, Kase was a member of the 11-man Japanese delegation. They returned with hope that Japan could be restored.

As the Japanese stood in front of the table, surrounded by the men who led the forces which overwhelmed them, Gen. MacArthur came out of Halsey's quarters and moved to the table on which were two copies of the instrument of surrender.

He wore a khaki shirt and khaki trousers, the crease as sharp as a knife, and the famous heavily braided cap.

As supreme commander of the Allied powers this was his greatest hour and he made the most of it. He was stern and erect, but the paper in his hand shook slightly as he spoke briefly but fervently of the world's hope for a lasting peace.

The Japanese stood with their heads slightly bowed. At MacArthur's invitation, Shigemitsu limped forward, leaning heavily on his cane. He removed a yellow glove from his right hand and signed both instruments. General Umezo followed to sign for the Japanese imperial general staff. Neither one spoke a word.

Probably the most dramatic moment came at this point when MacArthur, who had been standing, sat down at the table to sign for all the Allied powers.

He motioned to two men who had been standing behind him to step forward. They were Lt. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, who took over on Corregidor when MacArthur left and surrendered the American and Philippine forces to the Japanese, and British Gen. A. E. Percival, who had surrendered Singapore to the Japanese. Both were gaunt and tired, worn out from long months in Japanese prison camps.

MacArthur's hand shook slightly as he gripped the first of six pens he used to sign his name. He gave the first to Wainwright, the second to Percival.

It was all over in a few minutes, but again MacArthur expressed the hopes of all who watched:

"Let us pray that peace be now restored to the world, and that God will preserve it always."

The sun broke through the overcast and shone brightly as wave after wave of American bombers and fighters flew overhead.

These are the words and the events you remember as you stand on the deserted deck today.

You look down at the plaque set in the deck:

"Over this spot on 2 September 1945 the instrument of formal surrender to the Allied powers was signed, thus bringing to a close the Second World War."

You can only pray that the Missouri will remain always tied to the dock, the guns silent, and the only persons aboard her the children who come to see where a great war came to an end.

Casino Gamblers Take Note: Britain Has Become 'In' For Your Pleasure

By WILLIAM GLOVER

LONDON (AP) — The man who used to try to break the bank at Monte Carlo can come to England now. Casino gambling is "in."

Roulette, dice and the subtleties of chemin de fer and baccarat — once all illicit here — are a booming business from this metropolis to Glasgow, from Berkeley Square to a byway at Newcastle-on-Tyne.

"We're already putting a big dent in the action at such continental spot as Cannes, Deauville and Ostend," says an insider at one prosperous Knightsbridge spot.

By the estimate of individual entrepreneurs — the casinos so far have stubbornly refused to get together in any kind of trade association — London alone has about two dozen permanent clubs and several hundred transient centers catering to the sporting populace.

How many punters-on bettors there are is anyone's guess — the hardcore casino cohorts are somewhere between 1,500 and 6,000 in London — but the economic magnitude of all gaming activity is given in figures published recently by the Churches' Council on Gambling, a canonical research group.

It reported $2.5 billion lavished by players during 1964 on such diversions as horse races, football pools and assorted games of chance. That's an increase of $63 million from the previous year.

Impetus for the boom was providing by Parliament's Betting, Gaming and Lotteries Act which become the law of the land in 1961. It took a while longer to make the act's provisions fully felt.

Down amid the abstruse verbiage were two vital authorizations. One permitted establishment of public shops to take bets on races, a pasttime permissible previously only via legalized bookies. The other allowed formation of private clubs where members could dare the odds at green felt tables without interference.

"It's a question whether sponsors of the gambling law realized where the provision concerning private clubs would lead. But in combination with a loophole in the revenue laws which exempts the winnings of non-professional gamblers from income tax, the stipulation turned out to be an irresistible opportunity for alert promoters.

"More and more business executives are among our members," said Eric O. Tripp, a consultant to one flourishing center.

"You see, there isn't a great deal of incentive for business under all of today's regulations, and a good many businessmen seem to feel that gambling is the only way to make a quick bit. It's become the 'in' thing to do."

At the top of London's array are a half dozen clubs, with seniority going to Crockford's. This elegant spot was a gambling speakeasy long before legalization of such entertainment, for a distinguished clientele that included sizable chunks of both "Debrett's Peerage" and "Who's Who."

At $150 annual dues it remains the most expensive, with a long waiting list.

CURTAIN CALL

By JACQUE BIEGENWALD

This week try-outs are announced for the first play of the fall season, Little Theatre has a new director, and the membership drive is in full swing. So, things are beginning to hum at Strauss Playhouse.

First — try-outs. On Wednesday and Thursday evening, Sept. 1st and 2nd, at 7:30, executive director George Black will hear try-outs for "The Pleasure of His Company." He will need six adults for this play. The lead is a sophisticated, man of the world type. Also, a young couple in their early twenties, an older couple, one man for a grandfather, and a houseman.

Playscripts are available at the Library on 18th Street for anyone interested in reading up before hand. But, anyone, previously read or not, is welcome at try-outs.

Rehearsal will start within a few days after try-outs, and performances in mid-October.

George W. Black is our new executive director. A graduate of Tulane, he was assistant professor and director of dramatics at Spring Hill College in Mobile before accepting our offer. Besides wide directing experience, he has appeared in over 75 roles in amateur and professional productions. George is married and has two small daughters.

Even if you don't plan to try out for this play, come on out to the theater and meet George. It will be a good way for him to get to know those who are interested in our theater.

Membership prices are the same this year as last: $30.00 for patron, entitling the holder to two tickets to each performance; $7.50 for sustaining adult, one ticket to each performance; $5.00 for sustaining student, one ticket to each performance. These include the winter musical, "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." There is also the regular membership category; $2.50 for adult and $1.00 for students. These require additional tickets for each performance attended. The sustaining memberships are by far the best buy, and have the advantage of taking care of all monetary transactions at one time. With a sustaining membership, you merely make your seat reservations before each play, and don't have to be bothered with sending in ticket payments.

Membership chairman is Mrs. John D. Mullens, 323-6540 and patron chairman is Mrs. Robert D. Wood, 323-5323. Either of them will be happy to take your membership order, or give you more information.

Twin City Theater buffs will be interested in the news that Slade Brown is in the middle of producing not one, but two plays in New York right now. An import from London, "Entertaining Mr. Sloane," is scheduled to open at the Lyceum on Oct. 12.

The other production, a musical farce titled, "Hotel Passionato," will open off Broadway at the Phoenix, Oct. 17.

Remember the marvelous sound effects Chris worked up for last year's "Sunday in New York?" They were put onto a record for our show, and subsequently rented by the Portsmouth, Ohio, Little Theatre for their recent production of "Sunday." With the record's return this week came the report that their show was a smash hit and had to be held over. It's nice to think that we contributed in some measure to that successful run! Interestingly enough, they are doing "The Bad Seed" this year, as we are.

This is the last Curtain Call for your reporter. It has been a grand year and lots of fun, but the time has come for someone else to take over. I hope all my carefully nurtured "contacts" will switch their allegiance to the new reporter and give him as much time and help as you've given me.

Nigeria 'Mammies' Suspend Stoppage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

In the news from around the world:

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Nigeria's 5,000 "market mammies" and other small traders returned to their stalls in Lagos Saturday after a three-day shut down to protest higher tariffs on some imported goods.

But the stoppage was only suspended.

"We will resume our fight against the government very soon," traders' association spokesman V. I. Oparah said.

Riot police clashed with demonstrating merchants and their supporters Wednesday after higher tariffs were introduced to help Nigeria's unfavorable balance of trade.

MOSCOW (AP) — The United States rejected Saturday a Soviet newspaper charge that a guide at a U.S. architecture exhibit is a former German spy. A U.S. note to the Soviet foreign ministry also protested what it called the illegal detention of the U.S. citizen by Soviet officials in Minsk.

The American George Nipanich of New York City, was questioned by Soviet officials Thursday night. The Soviet newspaper Izvestia charged Friday that an inmate of a World War II prison camp had identified Nipanich as a man who worked for the Germans in Warsaw, Poland, during World War II and had recruited Soviet prisoners to act as subversive agents behind the lines.

Nipanich was returned to Moscow from Minsk by the U.S. embassy. The architectural exhibit, part of the U.S.-Soviet cultural exchange program, closed on schedule in Minsk and is to open in Moscow Sept. 17.

OSLO Norway (AP) — The cost of world armaments has soared to $180 billion a year, according to a new survey in Oslo Saturday at a conference on the economic aspects of disarmament.

The new figure was 50 per cent higher than a U.N. estimate of $120 billion in 1962. It covers weapons procurement, military research and development and other military activity.

The report noted that the United States and Soviet Union account for more than four-fifths of the world's military spending.

It also said defense spending of less developed nations exceeds what they get from developed nations for economic aid.

KUCHING, Malaysian Borneo (AP) — Terrorists, said to be Chinese Communists, struck in the heart of the Malaysian Borneo capital of Kuching late Friday, exploding two grenades in an open air market. Five persons, including three British soldiers, were wounded.

Officials blamed members of the Clandestine Communist Organization, an outlawed Chinese-led movement that has linked itself with Indonesia's anti-Malaysia guerrilla campaign.

Police said the grenades were of Indonesian origin.

DYLAN THOMAS' SCRIPT

LONDON (AP) — British actress Susannah York, who recently completed work with Stanley Baker on "Sands of the Kalahari," has signed to make "The Doctor and the Devil." The movie, based on the only film script written by the late Dylan Thomas, tells the story of a group of bodysnatchers in Edinburgh in the 10th Century. Producer Nick Ray will make the movie this autumn in Yugoslavia.

Pennel Winner In Budapest

UMPIRE ED SUDOL gives the safe signal as Ron Fairly of the Los Angeles Dodgers scores one of seven runs scored against the Phillies in the first inning Saturday night at Philadelphia. The play began with Dick Tracewski hitting a grounder to Phillies third baseman Richie Allen who fired ball to catcher Clay Dalrymple in an effort to get Fairly who scored from third base. ## U.S. Basketballers Beat Russia, 71-60

BUDAPEST (AP) — America's powerful basketball team downed Russia again in their gold medal showdown Saturday, while John Pennel's victory in the pole vault brightened a disappointing show by U.S. track stars in the World University Games.

Pennel's first and the basketball victory pushed the U.S. gold medal total to 14, even with Hungary. Russia cashed in handsomely with five golds, four in track and one in women's basketball, for a total of 11 with one day to go in these 10-day student Olympics.

America made it eight straight for an undefeated record in basketball, beating Russia 71-60 in the final. The issue never was really in doubt, but the Soviet team was much more poised and effective than it was Thursday, when the U.S. squad rolled over the Russians 81-38.

Led by Lou Hudson of Minnesota, the U.S. piled up a 42-25 lead in the rough first half. The Russians pulled to within 10 points in the second half, but didn't threaten seriously.

Many personal fouls were called, and at one point Vitas Sazpalis shoved Hudson into the iron goalpost and was reprimanded by the referee. The American was not hurt.

"It was a big letdown for us after beating them the way we did before," said Coach Johnny Kundla. "It was hard to get excited over this one."

Sprint ace George Anderson of Baton Rouge, La., — a bitter loser — was upset for the second time and Ron Whitney of Glendale, Calif., ran a distant third in the 400-meter hurdles.

Pennel, from Miami, cleared 16-5 in gaining a measure of revenge against Gennadi Bliznetsov. The Soviet vaulter won the event in the U.S.-Russia meet early this month, with Pennel third.

After doing 16-5 on his third and final leap, Pennel had the bar raised to 17-4¾, three-quarters of an inch over American Fred Hansen's world record, but failed his three attempts at that height.

Bliznetsov was second at 16-1, followed by Igor Feld of Russia at 15-9.

Anderson complained strongly after being edged by Edvin Ozolin of Russia in the 200-meter dash. Both were clocked in 21 seconds.

"I am tired of being given the same time as the winner then told I finished second," said the 22-year-old student from Southern University. "I know full well I won that 200. I felt the tape tight on my neck."

Hideo Iljima, a lightly regarded Japanese, upset Anderson in the 100 Thursday, with both hitting 10.1.

"After the 100, I asked to see the photo of the finish but was told by an official it was impossible," Anderson said. "That galls me. I don't mind being beaten. But I reckon I have the right to see the photo."

Whitney, who said he "was too tired to race," finished in the hurdles behind Roberto Frinolli of Italy and Robert Poirier of France. It was a runaway for Frinolli, timed in 50.5 to 50. 7 for Poirier. Whitney was 51.1.

Princeton's renowned Bill Bradley was top basketball scorer with 20 points and Hudson added 19. As usual, the crowd of 2,500 was behind the Americans and against the Russians. There were 37 personals called in the game, played in the chilly outdoor arena.

After a morning of bright sunshine promised decent weather for a change, it again turned cold, rainy and windy. Only 3,000 spectators watched the track program in the 95,000-seat People's Stadium.

Russian track winners in addition to Ozolin were Igor Ter-ovanesyan with 26-10½ in the broad jump; world record holder Tamara Press with 60-1 in the women's shot put, and Tatania Scselkanova in the women's five-event pentathlon. The Soviet women's basketball team defeated Bulgaria 68-46 in their final.

Polish sprinting sensation Irina Kirszenstein won her second gold medal, taking the women's 200 meters with a time of 23.5. Hungary's Gyula Zsivotsky won the men's hammer throw at 222-3, and the Hungarians picked up their 14th gold medal in the sabre team fencing, beating Russia 8-6 in the final.

Ter-Ovanesyan won the broad jump over Olympic champion Lynn Davies of Britain, who did 25-10¾.

The United States entered only 40 athletes in the eight-sport competition among 30 nations. There were only 11 American men in track and field, none in the broad jump or hammer throw, and no U.S. entrants in women's track.

Willie Davenport of Warren, Ohio, qualified for the 110-meter hurdles on today's concluding program, and a makeshift U.S. team gained the 1,600-meter relay final. The quartet includes Whitney, decathlon champion Bill Tommey of Laguna Beach, Calif., George Germann of Port Crane, N.Y., and Lynn Saunders of Amarillo, Tex.

There are no Americans in today's 1,500-meter run and triple jump.

TOM ROLFE, with jockey Willy Shoemaker up, and living up to expectations, leads the field (center horse) across the finish line in the $100,000 Arlington Classic, but only beats Royal Gunner (at rail) by neck as Sum Up finishes third, next to Rolfe and behind. (AP Wirephoto)

Dodgers Rout Phillies With Big First Frame

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National League leading Los Angeles Dodgers clubbed five hits and stole five bases in a seven-run first inning outburst and went on to an 8-4 victory over Philadelphia Saturday night.

The victory kept the Dodgers' lead at 1½ games as Cincinnati moved into second place with San Francisco and Milwaukee dropping 2½ behind.

The Dodgers routed an old nemesis in lefty Chris Short as they pinned a fifth straight defeat — seven in eight games — on the faltering Phillies. Short had defeated Los Angeles seven straight times since June, 1964, and was 5-0 against them this season.

Before the Dodgers nailed it, however, Manager Walt Alston called on 21-game winner Sandy Koufax in the ninth inning to get the final three outs. It was Koufax' first relief appearance of the season.

Maury Wills, the first of 11 batters in the 40-minute inning, opened the game with a single. Jim Gilliam walked and then both advanced on a double steal — Wills' 81st of the season and first in seven games.

Wes Parker singled, scoring Wills, and Lou Johnson was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Gilliam scored and Parker and Johnson advanced on a wild pitch. Ron Fairly then doubled home two runs, and after Jeff Torborg struck out, Willie Davis beat out an infield hit that finished Short.

Fairly scored on a fielder's choice play, Davis going to second as Ed Roebuck took over the pitching for the Phillies. Davis and Tracewski engineered a double steal, and after pitcher John Purdin struck out, Wills singled home the final two runs.

The Phillies' relief pitching contained the Dodgers the rest of the way, and a two-run homer by John Callison, a solo homer by Tony Gonzalez, a single by Dick Stuart, infield out and passed ball accounted for four Philadelphia runs.

Taliaferro Puts Petro In Jets, Sparks 17-0 Win

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Mike Taliaferro led the New York Jets to a 17-0 victory over the Boston Patriots Saturday night in an American Football League exhibition game.

Taliaferro, who took over from rookie Joe Namath in the second half, directed the Jets to a pair of touchdowns before turning the job over to another rookie, John Huarte, in the final quarter.

The Jets scored on a field goal in the first half to take a 3-0 halftime lead. With Taliaferro at the helm, the Jets seemed to perk up after the second half kickoff. New York scored touchdowns on drives of 65 and 49 yards. Taliaferro set the stage for the first one with a third-down, 27-yard pass to fullback Mark Smolinski.

Namath played the entire first half but made little headway against the Patriots. He completed only two of 13 passes for 35 yards. In several instances, his aim was accurate but prospective receivers couldn't hang on to the ball.

Huarte played only nine minutes of the final quarter and had moved the Jets to the one-yard line when time ran out.

Schott Breaks Nose During Grid Practice

Robbie Schott, slot back on the St. Frederick Warriors football team, received a broken nose in an intra-squad scrimmage Saturday and underwent surgery at St. Francis Hospital.

The injury will probably keep Schott out of action for about a month, said Dan McClure athletic director and football coach at the school.

Glen Glass Has Big Day, Sparks Eagles' Victory

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Flanker back Glen Glass scored a touchdown and set up a field goal with two long pass receptions in the second period Saturday as the Philadelphia Eagles crushed the New York Giants, 34-13, in a National Football League exhibition.

The Eagle' defense also played a big part, easily containing New York's offense and intercepting three second-period passes that led to a touchdown and field goal that helped give Philadelphia a 24-3 halftime lead.

Timmy Brown skirted left end for six yards midway through the first period and the Giants closed to 7-3 on Andy Stynchula's 18-yard field goal before Glass took over. He took a pass from Snead, and completed a 65-yard scoring play.

Pete Bethard Sparks Chiefs Past Buffalo

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Pete Beathard, a sophomore pro, gave Kansas City its first touchdown in two exhibtion games while directing the Chiefs to an 18-16 victory over Buffalo here Saturday night.

Tommy Brooker's four field goals, all in the first half, kept the Chiefs in contention until Beathard bucked across from inches out in the third period, ending a 49-yard drive.

Kansas City scored first on Brooker's 33-yard field goal but Pete Gogolak evened it three minutes later from 32 yards out. Gogolak booted another field goal in the second period, shortly before Brooker's longest a 47-yarder.

Buffalo's Charley Warner made two 55-yard kickoff returns to get the Bills in scoring position.

Fullback Mack Hill ripped 60 yards in 16 trips for the Chiefs.

Beathard hit 18 of 33 passes for 161 yards and rushed for 26 more. Regular quarterback Len Dawson was held out because of an injury.

Peddy Has First Round Lead With 73 In Twin City

Heavy rain hampered the scores Saturday as Wayne Peddy fired a one-over-par 73 over the Charmingdale course to take a four stroke lead going into the second round of the Twin City Open Invitational golf tournament.

Hoyt Highfil made the turn leading all players but finished in a tie for second with Gene Adams. Both shot 76's in the opening round.

The final round will be played today with all players going off the tee at 1 p.m.

New York Mets Get Shutout To Top Giants, 3-0

NEW YORK (AP) — Galen Cisco and Al Jackson collaborated on a six-hitter and Roy McMillan drove in two runs with a pair of singles, leading the New York Mets to a 3-0 victory over San Francisco Saturday night that handed the Giants their fifth loss in the last six games.

The defeat dropped the Giants into third place, 2½ games behind the National League leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

The 10th-place Mets now have won seven of their last nine games.

Cisco, making his first start in two weeks, reinjured his ailing shoulder after scattering five hits over the 5 2-3 innings. Jackson came on, allowed only one hit the rest of the way, and struck out six while preserving Cosco's fourth victory against eight losses.

Ron Swoboda triggered both Met rallies against Bob Shaw, now 14-8, with inning opening singles in the second and sixth.

In the second, John Stephenson followed Swoboda's hit with another single and then McMillan drove in the first run of the game. Cisco sacrificed and the second run scored as Ron Hunt grounded out.

In the sixth, Swoboda proceeded to steal second after his hit and Stephenson beat out a bunt that moved Swoboda to third. Swobada jogged home as McMillan lined a single to center.

Mays singled with two out in the sixth. Cisco then uncorked a wild pitch, apparently reinjuring his shoulder, and Jackson came on and ended the inning by striking out Willie McCovey.

Vikings Weather Redskins Storm To Register Win

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings weathered a late offense mustered by Washington quarterback sub Dick Shiner and beat the Redskins 20-16 Saturday night for their third straight National Football League exhibition victory.

After starter Sonny Jurgensen was unable to solve the Viking defense for a touchdown, Shiner came on to spark a 13-play, 65-yard scoring drive in the fourth period.

He completed four passes to rookie end Jerry Smith, the last for a first down on the one. Two plays later Pervis Atkins crashed over for the score.

In the final two minutes Shiner, passing to Angelo Coia and Bobby Mitchell, moved the Skins to a first down on the 23. After three passes failed, Shiner was thrown back on the 36 by Bob Taylor and the Vikings rode out the clock.

Minnesota rookie Dave Osborn scored on a 28-yard first period run and defensive back Lee Calland intercepted a Jurgensen pass and dashed 28 yards in the second period for the other Viking touchdown.

Two field goals by Fred Cox and three by Washington's Bob Jencks completed the scoring.

Angels Defeat Tigers Behind Pearson's Hit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Albie Pearson broke a tie with a seventh-inning single, his third hit of the game, as the Los Angeles Angels handed the Detroit Tigers their fourth straight loss Saturday night, 4-3.

Paul Schaal, who scored three runs, waked to begin the Angels' winning rally with the score tied, 3-3. He took second on a pinch single by Al Spangler and scored as Pearson ripped a two-out single off loser Orlando Pena.

Bailey Gets 2nd All-Round Trap Shooting Crown

Hiram Bradley of Greenville, Ohio, took over-all honors with 959 out of a possible 1,000. This was only the second tournament in which Bradley has participated.

R. C. Lively of Andrews, Tex., won the final event Saturday, the Vandalia Open, in a shootoff after breaking 95 targets from 19 yards.

Cotton States Field Full

By STUART HILL
World Sports Writer

The 17th annual Cotton States, set to start Friday, again has a full field of 144 entries but the championship flight is now the most crowded of all.

More than two and one-half times as many players will be seeking a berth in the championship flight than the number of spots available for the flight.

A total of 83 have registered for championship qualification with only 32 to be admitted.

The flower of amateur tournaments in the cotton-growing states will draw a total of 31 representatives of college and university team golfers, including the University of Texas.

Henry Cole, a Monroe product and son of the host pro, who was runner - up to Homero Blancas in the last tourney, heads a list of five Louisiana State University players.

Others include Randy Wolff, Scott Wheaton, Tommy Elkins, and Ricky Hyland, another Monroe resident.

David Smith, a player on the Baylor University team, is also entered while Pat Boyd is the only Southern Methodist University entry.

The championship roster includes five entries from the University of Southwestern Louisiana, Buddy Short, top golfer in the Gulf States Conference last season, Tommy Thomas, Ben Freeman, Don McMath, and Bob Rogers.

From Memphis State entries include Ken Lindsay, Earl Pate Jr., Tommy Wrenn, Tommy Hanlon, Will Sowles and Bobby Pate.

From the University of Georgia, Harvey Cook and Tommy Barnes are slated to attend with Craig Metz, NAIA champion of East Texas State, also planing to make a showing.

Closer to home, Louisiana Tech golfers playing in the affair include John Morris and Ray Mulhearn while Northeast will have representatives in Henry Hinkle and Raymond Winn along with newcomers Wayne Peddy of West Monroe and Mike Rasco of Bossier City.

LSU also has a newcomer who has some of the most impressive recent accomplishments under his belt. Mike Keele, a recent resident of Puerto Rico, who now lives in New Orleans and will play his collegiate golf at LSU, will make his first appearance in the Cotton States.

Keele was the Savanna, Ga., Junior Jaycee Champion in 1963, low amateur in the Puerto Rico Open in 1964 and Junior Jaycee Champion of the U. S. possession in the same year before going on to win the International crown offered by the Jaycees. He finished third in the Future Masters held recently in Dothan, Ala.

Another Jaycee champ will be in the field in the person of Tommy McGinnis, of Memphis, who copped the national title this year in Houston.

There will also be several outstanding golfers from various cities in Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas participating.

A few include John Bird, Don Easterwood and Freddy Nelson of Shreveport; Van Lee, Paul Jones and Derrall Foreman of Bastrop; John Sample and Sonny Fowler of Baton Rouge; John "Kayo" Dottley of Vicksburg; a former winner of the tourney, H. P. Childress, of McComb; a former Northeast star, Ken Renwick of Dallas and Ben Parks of Dallas; Dr. Pat McGonagill of Waco; and Bob Brittain of Sulphur Springs, Tex.

All of these players, those affiliated with a college or university plus outstanding visiting amateurs are a part of the 83 players seeking a spot on the championship flight.

Benefit Contest Slated Monday For Local Home

A benefit softball game will be held Monday at Confederate Park on West Monroe's southside at 6 p.m.

This will be a doubleheader between two of the area's top teams. Coaches for the games will be Bogie Hearn and Bill Young.

This game will be played by Dixie League rules.

Brister Tries New Challenge

If success breeds success West Monroe High School football should be on the threshold of a great era. The man selected to guide the Rebels' program has known almost nothing but success since entering the business.

Walter A. Brister came to West Monroe last spring and with him came a glowing record of 77 wins and 34 defeats compiled over the last 11 years he has been a head coach.

The Louisiana College graduate, who lettered in four sports while playing for the Wildcats, served three years as an assistant coach at La Grange High of Lake Charles after graduation from La. College in 1951.

In 1954, Brister took over at Bunkie — where he played his high school ball and was there for seven hard years of fulfillment. While at Bunkie he coached all four major sports and left a mark that will be hard to equal.

His football teams at Bunkie won five district titles, lost in the state finals twice and once in the semifinals. He did not lose a district game in his last five years at Bunkie and had compiled a 52-18 record by the time he departed for his next challenge, Pineville.

Here it was more of the same. There for four years, he won district crowns two years while compiling a 25-16 record. Of the 16 games his double-A club lost, 10 were to triple-A foes by no more than two point margins.

Now his challenge is West Monroe, a triple-A school that plays some of the toughest AAA talent in Louisiana. How will he rejuvenate a school that for several years has seemed full of above average material, but failed to win consistently.

Importance Of Attitude

"Our first task," Brister said upon his arrival at West Monroe last spring, is to carry out a mental uplifting. I feel the job here consists largely of preparing our boys mentally, helping them attain a winning attitude rather than a defeatist attitude."

Of course, Brister realizes only so much of this type attitude can be acquired through practice sessions. Much of it must come from game-condition experiences.

Still, after a spring training session and two weeks of fall workouts it appears that much of Brister's "winning instinct" has been carried over to his boys.

The spring workouts at West Monroe were, to say the least, enthusiastic. This was understandable. High school age boys, put under a new test, will more often than not react favorably and give an extra effort.

But the big question remained whether or not the luster of a new coach would wear off during the hot summer when thoughts naturally turned away from football to the coolness of the swimming pool or a living room air conditioner. Now the question appears answered.

"I've never been a part of any workout that had as much enthusiasm as our workout Friday," Coach Brister commented less than a week ago. "Our boys literally gave all they had. It was inspiring to watch, and I feel it was inspiring for them as participants."

Now that West Monroe appears capable of licking the all-important attitude question which is present on every high school training field in the world, there are more questions to be asked concerning Brister's plans for West Monroe. These questions concern the tactics to be employed by West Monroe, offensively and defensively, and the overall philosophy of the game under the new pilot.

"We will use several formations, all centered around a split-T philosophy," Brister says. "We will place the accent on speed, especially on our linemen. Our attack will feature the sprint out type formations which we hope will resemble the Arkansas "I" offense.

"Basically, I don't suppose we will be too different from most other clubs we play. I can promise, though, that we won't mind spreading the defense out. In other words, I can safely say that we will throw often, feature a wide open attack, and give the fans their money's worth."

Brister then added quickly, "We will be wide open, but we won't be careless. We will throw often and it will be an attractive type offense to watch; but we will use it because we believe in it, not just to appeal to the fans."

Emphasis On Quarterback

He emphasized the fact that the quarterback receives a lot of attention in his program. "I like a quarterback to be imaginative, to take charge." It appears that Brister has the man he needs in senior Ronnie Wiggins who has shown in practice that he can run and throw with equal success.

Concerning defense, "Naturally, it will differ according to the opposition we meet. However, I do plan to go with the Oklahoma 5-4 for our basic setup. We may use stunts and may slant a lot; it depends on how our boys adapt to them.

"In the secondary, we will primarily be in a zone type coverage although this, too, will certainly be altered if we find the need to do so."

Coach Brister, as are most coaches, is a firm believer in physical conditioning. He obviously believes, although he didn't say so directly, that the only thing he cherishes more in an athlete than physical conditioning is mental conditioning.

Although he speaks at length about all phases of his program, he somehow always comes back to such words as "pride, dedication, effort, attitude."

It is obvious that he has built successful programs elsewhere because he is a sound football man who knows the correct methods of teaching the fundamental theories of the game.

But even more obvious is the fact that his teams have been successful because his boys have realized from the start that they are playing for a man who is sincere, who believes in things that will help the boy and who builds his clubs on a theory that the body is no stronger than the soul.

Cleveland Defeats Twins In 9th, 6-5

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Chuck Hinton's sacrifice fly drove in Leon Wagner in the ninth inning, lifting Cleveland to a 6-5 triumph over the American League-leading Minnesota Twins Saturday.

Wagner led off the ninth with a walk and moved to second when Al Worthington hit Billy Moran with a pitch. Pedro Gonzalez sacrificed the runners, and Hinton followed with a run-scoring fly to Bob Allison in left field.

Twins' starter Jim Perry was working with a 5-2 lead and had a six-hitter until the Indians erupted for three runs in the eighth inning in successive-pitch home runs by Rocky Colavito and Fred Whitfield.

Minnsota built its early lead against starter Luis Tiant and reliever Don McMahon in the first six innings.

The Twins got a pair in the first on Zoilo Versalles' double, Sandy Valdespino's triple and a sacrifice fly by Earl Battey. They added two more in the fourth, cracking a 2-2 tie, as Battey doubled and Don Mincher, Bob Allison and Jerry Kindall singled.

Minnesota counted again in the fifth when Versalles tripled and Jimmie Hall singled him home.

Cleveland got two in the first inning with the aid of Colavito's triple and two throwing errors by Versalles.

Jim Wynn Helps Carry Houston To 9-6 Victory

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Jim Wynn's three-run homer and Dave Giusti's relief pitching led the Houston Astros to 9-6 victory over Pittsburgh Saturday that snapped the Pirates' seven-game winning streak.

Trailing 6-4, the Astros went ahead to stay in the seventh inning of the see-saw battle.

Lee Maye doubled and Joe Morgan walked with none out. Don Schwall then relieved Don Cardwell, and Wynn hit his first pitch over the left field scoreboard for his 18th homer.

Giusti pitched the last three innings, retiring all nine Pirates he faced. He also stroked a two-run single in the ninth.

The Astros jumped on Cardwell for three runs in the first on singles by Maye and Morgan, a throwing error by Cardwell on a double play attempt and Rusty Staub's single.

Pittsburgh came back in its half of the inning on Willie Stargell's grand slam home run. The blast, Stargell's 25th, overall and followed singles by Bob Bailey and Manny Mota and Roberto Clemente's walk.

Houston tied it in the third on Morgan's double and Bob Aspromonte's single.

Cardwell drove in Gene Alley, who had tripled, with a sacrifice fly in the fourth and then singled home Bill Mazeroski, who had singled and stole second, in the sixth.

Floyd Robinson Carries Chisox By Boston, 5-3

CHICAGO (AP) — Floyd Robinson drove in three runs with a triple and two singles and Ken Berry slugged a two-run homer Saturday to power the Chicago White Sox to a 5-3 victory over Boston.

Juan Pizarro got credit for his third victory in four starts since coming off the disabled list July 27, but needed help when the Red Sox rallied in the ninth.

Hoyt Wilhelm came on with the bases loaded and one out, and was greeted by a two-run single by pinch hitter Lee Thomas. But he got Felix Mantilla to hit into a game-ending double play.

Robinson singled across a run in the first inning and broke a 1-1 tie with a two-run triple in the fifth. Berry's homer, following John Romano's single, helped knock out loser Jim Lonborg in the sixth. Lonborg now is 9-15.

Baltimore Downs Pittsburgh For 3rd Exhibition Triumph

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The Baltimore Colts unleashed a devastating offense led by quarterback John Unitas, Lenny Moore and Mike Curtis Saturday night to overpower Pittsburgh 38-10 in a National Football League exhibition.

Unitas threw two touchdown passes and set up another on a long aerial to give the Colts a comfortable lead early in the game. His scoring passes went 11 yards, to John Mackey, and four, to Jimmy Orr.

The victory was Baltimore's third straight without a loss in exhibition play.

A crowd of 47,186 watched the Colt offense score with comparative ease against the Steelers, who had several offensive threats nipped by Baltimore pass interceptions.

Unitas played about half the game before being relieved by understudy Gary Cuozzo, who scored the Colts' fourth touchdown on a quarterback sneak from the 1.

Pittsburgh 0-3 in exhibition play, opened with Ed Brown at quarterback and could muster only a field goal while he directed the operation for the first 50 minutes of play.

The Steelers scored midway through the final period when Cannonball Butler, a rookie halfback from little Edward Waters College in Florida, took a handoff from second-string quarterback Tommy Wade and raced through the middle of the Colt defense for 61 yards and a touchdown.

Butler's touchdown was the first scored against the Colt defense in the exhibition season.

The organization meeting is to be held at 9:30 a.m. in the school's gymnasium.

Forms Received By Bondholders For Fair Contest

SHREVEPORT (Special) — Ticket order forms have been mailed to bondholders for the annual State Fair Classic College game between Louisiana Tech and Northwestern State College to be played in the local stadium on State Fair Grounds this fall. Bondholders in the State Fair Stadium Commission will receive the forms this week, according to officials of the Commission.

The game between the two North Louisiana top rivals will be played in State Fair Stadium on Saturday, October 23, at 8 p.m. This is the only college football game scheduled thus far for 1965 for Shreveport, and officials believe demands for tickets will be much heavier than in previous years.

The East side of the stadium has been designated to Louisiana Tech and the West side to Northwestern, making Northwestern the host team.

Al Geiberger Holds 5-Stroke Margin In American Classic

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Skinny Al Geiberger stood strong against wind, rain and cold Saturday to take a five-stroke lead after the third round of the $100,000 American Golf Classic with an amazing 35-34—69 and a two-under-par total of 208.

The 6-foot-2½, 163-pound Geiberger started the third round in a tie with Bobby Nichols. Geiberger shot into the lead when Nichols bogeyed the first three holes of the back nine and then stretched his advantage with a birdie 3 on the 14th hole.

Rain accompanied by 35 mile an hour winds and 55 degree weather sent most scores soaring, but Geiberger didn't blow up or blow away in his drive for the top prize of $20,000.

Only Geiberger and Johnny Pott were able to conquer the adverse conditions, while Arnold Palmer, Bob Charles, Mason Rudolph, Jack Rule Jr. and Canadian George Knudson fell victim to the massive Firestone acres and the demanding par of 35-35—70.

Only Geiberger and Pott broke par, while the closest any others came were 72s by Tony Lema, Julius Boros and Pete Brown.

Nichols did one of the fastest fades of the day. He took the lead after the first hole, when Geiberger bogeyed and boosted his advantage to two strokes with a birdie on No. 3. He lost a stroke and a bogey on No. 7 and fell back into a tie when Geiberger birdied No. 9.

Nichols then bogeyed the next three holes and finished the round with a bogey for a 35-39—74 and 213 total.

Palmer, with a 38-36—74 and 214, fell into third place. Potts' round pulled him within seven strokes in a tie with Knudson, who had a 34-39—73.

Rudolph got messed up with a couple of double bogeys for a 37-38—75 and 216 in a group with Gordon Jones 34-39—73, Lema 37-35—72, and Jackie Cupit 36-37—73.

Jack Nicklaus, who had an opening round of 80 and came back with a 69 Friday, blew to a 39-40—79.

Geiberger's five-stroke lead was the biggest at 54 holes since the Masters, when Nicklaus ran away with the championship. His bogey on No. 1 resulted from three putts at 25 feet.

He dropped a 30-footer for a birdie 3 on No. 9 and a 12-footer for a birdie 3 on No. 14. Despite the wind gusts he hit 14 greens in regulation and one-putted six times.

Washington Puts On 3-Run Rally To Beat Orioles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jim King's two-run single in the ninth inning capped a three-run rally that gave Washington a 5-4 victory over Baltimore Saturday.

The Senators, who had led from the second inning, fell behind 4-2 in the top of the ninth when the Orioles erupted for three runs. The first run came on Ed Brinkman's two-out, bases-loaded bobble and the other two on Paul Blair's single.

But the Senators struck back quickly. Willie Kirkland doubled and scored on Woodie Held's single. Washington then loaded the bases on John Orsino's throwing error and Don Zimmer's bunt single.

Washington's early lead in the game that was delayed by rain for one hour and 32 minutes was built on Don Lock's two-run homer in the second inning. Blair singled across the Orioles' first run just before the rain struck in the fifth.

Cowboys Shock Green Bay

DALLAS (AP) — A savage defense and the punting of an unknown rookie from Australia — Colin Ridgway — carried the Dallas Cowboys to a 21-12 victory over the Green Bay Packers Saturday night.

It was the first time Dallas had ever beaten the Packers in National Football League play.

The largest crowd ever to see a professional football game in Dallas — 67,954 — watched the NFL exhibition.

The Dallas defense held Green Bay's touted offense without a touchdown. The Packers only scores were 22, 48 and 12-yard field goals by Don Chandler and an 18-yard field goal by Paul Hornung.

Ridgway, who was a high jumper in track at Lamar Tech, was kicking in his second pro game. He averaged 42.5 yards on eight punts, although one of them sliced off his foot and carried only 15 yards.

But he was driving them high, long and lazy and the Cowboys were battering the Packer receivers down in their tracks.

Don Meredith threw a 46-yard bomb to Buddy Dial for the first Dallas touchdown and Chuck Howley of the raging Dallas defense intercepted a Bart Starr pass to set up the second. Don Perkins rammed over from the four for the touchdown.

Then, in the fading minutes Amos Marsh led a 47-yard Dallas touchdown drive and scored from the one.

Dallas has been in the NFL for six years and has played Green Bay seven times, five in exhibitions.

Williams' Bat Is Too Much For Tribe, 3-1

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Billy Williams drove in three runs with a home run and a single as the Chicago Cubs trimmed Milwaukee 3-1 and extended the Braves' losing streak to five games Saturday.

The loss dropped the Braves into fourth place, 2½ games behind the National League leading Los Angeles Dodgers.

Williams, who hit a winning grand slam homer the night before, clouted his 24th homer in the first inning after Wade Blasingame walked Joe Amalfitano.

The Cubs didn't score again until the ninth when pitcher Ted Abernathy singled, went to second as Amalfitano drew his fourth walk and raced home on Williams singled to center field.

Larry Jackson, with help from Abernathy, gained his 12th victory against 16 defeats. He lost his bid for a shutout in the seventh when Joe Torre singled and went the rest of the way on a walk to Felipe Alou, a sacrifice bunt by Frank Bolling and a sacrifice fly by pinch hitter Mike de la Hoz.

Abernathy relieved Jackson in the eighth and with his 70th appearance of the season broke the Cub record of 69 set by Don Elston in 1958.

The defeat left Blasingame with a 15-9 record. It was the Braves' seventh loss in eight games after a five-week surge which twice had carried them into the league lead.

Windsor Locks Beats Canadian Team For Crown

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (UPI) —Dale Misiek's two-run homer powered Windsor Locks, Conn., to 3-1 victory over Stoney Creek, Canada, Saturday for the Little League World Series championship.

The blast over the centerfield fence by the 80-pound Misiek featured a three-run rally in the fourth inning after Windsor Locks had been held hitless through the first three innings. The towering smash came with Frank Aniello on second via a single and a wild pitch by loser Joe Palango.

Windsor Locks, giving the state of Connecticut its third title in the 19-year history of the series, continued its attack in the inning to add another run. With one out, Ed Holmes singled and went to second on a wild pitch. Pitcher Mike Roche popped to third but Stave Scheerer singled to left to bring home Holmes.

The rally wiped out a 1-0 lead held by the team from Ontario and dashed its hopes of becoming the first Canadian entry ever to win the championship.

Holes-In-One Hit In Bastrop Past Two Days

BASTROP (Special)—Two aces in as many days were scored here Friday and Saturday over the Morehouse Country Club golf course, but on separate greens.

A Monroe man F. D. Woolie dropped in a seven iron on the 17th green Saturday to make his first hole-in-one.

Woolie was playing with two other Monroe residents, Dan Cox and Jim Smith while Johnston played with club pro Leonard Warren and Joe Schendle of Bastrop and Frank Walker of Monroe.

Rivers Defeats KTVE, Moves To Amateur Finals

Alton Thomas drove in two runs in support of Lynn Causey's five - hitter as Rivers Ford tripped KTVE, 3 - 0 to move into the finals of the Amateur League playoffs against Motor Supply.

The first of the best - of - three games will be played Monday.

Thomas was the only player to collect two hits and the only one credited with an RBI.

Rivers scored in the third and added two runs in the top of the seventh for a total of three while Causey continued to shut out the regular season first place finisher on five hits.

Mangham Is Pick Of League Guides

Apparently, the coaches of District 2 - B are putting their faith in experience, speed and agility rather than sheer poundage as the league coaches have picked defending champion Mangham to repeat again this football season.

In a recent poll, Coach Keith Munyson of Mangham was the only descenter in the loop, failing to include his own team in the balloting.

The Dragons went 6 - 5 in the past campaign, but mustered an untarnished league record before being knocked off in the opening round of the state playoffs.

Munyson drops only eight lettermen off a championship squad while 13 return to receive the benefits of his tuteledge, and help protect the district title. However, all of the returnees and the new comers appear on the light side to most observers.

Mangham will be headed by three year letterman Carl Pailette, a 170 - pound senior halfback and Newton Bruce, an even six footer who puts 160 pounds into his duties at quarterback. Pailette was second in last year's district scoring race with 67 points. Four regular linemen return, including both tackles, to help provide the potential break - away threat that the Dragons may need to defend the title.

Coach Graves Kennedy of Holly Ridge has a squad on paper that, "looks like the one to beat". With size and experience returning, in both the line and the backfield, the 1965 - 66 Eagles will be a group to be reckoned with. A total of 13 lettermen were lost but 12 are returning in an attempt to fill those shoes.

Although the Eagles lost the district's leading scorer, Bo Miller who hit the lines for 73 points, sophomore Huey Green and another sophomore halfback, Paul Ezell, will be in the lineup along with a talented freshman fullback Lynn McManus, a 180 - pounder with one letter to his credit. Three year letterman Mack Livingston will be counted on to guide the attack from the quarterback slot.

From an experience standpoint, Sterlington is the next most likely to benefit, with eight lost and a like number of lettermen returning. However, the Panthers receive an added shot in the arm with the return of a pair of brothers who contributed much to the Sterlington fortunes before moving away in mid - season last year.

This pair, fullback David Stuart and quarterback Charles Stuart, may be the combination that new head coach Terry Head needs to get his tenure off to a successful start.

In addition all eight returning lettermen were starters last season which leaves seasoned men in the backfield while the line will be spotted with experience and size.

Bernice and Southside of Monroe each have six returning lettermen.

While Southside's Charles Denham is perpetually plagued with rebuilding chores he has a good one - two punch in quarterback Dennis Duplessis, a 6-2, 190 tipper and fullback Don Dakin. Both have earned a Pelican letter, but the main Southside problem is constructing an awesome line to compliment a heavy speed-geared backfield. With the return of experienced ends in Kenneth Carbo and John Collins, Southside may be expected to throw more of the quick, short passes than it has been accustomed to throwing.

Bernice will field an overall light team headed offensively by quarterback Mickey Green, a 160 - pound junior with a good throwing arm. The Bears will field more size in the line than in the backfield although it is ironic that Green's favorite is a skimpy but quick 128 - pound end, Ronnie Jenkins, an all-district competitor last year.

On the whole, Bernice expects to field a team with more offensive punch than last year when the squad was noted for defensive ability.

Neville Standout Cage Performer At Ohio College

WOOSTER, Ohio (Special) — A Neville High School graduate, John Clay, will be among eleven freshman basketball prospects enrolling at The College of Wooster this fall.

Clay, 6-0, 150-pound guard, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Clay, 2123 Pargould Blvd., Monroe.

Wooster will be trying to improve last year's 14-10 record when the Scots finished in a fourth place tie in the 15-team Ohio Conference.

Coach Al Van Wie's cagers will meet all Ohio Conference teams next winter. In addition, the Scots will host Ashland College, Grove City (Pa.) and the University of Delaware in the third annual "Mose" Hole Classic, and will meet Earlham (Ind.), West Chester (Pa.), Hofstra (N.Y.) and Hope (Mich.) in out-of-state trips.

ALVIN DARK packs his bag at his locker in the dressing room at County Stadium Friday. Dark went to Kansas City Saturday to become administrative assistant to Charles O. Finley, owner of the Kansas City Athletics. Dark has been a coach with the Chicago Cubs. (AP Wirephoto)

Dark To 'Report To No One But Me,' Says Charles O.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Alvin Dark said Saturday his new job as administrative assistant to Kansas City A's owner Charles O. Finley is something like Eddie Stanky's with the New York Mets. Finley said Dark "will report to no one but me."

Dark, who managed the San Francisco Giants four seasons and won the National League 1962 pennant, said "As far as I'm concerned I'm through managing."

Finley, however, left the door open when asked about Dark's future with the A's. Finley put it this way?

"I've told you what his duties are the rest of the season. He'll follow the club every day, get an idea of what talent we have and possibly scout other clubs. What he might do in the future, I don't know myself. As for next season, Haywood Sullivan has a contract to manage and that's all I can say."

Dark approached Finley for a job 10 days ago while still coaching for the Chicago Cubs. The 43-year-old Dark explained he felt his 14 years as a major league shortstop, four years as a manager and one as a coach, "gave me a few insights into the game."

He drew the comparison with Stanky, his former teammate with the Boston Braves and Giants, in explaining his duties. Asked whether "super scout" might be a good description, Dark said "No, that's just a Giants term."

Finley said "It sort of inflated my ego a little to feel that a man of Dark's quality and ability wanted to join us. I was fearful that if I didn't sign Dark, some other club would have.

"I hired Dark for the same reason I hired Luke Appling and Gabby Hartnett, both members of the Hall of Fame. They have helped tremendously and I'm confident Dark will contribute immeasurably to our success."

No salary was disclosed.

Finley said Dark "will work wherever we need him the most. No owner despises 10th place more than I do and a man of Dark's background, ability and leadership is bound to help us win."

Finley was asked whether stories about Dark's experiences in managing Negro and Latin American players occurred to him. He said "Yes, it occurred to me, but I didn't ask him about it."

Did he believe in the man, not the stories? Finley said "Yes sir."

Finley was irate Friday night when news of Dark's hiring leaked. He and Dark showed up late for Saturday's press conference. Finley was smiling, Dark was rather solemn.

The news was a surprise to General Manager Hank Peters and Sullivan. It set off a wave of speculation that Dark might eventually become manager or general manager, or both.

Track And Field Officials Slate Session Tuesday

WASHINGTON (AP)—After more than two years of feuding since the collapse of a truce, the officials governing U.S. track and field affairs finally are going to get together and talk peace.

They announced no date for the confrontation, but well placed sources said it probably would be held Tuesday, and not necessarily in Washington.

Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., fed up with the off-and-on jurisdictional battling between the Amateur Athletic Union and National Collegiate Athletic Association almost literally compelled them Friday to agree to sit down and talk of permanent peace.

NCAA's jurisdiction covers college athletes—about 90 per cent of those in active competition. AAU's realm is the non-college athletes.

Each group has been boycotting open meets of the other in a fight over NCAA's demands for equal power to sanction AAU competition. They have backed the boycotts with threats to banish from competition their subordinate athletes who break or have defied the boycotts.

The threatened reprisals have upset the young men and women athletes. And witnesses told the Senate Commerce Committee this could drastically weaken U.S. teams in international competition, including the 1968 Olympic Games.

The peace talks were forced in the public setting of the committee's investigation of the row, where neither side could have said no gracefully. Cannon demanded an immediate answer whether presidents of the two groups "as men of good will" would hold a peace talk. Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., backed Cannon in the play.

New Orleans 9 Wins Babe Ruth

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — Jim Tillette pitched and batted New Orleans, La., to a 6-2 triumph over Manchester, N.H., and the Babe Ruth Baseball World Series championship Saturday night.

In taking its first Babe Ruth title, New Orleans went unbeaten through its four games of the eight-day tournament.

Manchester reached the championship round earlier with an 11-inning 3-2 victory over Mobile, Ala., in the losers' bracket.

Tillette gave up only three hits, struck out eight and blanked Manchester until the final inning when Ted Gatsas hit a two-run homer.

Defending Champ Wins Club Medal

Defending champion Clayton Cole shot a one - under - par 69 Saturday to make medalist honors in the first round of the Bayou DeSiard Country Club championship and carries a two stroke edge into the final round today.

Third was Henry Hinkle Jr., with 72, followed by Ricky Hyland at 73, and Dr. Ray Rhymes at 74. Glen Walker Jr., scored a 75.

Three players finished the opening round with 76's. They are Fred Nelson, Jack Rivers, and John Crump.

Jim Rivers shot 77 with Billy Coenen carding a 78 and Erle Breihaupt, Henry Cole, and Clyde Nash each shot a 79. Amos Shelton and Everett Lawson were knotted at 80 each.

The first round was played for qualification and the Saturday scores will be combined with today's finish in determining the winner of the club championship.

Two flights, other than the championship bracket are included in the tourney with the title group and first flight leaving off the first tee and the second flight starting from number 10.

Emerson, Stolle Have Stiff Bout In Doubles Meet

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Australians Roy Emerson and Fred Stolle, got a stiff fight but moved into the semifinals of the National Doubles Tennis Championships Saturday at Longwood Cricket Club.

Before a gallery of 5,000, the world's top amateurs overcame Butch Newman of San Antonio, Tex., and Cliff Buchholz of St. Louis 6-3, 6-8, 16-14, 7-5. The 65-game match took 2 hours and 45 minutes.

The No. 2 American team of Davis Cuppers Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., and Gene Scott of St. James, N.Y., won a serving battle with Jerry Cromwell of Long Beach, Calif., and Jim Osborne of Honolulu, 6-4, 14-12, 10-8.

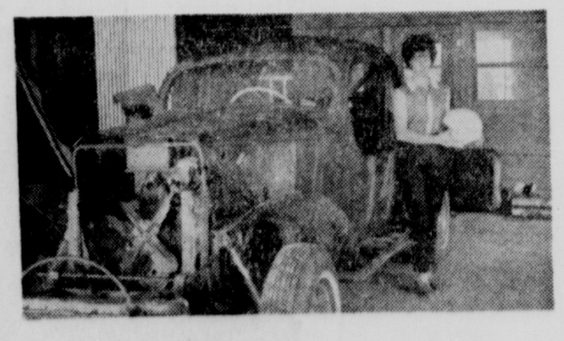

That victory sent the Ashe-Scott team into today's semifinals against third-seeded Frank Froehling of Miami and Charley Pasarell of Santurce, Pr.

Emerson and Stolle's opponents will be the leading U.S. pairing of Clark Graebner of Beachwood, Ohio and Marty Riessen of Evanston, Ill.

They beat unseeded Julie Heldman of New York and Tory Fretz of Los Angeles, 7-5, 6-2.

Northeast Ready For Early Drills

Approximately 60 Northeast State football players are expected to report to Coach Dixie White Monday evening in preparation for the opening of fall practice Wednesday morning, Sept. 1.

The players are slated to report in time for a 5:30 evening meal Monday. Tuesday that will receive equipment, undergo physical examinations, receive inoculations and have publicity photographs taken.

Scheduled for Wednesday, the first day of workouts, is breakfast at 8 a.m., a practice session at 9:30, a squad meeting at 11, lunch at 12, supper at 5 p.m., another meeting at 6 and a night workout at 7:30. This schedule will be observed most days until the opening of school Sept. 15.

The Indians will work out in Brown Stadium. However, home games this season will be held at Ouachita High School Stadium, since Brown Stadium is scheduled to be relocated to make room for a science - math building. The new building will intrude on only part of the football field, leaving enough room for practice sessions.

Northeast will open the season Sept. 18 in Cape Girardeau, Mo., against Southeast Missouri State. The first home game is scheduled Sept. 25 against Delta State.

Coach Dixie White and his staff — Leon Manley (defensive line), Ralph Lane (defensive backs), Wallace Hargon (offensive backs) and Bill Dotson (offensive line) — will have 19 returning lettermen among the candidates.

Three of the lettermen are ends, four are tackles, five guards, two centers, five halfbacks and one fullback. A total of 19 other candidates were members of the spring practice squad and nearly all the other players expected to report are incoming freshmen.

The squad's overall youth and shortage — and in the case of quarterback, total absence— of experience at several positions are considered White's major problems. Only three seniors and seven juniors are listed on the roster.

Returning lettermen ends are sophomores Don McCrary, Charles Rohner and Kenneth Holland. McCrary and Rohner were the 1964 starters.

There are also four guard letter winners, all sophomores. They are Joe Bondurant, Steve Hidalgo, Nic LaBarbera and Raymond Taylor.

State Farm Will Face Local 364

State Farm bested Olin, 9 - 8 in a slugfest Saturday night to eliminate the Olin team from the West Monroe Recreation Department softball tournament and earn the right to take on Local 364 Monday night.

The final will be played on the southside beginning at 6:30 p.m. and a second game, if needed will start at 8:15.

Reds Grab Second, Johnson Ups Total

CINCINNATI (AP) — Deron Johnson boosted his major league leading runs batted in total to 102 with a three-run double Saturday night as the Cincinnati Reds moved into second place in the National League by walloping St. Louis 8-2.

The victory kept the Reds 1½ games behind the first-place Los Angeles Dodgers but hopped them over San Francisco into the runner-up spot. The Giants and Milwaukee are 2½ games behind.

Tommy Harper contributed a two-run homer to the Reds' attack and Jim Maloney, with relief help from Ted Davidson, picked up his second straight victory since hurling a 10-inning no-hitter Aug. 19. Maloney is now 16-6.

The Reds shelled Curt Simmons for all their runs.

Johnson unleashed his bases-clearing double in the Reds' four-run third inning to become the first player in the majors to drive in 100 or more runs this season. He also became the first third baseman in Reds' history to knock in 100 runs a season.

Johnson's hit broke up a 1-1 tie. He connected after Maloney and Pete Rose singled and Frank Robinson walked. Johnson then scored on a double by Don Pavletich.

Harper slammed the ball into the right field bleachers in the fourth inning for his 16th homer, scoring Maloney, who was on with his second single.

Maloney was forced to leave in the sixth inning when his arm tightened. He allowed the Cardinals a run in the first inning on three singles. He also was tagged for the Cardinals run in the sixth.

Simmons went six innings and suffered his 12th defeat. He has won nine.

Jean Ashley Is Ladies Amateur Golf Champion

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Jean Ashley rallied from a three-hole deficit on the back nine Saturday and defeated three-time champion Mrs. Anne Quast Welts 5 and 4 in their scheduled 36-hole final match for the 65th U.S. Women's Amateur Golf Championship.

Miss Ashley, 26, a Chanute, Kan., native now teaching school in Colorado Springs, Colo., took a 1-up lead on the first nine, fell three down at the 19th hole, but never lost a hole after that.

She won the 20th with a par when Mrs. Welts missed an 18-inch putt. Miss Ashley birdied the short 23rd with an eight-foot putt. She evened the match on the 370-yard 24th with a par after Mrs. Welts missed the green and landed in heavy grass.

Miss Ashley went in front for the first time in the afternoon round with a par on the short 25th where Mrs. Welts again missed the green. She birdied the 26th and 27th holes with putts of about 12 feet to take a 3-up margin.

On the short 29th Miss Ashley clicked off another birdie with an eight-foot putt, pushing her lead to 4-up. She went 5-up with a par on the short 31st where Mrs. Welts again missed the green and landed in deep grass.

They havled the 355-yard 14th with bogeys to end the match.

Mrs. Welts said, "I played badly in Friday's semifinals and I just had to keep fighting all the time today trying to get my shots straightened out."

Miss Ashley said she felt the 23rd hole was the turning point.

"I finally got a putt to drop there," she said.

The eight-footer she holed, cut Mrs. Welts' lead at that point to 1-up and Miss Ashley evened it on the next hole on a par.

Doves Good Training

If you leave your boy at home Saturday when the dove season opens, you may be sorry someday.

That's stretching a point, but the fact remains that the father who hunts or fishes is neglecting his duty if he doesn't offer his youngster the same opportunity.

A few months back Sheldon Coleman, a well-known Witchita industrialist, conservationist and sportsman, came out with one of the best magazine stories we've read. His topic was the value of the outdoors to our youngsters.

Sheldon Coleman pointed out that we're spending billions of dollars in America to educate our children, yet we're overlooking the fact that they're going to work only 30 or 40 hours a week in the future. They'll be left with 60 to 70 hours a week of leisure time.

"I have strong convictions about what the out-of-doors can do for the youth of our country, particularly in the sense of giving us happier, healthier kids who aren't likely to get into trouble with the law," he wrote. "What I have in mind are such attributes as physical fitness, emotional stability, more respectability and good citizenship."

His article quoted FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover as saying that case histories of the "most-wanted criminals" over the years disclosed fewer than one per cent had ever been Boy Scouts.

This, of course, is a tribute to Scouting as well as to the outdoors.

"For too many people today, both young and adult, leisure time is a curse," wrote Sheldon Coleman. "So very, very many fail to find wholesome activities and hobbies that, to borrow a Boy Scout phrase, will keep them 'physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight'."

If you and your boy spend Saturday afternoon in a hot cornfield, do you think you'll have a hard time going to sleep Saturday night? Each year American people consume 17 billion sleeping pills.

They also take 11 million pounds of aspirin.

Bill Ruple, Neville's athletic director who has been around boys since he was one himself, said in a talk just this past Friday that seldom does a football player get into trouble.

Bill Ruple has a good point, but we also must consider that most boys don't play football and what are those football players going to do with their leisure time when they get too old to play football?

Dr. Raymond West, a Philadelphia physician, recently made the statement that he firmly believes the United States could dispense with the services of 50,000 doctors if people would fully utilize the blessings found close to nature.

Drawling Bill Ruple said kids are changing. They don't like to sweat anymore, he said.

Adults don't like to sweat either.

Sheldon Coleman also quoted Juvenile Court Judge William G. Long of Seattle as saying that out of 45,000 cases involving boys and girls over a 20-year period in his court he discovered not one had a wholesome outdoor hobby.

Wonder how many of those people rioting in Los Angeles had a wholesome outdoor hobby?

That's why we say you may be sorry someday if you let the chance go by to take your boy afield, because tomorrow he'll be a man and tomorrow may be too late.

So load them up come Saturday and strike out in the heat. Besides, there are a lot of doves.

Deer, Ducks, Geese

The Louisiana Wild Life & Fisheries Commission held its regular monthly meeting last Tuesday, but did not make any changes on the upcoming deer season.

In summary, the any-deer seasons previously announced by the commission have not been called off.

The commission's action came as a surprise since Gov. John J. McKeithen had indicated he wanted the any-deer seasons changed.

Apparently the commission convinced the governor that it was either conduct the any-deer seasons on the game management areas or lose the leases.

One other timber company, Georgia-Pacific, added its voice with sister companies in urging the commission to carry out the seasons. A one-day any-deer season is planned for the Georgia-Pacific at Bastrop.

Georgia-Pacific fired off its letter to the commission before last Tuesday's meeting.

So as of now, the deer seasons stand without change.

If the politicians leave matters alone, we may make it through the season without risking the leases on the public areas.

The commission also came up with another surprise at last Tuesday's meeting and that was setting the duck season to end on the last allowable date — December 1st through January 9th.

That's the first time the commission has gone along with the latest-possible season, which of course is a break for North Louisiana.

With the bag limit cut to one mallard (four ducks, but only one mallard), the December—January season will help matters some. Also remember that the deer season splits in December, which means that the duck season will be open for those taking a break from deer hunting.

In addition, the commission set a 70-day goose season from November 6th through January 14th.

All of the seasons are set now. Bring on the autumn.

Pollution Fight Recognized

The Ouachita Wildlife Unit will put the emphasis where it belongs Tuesday night by honoring the Monroe City Council and Olin Mathieson for their pollution abatement programs.

It comes at an appropriate time since the City Council hopes to have the new water pollution control center in operation within the next several days. The city is spending over $2 million on the sewage treatment plant.

Olin Mathieson spent about $1.5 million on a water treatment system.

Both projects mean that the Ouachita River will be that much cleaner. West Monroe still has to do its part, however.

The Wildlife club will present plaques to Monroe city officials and Olin in recognition of the work that's been done. The meeting will take place at 7:30 p.m. at the Virginia Hotel.

Featured speaker will be Robert Lafleur, executive secretary of the Louisiana Stream Control Commission. Bob's topic will be water pollution.

It goes without saying that the wildlife club has done more than its share in putting the spotlight on water pullution in this area, especially in the case of the Ouachita River.

A few years ago the club appointed a committee that met with state water officials on a study of the problem here. Later the committee's report was presented to the Monroe council in the form of a resolution requesting that something be done about municipal sewage in the river.

Tuesday nighis' presentation will be appropriate. The public is invited.

Little Man's Corner

It got hotter, but a few of the little men stuck it out to make news afield.

Upcoming September 8th at 7:30 p.m. at the Rendezvous is another meeting of the North Louisiana Pointer & Setter Club. Larry Hudson, the club president informs us that a movie of a birddog field trial will be shown.

New members are urged to attend as the club makes plans for its first trial probably in November.

Out at Black Bayou, Johnny Danna, one of the pros, landed 10 bass. R. E. Matthews of West Monroe landed 55 bream. Tom Ross got 60 bream.

Also at Black Bayou, Ernest Myles caught 40 big bream. Sam Williams and J. F. Scott caught 43 spec and 22 bream. David Malta caught a 4-pound bass.

Robert Rhone of West Monroe caught the limit of bream while Frank Savana came out with 41 bull bream. Rip McMillan and Bart Williams caught 31 bream. They were big ones.

Over at Davis Island, Eddie Whetstone of Monroe tells us he took Bill Dodd and the Heard boys fishing. Big Ed say he caught the bass while Bill Dodd, Loy and Hilton Heard mixed it up with bream and spec.

From Clayton, Jack Cornwell landed the limit of bream on worms. Don Eames of Ferriday got the limit of bass on the Purple worm. They were fishing at Lake Concordia

In the Lake Providence area, Mrs. Morris Coleman of Monticello and Clellon Bryan of Spearsville, Rodney Smith of Monroe and Gilbert Ezell of Epps caught a string of over 100 white perch in Old River. Mrs. Coleman caught 15 on another trip.

Locally, keep an eye on the papers upcoming, because the Monroe Optimist Club is planning its fourth annual gun safety clinic, which will be held Saturday, September 25th, at Bancroft's Camp.

It'll be another good line-up of safety instructions.

FRONT-YARD fishing yielded this 42-pound, 46½-inch long Opelousas cat for Guy Antley, 401 Lakeshore drive, who caught the fish Saturday morning off his lawn in Bayou DeSiard. Antley said he had been trying to catch him for weeks and twice had lost this one or one just like him. After Saturday's success, Antley said: "If you want a job just try landing one of these ol ones." (Staff photo by John Fogleman)

Gale Sayers Stars In Chicago Victory

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Chicago Bear rookie Gale Sayers shocked the Los Angeles Rams Saturday with two long touchdown runs and a scoring pass to lead the Bears over the Rams 28-14 in a National Football League exhibition game.

Sayers, a halfback from the University of Kansas, took a punt back 77 yards, a kickoff return 93 yards and hit Jimmy Jones in the end zone for a 25-yard touchdown.

A crowd of 20,500 also saw Chicago end Dick Gordon catch a six-yard scoring pass from teammate Bill Wade in the second period. The pass was set up by a 45-yard kickoff return by Ron Smith and a 46-yard pass from Wade to Jones.

The Ram scoring came on a five-yard pass from Billy Munson to Tommy McDonald and a two-yard plunge by Lester Josephson.

The Rams started the game like they were going to score at will, driving 74 yards in 13 plays to score on their first series of downs.

Sayers then electrified the crowd with the first of his long runs. He took the punt from John Kilgore on his 23, cut toward the sideline and outran the Rams for the score. He hit Gordon on a halfback option pass for the second touchdown.

On the kickoff return, the Bear rookie halfback took the ball on the seven, charged up the middle to about the 30 and sprinted for the sidelines, going all the way without anyone touching him the last 60 yards.

Louisiana Tech Welcomes 24 Lettermen

RUSTON (Special) — Louisiana Tech's defending Gulf States Conference champion football squad opens fall drills Wednesday with a sizable task of preparing to open the campaign in Houston Sept. 18 against Rice University.

Coach Joe Aillet and his staff can count on 24 healthy lettermen at present. Halfback problems have developed with the loss of junior Alden Reeves with a broken arm and junior John Wurzburger, who is out for the campaign with a ruptured disc. Reeves may miss early action.

Bob McKinnon, the ramrod linebacker who was a standout until being sidelined by a knee injury late in the season and who has to undergo surgery, is a question mark. Only field action will reveal if he will be available and if he is, the Bulldog stock will zoom.

The Canines will begin two-a-day practice sessions on Wednesday, tapering off when classes begin the middle of the month. Bulldog coaches have a problem of dividing the squad into offensive and defensive platoons, almost a necessity because of rule changes. Aillet said some boys are especially adept on offense or defense and may go both ways. However, he said it is difficult for them to reach their maximum potential in either direction.

A major search will begin at start of practice for a punter to replace David Lee, now with the Cleveland Browns. Punting has been no problem since Lee averaged almost 40 yards per kick for four years. Jim Jones, letterman halfback in 1963, appears the best bet as a punter now. Freshmen Jeb Clark of Sulphur and Butch Troegel of Shreveport will get the chance to earn the job.

There is one group on the squad who rate as an unknown quality under fire. This is the freshmen who were withheld from competition last year. "We think they have fine ability but they have not been tested under fire and there is nothing like game experience," Coach Aillet said.

Coach George Doherty, defensive line coach, will not be available for field duty after suffering a heart attack this summer. Building expansion at Tech has eliminated one practice field and the one now available for use is located next to construction noises.

Aillet said squad members in correspondence are already showing a lot of enthusiasm and looking forward to the fall practice as well as the start of the season. "Our kids are the type who can overcome problems and we have the utmost confidence they will adjust to our practice handicaps," Aillet said.

Sheldon Pitches Kansas City By New York Yanks

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Rollie Sheldon allowed only three hits, pitching the Knsas City Athletics to a 4-0 victory over his former New York Yankee teammates Saturday night.

Sheldon, lifting his record to 7-7, allowed only singles by Bobby Richardson in the fourth and ninth innings, and by Elston Howard in the seventh. He did not permit a base runner past second base.

It was the second straight shutout against the Yankees, who were held to four hits by Kansas City's John O'Donoghue Friday night.

The A's gave Sheldon the only run he needed in the third inning when Tom Reynolds singled, stole second and went to third on a wild pitch by Mel Stottlemyre before scoring on a double by Bert Campaneris.

Humble Sisters Marry In Double Wedding

First Baptist Church of West Monroe was scene of a double wedding Sunday, August 22 at 3 p.m. of the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parker Humble, 110 Fennell Drive, Monroe. Miss Joan Gibson Humble became the bride of Jerrell Randall Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dowdy Daniel Williams of El Dorado, Ark., and Miss Joy Fennell Humble was united in marriage to Robert Isiah Mitcham, Junction City, Ark., son of Mrs. Marian Mitcham, Junction City and Robert Mitcham of Bernice.

Dr. Clifton R. Tennison performed the double ring ceremonies for which nuptial music was provided by Ronnie Brothers, organist, and Mrs. George Temple, soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Ray Neal, violinist and her daughter, Elizabeth Neal at the piano.

Glowing tapers in gold candelabra and candle trees arranged with magnolia blooms and foliage and baskets of magnolias on white colonial pedestals formed a background setting for the exchange of vows. The couples knelt on white prie dieus for the benediction.

The brides were given in marriage by their father. Joy wore a cameo gown of bridal glow satin with pearl and crystal embroidered Alencon lace bodice and train. Her veil of imported silk illusion held by a crystal embroidered Alencon lace tiara fell waist length. Joan wore a pale ivory gown of Bridalglow satin, enriched with Chantilly lace motifs encircling the skirt and outlining the neck from which fell her Watteau train. Her veil of imported silk illusion was held in place by a tiara of pearls and teardrops. Their identical bouquets were of yellow-throated white orchids with white roses carried atop white Bibles.

The sisters served each other as honor attendants. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jack P. Humble Jr., Miss Carol Tennison, Mrs. Richard Drew and Mrs. Robert Humble. They wore floor length gowns of gold imported chiffon and grape-patterned Venice lace complemented by gold picture hats and carried white baskets of yellow and white daisies with miniature Hahn's ivy and white roses. Candlelighters, Misses Linda Kay and Nancy Williams, wore floor length dresses of gold peau de soie and white wrist corsages.

Flower girls were Jody Humble and Nancy McLemore, who wore gold floor length Empire frocks with puff sleeves and matching picture hats. They also carried small baskets of white roses, daisies and ivy.

Serving as best man for Mr. Williams was Donald Spooner while Terry Enis attended Mr. Mitcham as best man. Groomsmen-ushers were Jerry Farrar, Wayne Hall, Bennie Aycock and Paul Enis. Robert Halsell and Dallas Humble, cousins of the brides, acted as ring bearers.

Mrs. Humble, mother of the brides, wore a mauve pink lace sheath with crepe cummerbund and small flowered hat. Her corsage was a yellow-throated purple orchid. Mrs. Williams selected a Caribe blue lace sheath with matching accessories and a yellow-throated white orchid and Mrs. Mitcham was wearing a blue Chantilly lace sheath over taffeta with accessories to match and a yellow-throated white orchid.

Reception

A reception followed in the church parlor where the brides' cakes were served from tables covered in floor length white satin cloths, garlanded with Southern smilax. Mrs. Ann May and Mrs. C. S. Sykes served the cake for Joan and Mrs. James Nelson and Mrs. Quinton McLemore served Joy's cake.

Central decor for the white satin covered punch table was an arrangement of white roses and stock with white tapers. Presiding at the two silver punch bowls, wreathed in smilax and springari fern, were Mrs. Drew Anderson, Mrs. Don Halsell, Mrs. Boyce Humble, Mrs. Victor Boyd, Mrs. L. J. Bower, Mrs. Thurston Baggett, Mrs. Floyd Humble and Mrs. John Breard III.

Mrs. Jerry Farrar and Mrs. Roger Reinhardt presided at the brides books, and tea girls were Misses Sharon Harrelson, Dona Johns and Judy Hilburn.

When Mr. and Mrs. Williams left for a wedding trip to Chattanooga, Tenn., the bride was wearing a blue-green suit with lizard accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. They will be at home in El Dorado, Ark. The bride is a graduate of West Monroe high school and a senior at Louisiana Tech, majoring in home economics teacher training. Mr. Williams received his B.S. degree in accounting from Louisiana Tech and is employed by Monsanto Chemical Company of El Dorado.

For departure on their wedding trip to Arkansas and Missouri Mrs. Mitcham changed into a deep rose silk suit with matching accessories and flowered brim hat and the orchid from her bouquet. Upon their return the Mitchams will be at home in Monroe. She is a graduate of Ouachita Parish high school, Cloyd's Beauty school and of the Comer-Doran advanced hair styling school of Hollywood, Calif. A graduate of Junction City high school, Mr. Mitcham is now a senior at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

Fred Cook Jr., Bride Plan Baton Rouge Home

Miss Sandra Ann Mayer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lester Mayer of New Orleans, became the bride of Fred Blanks Cook Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Blanks Cook Sr. of Monroe, in ceremonies solemnized August 18 at 6 p.m. at St. Pius X church, New Orleans.

Msgr. Arthur Screen officiated with the bride's brother, David Frank Mayer serving as an acolyte.

The bride wore an Empire gown of pale ivory peau de soie. Re-embroidered Alencon lace, studded with seed pearls trimmed the waistline, short sleeves and A-line, redingote skirt, which ended in a cathedral train. Her veil was held in place by a coronet of pearl-encrusted lace and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of gardenias and English ivy.

Miss Julie Ann Mayer was her sister's maid of honor. Other bridal attendants were Miss Susan McGuinness, Miss Mary Catherine Becnel and Mrs. Wayne Schexnayder. They wore long A-line dresses of watermelon linen with Sabrina necklines and brief sleeves. Their cascade bouquets comprised cymbidium orchids with burgundy throats, purple frosted grapes and English ivy.

Serving his brother as best man was Michael Calhoun Cook. Groomsmen-ushers were Daniel Lester Mayer Jr., brother of the bride; Marlow Neil Morgan, Tommy Head, John B. Salley Jr., of Monroe; Schott Mummee of New Orleans; Wayne Bardwell of Pineville and Willis Wade Noland of Lake Charles. Michael Mayer, also a brother of the bride, was junior groomsman.

Upon their return from a wedding trip to Point Clear, Alabama, the couple will be at home in Baton Rouge, where Mr. Cook will graduate in January from LSU.

Others attending from Monroe were Mrs. Amiee C. Cook, Mrs. Gordon Lee Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Eaves.

MRS. FRED BLANKS COOK JR.

Fur Lashes Are 'Sun Strainers' In Harsh Light

Face the sun in style this summer in a pair of heavy Natural Fur lashes. Frankly fake in the bright sunshine, fur lashes are fun to wear as a sun accessory and give dramatic expression to eyes that may seem "washed out" in the harsh daylight.

What's more, the heavy fur lashes act as "sun strainers," and actually offer a certain amout of protection against glare, according to David Aylott, head of Eylure, world's largest maker of false lashes.

"Nature provides your own lashes as protection against light and dust," the lash expert explained recently.

"By wearing heavy fur lashes, you add an additional velvety barrier between the sunlight and your eyes. They keep you from squiting and they're fun to wear, too. Especially for girls who enjoy fluttering their eyelashes and don't want to hide behind sunglasses the whole time!"

Miss Betty Diane West Weds Michael Herrington

Myriad white tapers in candle trees and branched candelabra illuminated Parkview Baptist Church Saturday, August 28 for the wedding of Miss Betty Diane West, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. West, 2100 Oliver Road, to Michael Herrington, son of Mayor and Mrs. M. C. Herrington of Olive Branch, Mississippi.

Completing the setting for the 6 p.m. ceremony performed by Rev. James R. Edwards, were two arrangements of mixed white flowers atop white pedestals at each side of the steps leading to the altar. Appropriate music was presented by Mrs. W. W. Wilkerson, organist and Miss Ann Brockman, soloist.

Mr. West gave his daughter in marriage. The bride's gown of silk cloud taffeta was designed with moulded bodice featuring a sweetheart neckline, enhanced with lace appliques. The billowing full skirt which terminated in a cathedral train was also embellished with lace appliques, encrusted with iridesdent sequins. Her heirloom mantilla of English illusion was bordered in reembroidered Alencon lace. She carried a cascade bouquet which comprised a white cattleya orchid, stephanotis and lily of the valley.

Dressed in willow green and carrying bouquets of Harvest roses were the bride's attendants, Miss Sherry Baker, Jackson, Miss., as maid of honor and the bridesmaids, Miss Kathy McSherry, Miss Carol Koontz, Monroe; Miss Judy Cobb, Memphis, Tenn., Miss Jean Kinard of Jackson, and junior bridesmaid, Miss Carol Herrington, sister of the groom. Their gowns featured floor length sheath skirts of chiffon with scoop necked bodices and ruffled elbow sleeves of Chantilly lace, all in the willow green. They wore matching Dior bows and willow green slippers.

Misses Kathy and Karen Ledoux, nieces of the bride, who served as flower girls, were dresses identically to the other attendants with headpieces of roses and miniature ivy. They carried nosegays of minature yellow roses.

Mr. Herrington served his son as best man and groomsmen were Gerald Chatham, Hernando, Miss., Robert Smith of Jackson; Joe Tuggle, Olive Branch and Walkie Woods, Cleveland, Miss. Serving as ushers were Bob Carrington, Byhalia, Miss., Barry Bridgforth, Pleasant Hill, Miss., and Martin McGee of Jackson.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception at Bayou DeSiard Country Club. Mrs. West received her guests wearing a full length sheath of beige satin with an overlay of matching Chantilly lace, with jewel neckline and a butterfly cape attached to the elbow length sleeves. The groom's mother, Mrs. Herrington, was wearing a two piece sheath of mint green silk barrethea with crystal beading at the neck and hemline. Both mothers wore corsages of yellow cymbidium orchids.

An arrangement of mixed yellow flowers in an epergne adorned a table in the entrance hall, an ad massive bouquet of yellow blossoms was placed on the grand piano. A silver punch bowl which centered the refreshment table was flanked by five branch silver candelabra with arrangements of yellow roses.

Assisting with reception courtesies were Mrs. H. W. McSherry, Mrs. B. W. Sperry, Mrs. A. M. Kite, Mrs. H. F. Parris, Mrs. W. H. Baker of Jackson; Mrs. D. A. Strickland, Mrs. E. M. Koontz and Mrs. C. H. Moncrief. Presiding at the guest book were Miss Polly Parrish and Miss Nancy Crossland.

Tea girls were Miss Heidi Rowan, Miss K. K. Kite, Miss Katie Trimble, Miss Ann Stevenson, Mrs. John Joyce, Mrs. Henry Cole, Miss Maidye Strickland and Miss Linda Ladner.

For their wedding trip to Nassau in the Bahamas the bride donned a suit of olive green silk tweed with hat of imported forest green velvet with black kid band and black accessories. Her corsage was a white cattleya orchid. Upon their return the couple will be at home in Oxford, Mississippi where they will continue studies at the University of Mississippi. The bride is a member of Kappa Delta sorority and Mr. Herrington's fraternity is Sigma Nu.

MRS. CHARLES RICHARD DEAN

Double Ring Vows Unite Sara Womack, Ohio Man

In a double ring ceremony Friday, August 27 in the First Baptist Church of Monroe, Miss Sara Blanton Womack, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Womack, 508 McCain Drive, became the bride of Charles Richard Dean of Palo Alto, Calif., son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Dean of Amesville, Ohio.

A large pyramid arrangement of white gladioli, stock, chrysanthemums, agapanthius and asters, outlined by a candelabra arch holding crystal votive candles formed a background setting at the altar where Dr. James T. Horton performed the vows at 7:30 p.m. Spiral and cathedral candelabra, entwined with springerii fern and holding votive lights, flanked the central arrangement.

An organ prelude was rendered by Ronny Brothers, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Bill Santo of Bastrop.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie with scoop neck, elbow sleeves and bell shaped skirt. A court train, appliqued with lace and seed pearls was pleated to a contour cummerbund, also adorned with applique motifs. Her veil of silk illusion was attached to a crown of pearls and crystals and she carried a cascade bouquet of white bride's roses, stephanotis blossoms and a white cattleya orchid.

Attending the bride were her sister, Miss Anita Womack as maid of honor and her cousin, Miss Myra Gail Womack, bridesmaid. Their gowns of yellow crystal satin styled with scoop necks, elbow sleeves and belled skirts. They wore matching shoes and circlets of tulle attached to wedding ring headdresses, and carried nosegays of miniature chrysanthemums, outlined with white maline and touches of English ivy with streamers of maline and satin.

Mrs. Womack, mother of the bride, wore a dress of orchid lace over taffeta with white accessories and an orchid cymbidium orchid. The groom's mother wore an early fall model and a corsage of white orchids.

The church parlor was scene of the reception which followed the ceremony. The refreshment table which centered the room was covered with a white organdy ruffled cloth, and adorned with a silver and cut glass epergne holding a pair of tapers and an arrangement of white stock, roses, lily of the Nile and pompons. Mrs. Otto Womack and Miss Frances Yeldell presided at the twin crystal punch bowls and serving the cake were Mrs. Larry Dean and Miss Sue Van Dyke. Miss Jerilyn Gilstrap presided at the guest book at a table where a memory candle was displayed inside a hurricane shade. Tea girls were Misses Shirley Allen, Pat Brothers and Mary Alice Yeldell.

Following a tour of the Southwest the couple will be at home at 1089 Tanland Drive, Apt. 103, Palo Alto, Calif. For travel the bride wore an aqua and beige tweed three piece suit with black patent accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Dean, who received her B.A. degree from Northeast Louisiana State College, attended Ohio University working towards her master's degree. She is a member of Phi Beta speech and music fraternity and Alpha Psi Omega dramatics honorary. Mr. Dean received his B.S.Ed and M.A. degrees from Ohio University and is presently enrolled at Sanford University working toward the PhD in speech pathology.

Dorothy Marion Bray, Mississippi Man Wed

An afternoon ceremony on Saturday, August 28 in Trinity Episcopal Church, Tallulah, united in marriage Miss Dorothy Marion Bray, daughter of Mrs. Arthur Gould Bray Jr. and the late Mr. Bray of Tallulah, and Peter Case Everett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Brayton Everett of Jackson, Miss.

The Rev. Christoph Keller Jr. performed the vows at 4 p.m. Mrs. J. E. Clark Jr., organist, presented nuptial music as the candles were lighted by Thomas Bray and Robert Everett, cousin and brother of the bride and groom.

White stock and chrysanthemums decorated the altar, on either side of which were candelabra, entwined with ivy and holding cathedral candles and baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums.

Given in marriage by her brother, Arthur Bray, the bride was wearing her mother's wedding gown of ivory silk satin, fashioned with sweetheart neckline and long sleeves tapering to points over the hands. Panels of soft folds on either side of the full floor length skirt, drifted to a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of imported Belgium lace was worn mantilla style and she carried a bouquet of roses and stephanotis. Her only jewelry was a string of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Mrs. Bena Ball of Rayville, maid of honor and bridesmaids, Miss Diane Todd of Tallulah and Mrs. Robert Laird of Jackson, Miss., sister of the groom, wore identical gowns of gold crepe, styled on directoire lines with controlled skirts and bodices of deeper gold velvet having Sabrina necklines and elbow sleeves. Their headdresses were matching gold maline pillbox hats with back bows and they carried bouquets of bronze Fuji chrysanthemums and yellow pompons, tied with gold velvet streamers.

Mr. Everett attended his son as best man and ushers were Robert C. Everett, brother of the groom; George B. Gardner and Minor C. Sumners Jr., all of Jackson, Miss., and N. Thomas Bray of Clinton, Tenn., cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Bray chose for her daughter's wedding a three piece costume suit of linen lace with matching shoes, a hat of ostrich feathers and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Everett, mother of the groom, wore a blue brocade suit with matching accessories and an orchid corsage.

Tallulah Country Club was scene of the reception which followed the ceremony. The fire place, which formed a background for the receiving line, was banked with magnolia foliage and the mantel above, held an arrangement of white gladioli and yellow chrysanthemums balanced with yellow tapers in silver candle sticks.

A five branched silver candelabra, entwined with ivy and based with the bridesmaids' bouquets formed the central decor for the refreshment table, where Miss Betty Calvert and Mrs. George Deacon presided at the silver punch bowls. Miss Betty Beasley of Alexandria, served the tiered wedding cake at a table, garlanded with nosegays of yellow blossoms and ribbons. Miss Emily Woodyear had charge of the guest book at a table, ornamented with a memory candle.

Assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. N. T. Bray, Mrs. S. C. Bray, Mrs. C. S. Thomas, Mrs. R. W. Calvert, Mrs. Eugene Holtzclaw and Mrs. R. G. Long.

When the couple left for a trip to New Orleans and the Gulf Coast the bride was wearing a teal blue silk model, complemented by a scarf of muted plaid Indian silk and matching pillbox hat. Her accessories were of lizard.

Mrs. Everett is a graduate of Tallulah high school and Louisiana State University with a degree in business education. She is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. Mr. Everett was graduated from Columbia Military Academy, Columbia, Tenn., and the University of Mississippi.

YELLOW RABBIT

Sure. You've never seen a yellow rabbit. But that didn't stop designer Anne Fogarty. She got the rabbit skins, dyed them yellow and made a coat. It was shown in her fall and winter collection. Under it: a yellow cashmere dress.

Miss Teddy Lee Dixon Bride Of Frank Varino

On Saturday, August 28 in Jesus the Good Shepherd Church, Miss Teddy Lee Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Griffith, 1607 Emerson, became the bride of Frank Richard Varino, son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Varino, 1717 South Grand.

Arrangements of white gladioli decorated the main altar for the 10 a.m. ceremony performed by The Rev. Dave Dabria. Serving as altar boys were Jimmy Balsamo and Paul Riley.

A prenuptial concert was rendered by Mrs. Hubert Harold Price, organist, who also accompanied the soloist, Mrs. John H. Filhiol.

Mr. Griffith gave the bride in marriage. She wore a traditional design gown of peau de soie and reembroidered Alencon lace, featuring a Sabrina neckline accented by the lace which extended in panels down the princess bodice. The controlled dome shaped skirt was draped into a paniered back with cathedral train. Her tiered veil of English silk illusion cascaded from a crown of pearls. She carried a crescent bouquet of white butterfly roses and stephanotis centered with a white orchid, showered with streamers in love knots.

The bride's sisters, Miss Billie Sue Dixon and Mrs. Ralph E. Roberts, served as maid and matron of honor, respectively. They wore floor length empire gowns of pink peau de soie with scoop necklines and chapel trains, with wide-brimmed hats of pink peau de soie, trimmed in matching velvet ribbon. Their bouquets comprised pink glamellias and pink sensation roses in crescent design with streamers and love knots.

Dressed identically to the honor attendants was the flower girl, Miss Janice Lynn Russo, who carried a miniature identical bouquet.

Andrew Varino attended his brother as best man and groomsman was Ralph E. Roberts. Serving as ushers were James L. Peters and Raymond Varino, cousin of the groom.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Griffith wore a powder blue silk shantung gown with lace bodice and hat of matching silk organza. Her accessories were of matching shade and she wore a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. The bridegroom's mother chose a seafoam green silk model with self fabric hat, matching accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

The Paragon Supper club was scene of the reception which followed the ceremony at 11 a.m. Floor length white satin cloths covered the tables for the bride's cake, groom's cake, guest book and punch bowls. Central decor for the punch table was an arrangement of pink sensation roses in a white cherub container with tall pink tapers in cherub candelabra. Red roses decorated the groom's cake table and a pink memory candle ornamented the bride's book table.

Mrs. J. W. Jackson served the bride's tiered cake and Mrs. Beuford Jacka presided at the groom's cake table. Mrs. Leonard Russo, Mrs. Phillip Lynch Jr., and Mrs. A. J. Pendola served at the punch bowls. Miss Elaine Hanna was at the guest book, and rice bags were presented guests by Misses Leah June Eby, Janet Ann Lynch, Marrianne Russo and Joy Russo. The bags were carried in white garden baskets with pink satin handles, tied with pink sensation roses.

For their wedding trip to Miami Beach, Florida, the bride changed into a navy blue linen suit with red trim, and navy and white polka dot blouse. She wore a navy beret and red accessories. They will be at home in Monroe.

The bride is a graduate of Neville high school and of Northeast Louisiana State College with a B. S. degree in secretarial science. She is a member of Phi Mu. Mr. Varino finished St. Matthews high school, is a graduate of business school and presently a junior at Northeast majoring in business administration.

Rounded Toe Is Go For Fall

The sensational shoe story for fall and winter is "Go, go with the rounded toe," reports the National Shoe Institute. This youthful concept is strongly represented in a variety of new toe shapes, each lending its dates fashion for a fresher, ity of the new silhouettes upyoung girl look — one that joins supreme comfort with timeless chic.

The straps and ties that came into their own last season are making an even bigger smash now. The new toe shapes are perfect foils for them.

The cross strap is found in limitless versions, both broad, narrow and in color combinations — tawny tans with greengrey tones, winter pales with darker taupes, and the startle of bright blues teamed with tomato reds. Colors march along with the new toe shapes and the fresh imgredient of unexpected materials makes its bow — grey flannel sparked with a black calf buckle, taut red wool trimmed with reptile. A classic spat look in grey button trim is a suitable accompaniment to new fall suits.

The toe story is the go story! As contemporary as the discotheque, as classic as the fox trot — the natural, rounded toe is in for every phase of modern life.

West Monroe Couple Has All White Wedding

A magnolia arch flanked by candle trees and baskets of white stock decorated the altar of Fair Park Baptist Church for the wedding Friday, August 27 of Miss Cheryl Darlene Skipper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barney W. Skipper and Thomas Boyd Wilhite, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Wilhite, all of West Monroe.

Rev. Louis Wilhite read the double ring vows at 7:30 p.m. following a prenuptial concert by the organist, Mrs. Dayton Guillot and soloist, Dave Norris.

Escorted by her father who gave her in marriage the bride wore a floor length gown of white silk organza. Neckline of the fitted bodice was outlined with scalloped Alencon lace embroidered with pearls and sequins. Lace also formed a front panel and encircled the hem of the skirt and the chapel train. Her illusion veil cascaded elbow length from a tiara of Alencon lace, studded with pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of white roses surrounding a white orchid, on a white Bible.

The white bridal theme was carried out in the attire of the bride's attendants, which featured white embroidered cotton dresses with scalloped necklines and sleeves. Mrs. Neil Young served as matron of honor; Miss Pamela Morrow, Miss Anita Laster and Miss Janice Baxter, bridesmaids and Miss Helen Skipper, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. White Dior bows accented with pearls and brief veils formed their headpieces and they carried single white roses.

Also dressed like the other attendants were Miss Mary White, candlelighter, who wore a wrist corsage of white pompons and white roses and the flower girl, Miss Deborah Parker, who carried a basket of white roses.

A reception followed in the church reception hall where baskets of white stock were placed at vantage points. White roses formed the central decor for the lace covered bride's table while white summer flowers were used on the groom's table. Mrs. Jim Neil and Mrs. Bobby Womack served the bride's cake and presiding at the punch bowl were Mrs. Aubrey Laster and Mrs. Royce Whitlock. Mrs. Carol George, Mrs. John Stimac and Mrs. Arthur Vancil served coffee and groom's cake.

Miss Lynn Green, wearing a white lace dress and a corsage of white roses, presided at the guest book. Tea girls, all of whom wore pastel frocks were Misses Mary Sue Powers, Kay Hammonds and Nancy Landreaux and distributing rice bags were Misses Karen Ouchley, Elizabeth Peterson and Nancy White.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip to Baton Rouge the bride was wearing an ice blue linen suit with black patent accessories and wedding ring hat, trimmed with mink. They will be at home at 309 Western Street, Ruston, where both are attending Louisiana Tech. Mr. Wilhite is scheduled to graduate in January, 1966.

Study Reveals Shoplifter Ways

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The average shoplifter takes four items with a total value of $3.75 every time he sallies forth to steal, reports one merchants' protective service.

Actual cases of 8,521 shoplifters were studied by Commercial Service Systems, Inc. The company reported that the adult shoplifter is usually between 18 and 29 years old. Of the cases studied, the split between male and femaie was just about even.

The supermarket's drug and sundries section was the most theft-prone area, with the three to six p.m. time period on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday particularly vulnerable days.

MISS GLENDA SUE YOUNG

Miss Glenda Sue Young To Wed Ensign Howze Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Young, 140 Lomaland Drive, West Monroe, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Glenda Sue Young to Ensign Odis William Howze Jr., Naval Air Base, Norfolk, Virginia.

The future bridegroom is the son of Odis W. Howze Sr., 1003 Dean Chapel Road, West Monroe and Mrs. Ethel Williams of Chula Vista, Calif.

Chosen to serve as matron of honor by the bride-elect is Mrs. Joyce Oxford and Ensign Douglas Oxford will attend the bridegroom as best man.

Miss Young is the granddaughter of Mrs. Lura Fordham and the late W. E. Fordham of West Monroe and W. D. Young and the late Mrs. Young of Hodge. A graduate of West Monroe high school, she received her B.S. degree from Louisiana Polytechnic Institute and M.Ed. degree at Northeast Louisiana State College. She is a member of Delta Zeta sorority.

The prospective bridegroom is the grandson of Ben Brady and the late Mrs. Brady and the late Mr. and Mrs. John Allen Howze, all of West Monroe. A member of Kappa Alpha fraternity, he graduated from West Monroe high school and attended Louisiana Polytechnic Institute and Northeast State College.

Ensign Howze is a pilot in the U.S. Navy with the Air Anti-Submarine Squadron. During his absence on sea duty his bride will be an instructor in the department of Health and Physical Education at Northwestern State College, Natchitoches.

Cookbook Is Bridal Must

NEW YORK (UPI) — A home economist says a bride should invest in one well-indexed, up to date cookbook.

That cookbook should be studied for simple menu suggestions and easy to make dishes. One way to tell an easy recipe, says Ann MacGregor home economist for Amana Refrigeration, Inc., is to count the number of ingredients called for. If the recipe lists 10 or more, she says the bride should look for something simpler.

Charlotte Little, Fiance Calendar October Vows

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Little, 2911 DeSiard Street, Monroe, announce the engagement of their daughter, Charlotte Ann Little to Clay Andrew Ray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ray of Bunkie.

The wedding is calendared for October 23 at 10 a.m. in St. Paschal's Catholic Church with the Rev. Vitus Duschinsky officiating.

Miss Little has chosen Miss Glenda Hart as her maid of honor. Dayton Matthews will serve Mr. Ray as best man and named as ushers are Vernon Ray and Marshall Williams.

The granddaughter of Mrs. Houston Williams and Mrs. C. L. Little, the bride elect was graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College.

Mr. Ray is the grandson of Mrs. Bernard Ray. He finished Washington high school and graduated from the University of Southwestern Louisiana and is a member of Sigma Alpha Gamma and Alpha Zeta.

The couple will be at home at following their marriage in New Iberia where Mr. Ray is agronomist with the Soil Conservation Service of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Girdles Draw Research Attack

NEW YORK (UPI) — Researchers at St. Vincent's Hospital recently launched a new assault on the "panty girdle syndrome" problem, first brought to public attention by two medical doctors at the hospital in a report published by the New York State Journal of Medicine.

Symptoms of the syndrome, researchers have found, include a swelling of the feet and ankles due to the tourniquet-like effect of some girdles which cut off the circulation of body fluids to lower extremeties.

AVOCADO DIP

Katherine Mignon Scogin Weds Max L. Riley Jr.

An arch of candelabra holding crystal votive lights formed a background for pedestaled cathedral urns filled with white gladioli, chrysanthemums, agapanthus, asters and pompons in Parkview Baptist Church for the wedding of Miss Katherine Mignon Scogin and Max Leroy Riley Jr. on Sunday, August 22.

Twin arrangements of the all white flowers and votive lights were placed at the base of the stairway leading to the altar. E. C. McKenzie, minister of Jackson Street Church of Christ, performed the double ring ceremony at 4 p.m. with prayer by Rev. J. R. Edwards of Parkview Church.

A program of nuptial music was rendered by Mrs. William W. Wilkerson, organist and the soloist, Miss Nancy Walker, of Minden.

The bride was escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage. Her gown of ivory silk peau de soie was fashioned on sheath lines with Empire bodice of reembroidered Alencon lace, dotted with seed pearls, and scalloped neckline which dipped to a deep scooped line in back, from which her full cathedral train fell. Her veil of ivory imported illusion was attached to a crown of seed pearls and crystal tear drops. She carried a bouquet of white bridal roses, stephanotis and English ivy in cascade design with a shower of lace and satin ribbon.

Mrs. Joseph B. Thomas, sister of the bride, who served as matron of honor, wore a floor length gown of pale aqua silk organza over taffeta. The empire bodice of Schiffli embroidery was styled with scoop neckline and elbow sleeves. Floating back panels drifted over the slim skirt. Bridesmaids, dressed identically to the honor attendant, were Miss Evelyn Munson of Zachary; Miss Mary Ann Caldwell, and Miss Barbara Jackson of Monroe and Miss Sherry Free, Beaumont, Texas. They wore matching aqua shoes and lace-edged fans of white satin, to which were attached pink cymbidium orchids and English ivy with a shower of lace and satin ribbon.

Mr. Riley attended his son as best man and groomsmen were Howard Rivers, Monroe; Hardy Hays of Arcadia; Charles Dunlap of El Dorado, Ark., and Tommy Adkins of Homer. Serving as ushers were Joe B. Thomas, James Guthrie, Cookie Cookston, all of Monroe; Lee Denson, John Scogin III of New Orleans and Paul Koelling of Dallas, Texas.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a pale pink silk crepe slim skirt attached to a fitted bodice of pale pink Alencon lace; a small pink hat of layered illusion and brief veil and shoes of pink kid. Her corsage was of pink cymbidium orchids. Mrs. Riley was wearing a street length sheath of moss green lace with long-sleeved overblouse, banded in moss green satin. Her corsage of green orchids was attached to her purse.

RECEPTION

The bride's parents entertained at a reception at Bayou DeSiard Country Club following the ceremony. In the entrance an antique cupid candelabra held crystal votive candles and an arrangement of white stock, roses, agapanthus and miniature chrysanthemums reflected in a gold leaf mirror. Twin arrangements of magnolia foliage in white urns on tall pedestals formed a background for the receiving line.

Punch was served from twin round tables holding silver punch bowls and adorned with clustered arrangements of white asters, pompons, ivy and pairs of love birds in hurricane globes centered with crystal votives.

The bride's table, draped in white satin overlaid with organdy, held the tiered wedding cake on either side of which were antique cherub epergnes holding tall arrangements of white Quill Fuji chrysanthemums, stock and pompons with garlands of boxwood roping. Guests registered at a small round table which held an arrangement matching those on the punch tables.

Nosegay arrangements of miniature pompons, ivy and yellow lace ruffles with white streamers decorated the porch of the club where the table centerpiece was of white Lily of the Nile and miniature blossoms centered with love birds.

Presiding at the punch bowls were Miss Lila Scogin, Mrs. Meyer Greenwald, Mrs. Kenneth Sole, Mrs. Charles Ferguson, Mrs. E. M. Strong and Mrs. John Scogin III. Serving at the cake table were Mrs. D. F. Burkhalter, Mrs. C. B. Folds and Mrs. Charles Ferguson and at the guest book were Mrs. Frank Koelling and Mrs. G. H. Strong. Petit fours were passed by Misses Martha Rice, Liz Folds, Joan Burkhalter and Pat Lightfoot and presenting rice bags were Sue Burkhalter, Kathy Folds, Alta Thomas and Margaret Thomas.

The bride changed to a wine colored transitional cotton with bib front of pink lace and embroidery, and black patent accessories, for their wedding trip to Dallas, Texas. They will be at home in Ruston where Mr. Riley will continue studies at Louisiana Tech. Both are graduates of Neville high school and the bride is a graduate of Louisiana Tech. She is a member of Kappa Delta sorority and his fraternity is Sigma Nu.

MISS REATA GAY DAVIDSON

September Wedding Set

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Clay Davidson of Monroe, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Reata Gay Davidson to Kenneth Charles Slusher. He is the son of Mrs. Hopkins Davide and the late S. H. Slusher.

The wedding is planned for September 25 at 7:30 p.m. in Temple Baptist Church of Monroe with the Rev. Leon Ivey officiating. A reception will follow in the church parlor.

Both Miss Davidson and Mr. Slusher were graduated from Ouachita Parish high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. Following their marriage they will be at home in Monroe where both are employed.

Trip To Nassau Follows Lenzinger-Zeidman Vows

Peonies, white snapdragons and lemon leaves flanked by candelabra entwined with ivy formed a setting in All Souls Unitarian Church, Shreveport Saturday, August 28 for the wedding of Miss Susan Zeidman, Canoga Park, Calif., and Larry Lenzinger of Woodland Hills, Calif.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Zeidman of Shreveport, formerly of Monroe, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Bandy of West Monroe. Mr. Lenzinger is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Lenzinger, Woodland Hills, Calif., and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Foley, Shreveport.

Mr. Zeidman was soloist for his daughter's wedding and also gave the bride in marriage. She wore a semi-sheath gown of white peau de soie in floor length with Chantilly lace bolero encrusted with pearls and sequins. Her veil of illusion was attached to a jewel-studded lace pillbox. She carried a bouquet of Fuji chrysanthemums and stephanotis.

Miss Barbara Zeidman, Los Angeles, Calif., was maid of honor for her sister and bridesmaids were Mrs. Janice Carter of West Monroe and Mrs. Barbara Vailes, Shreveport. They were identically gowned in lavender chiffon sheaths over taffeta and carried bouquets of blue and lavender sweetpeas, roses and white wisteria.

Candles were lighted by Misses Paige and Denise Lenzinger, sisters of the groom.

Jerry Lenzinger served his brother as best man and groomsmen-ushers were David Zeidman, twin brother of the bride and Danny Zeidman, also her brother.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents were hosts at a buffet reception in the Women's Department Club, Shreveport. Mrs. Donna Lenzinger, sister-in-law of the groom, presided at the bride's book and rice bags were distributed by Misses Michelle Prince and Alexis Gabay.

After a wedding trip to Nassau in the Bahama Islands the couple will be at home in Woodland Hills, Calif. The bride is a graduate of Byrd high school, Shreveport, and is presently attending Pierce College in Woodland Hills. Mr. Lenzinger graduated from Venice, Calif., high school and received his B. S. degree in electronic engineering from San Fernando Valley State College. He is presently employed with Rocketdyne Defense Industry.

Homeowners Spruce Up

NEW YORK (UPI) — The nation's homeowners are embarked on a record amount of large-scale home improvements this year and will borrow more than $2 billion to finance the work.

The average home remodeling job financed through a contractor will cost about $3,000, according to Peoples National Fund Inc., nationwide home improvement finance specialists.

Time Adds Up In Supermarket

NEW YORK (UPI) — The average housewife spends 45 minutes a week in the supermarket and makes up to 30 decisions in that time, reports "Of Mutual Interest," a newsletter.

FORTHCOMING marriage of Miss Ada Jean Castleberry and James Grady Berry of Lake Charles, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Castleberry of Bastrop. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Berry of Lake Charles. The wedding will be solemnized on September 25 at 2 p.m. in the home of the bride's parents in Bastrop.

MRS. ROBERT LAMOIN CHAMBLESS

Chambless-Wilkins Vows Read In Floral Setting

In a setting of lighted candles and arrangements of Fuji chrysanthemums, palms and English ivy, Miss Wanda Lorene Wilkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Merlin Wilkins, 500 Shore Drive, Monroe, and Robert Lamoin Chambless, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Chambless, 114 Vernon Drive, West Monroe, exchanged wedding vows Sunday, August 22.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. T. F. Tenney and Rev. E. W. Caughron in the First United Pentecostal Church, West Monroe at 4 p.m. Music was provided by Mrs. Wayne Fordham, organist; Wayne Fordham, guitarist and Kenneth Brady and Rev. W. W. Self, soloists.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a full length princess line gown of silk peau de soie, featuring a jewel neckline and long pointed sleeves. Beaded appliques outlined the neckline. The demi-full skirt ended in a chapel train. Her mantilla veil which extended beyond the chapel train, was also bordered in Chantilly lace. The bride carried a bouquet comprising 21 red roses with white satin leaves and ribbons.

Wearing Empire style gowns of candy pink peau de soie were the bride's attendants, Mrs. W. H. Chilton, matron of honor and Miss Ann Erickson and Miss Phyllis Knighten, bridesmaids. The full length skirts were accented by floating back panels and their headdresses were matching double bows. They carried bouquets of pink Fuji chrysanthemums with white satin ribbon and rope loops. Melanie Brady, flower girl, wore a long dress in white crystal sashed in candy pink velvet with long streamers.

Candles were lighted by Gaylne Wilkins and Duane Hearold. Randy Self served as ring bearer.

M-Sgt. Marvin Irvin attended the bridegroom as best man and groomsmen were Wayne Chambless and Jerry Chambless, brothers of the groom. Ushers included Jim Barentine, Frances Richey, Sonny Franks and Terry Hearold.

For the occasion Mrs. Wilkins, mother of the bride, wore a teal blue Chantilly lace featuring a long slim skirt and demi - fit overblouse with long sheer sleeves. The lace pattern was accented by crystal beads and matching accessories. She wore a lavender cymbidium orchid corsage. The groom's mother chose a full length model of ecru faille with fitted bodice and bell skirt with taupe velvet belt, matching accessories and a green cymbidium orchid.

Double Ring Vows Unite Couple In Farmerville

Pedestal baskets of white chrysanthemums and gladioli illuminated by lighted cathedral tapers in branched candelabra and twin candle trees formed a background setting in First Baptist Church, Farmerville for the wedding of Miss Judith Ann Armor and Terry Douglas Ryals. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James Vance Armor of Farmerville and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Douglas Ryals of Morgan City.

Dr. Luther B. Hall performed the double ring ceremony on Saturday, August 21 at 7:30 p.m. The couple exchanged vows beneath an arch entwined with ivy and white carnations and knelt for prayer on a white prie dieu.

In the foyer a credenza held a brass candelabrum with slender white tapers an an open Bible.

Miss Barbara Adams, organist and Mrs. Kenneth D. Kilpatrick, painist, rendered a program of nuptial music as guests were seated, and also accompanied the Youth Choir and a girls' quartet as they sang.

Candles were lighted by Stan Armor, brother of the bride and Paul Kenneth Tucker, cousin of the bride, of Bernice.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Ronnie Green of Dallas, Texas, wearing an ankle length gown of tropicana peau de soie, designed with controlled bell skirt, sleeveless fitted bodice with low back decolletage from which a floating panel extended to the hemline. A large matching satin rose with veil formed her headdress and she carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Miss Maxine Washam and Miss Judy Adams of Farmerville and Mrs. William Green of Dubach and junior bridesmaid, Miss Gathy Ryals of Morgan City, sister of the groom.

Escorted by her father who gave her in marriage the bride wore a full length gown of white silk organza over peau de soie. The sculptured bodice, enhanced with Alencon lace appliques, featured a wide scalloped neckline and elbow length kimona sleeves of lace over organza, embroidered with pearls and sequins. Appliques of the lace were repeated on the semi-bell skirt and the detachable cathedral train.

Her veil of imported silk illusion was held in place by organza roses, studded with pearls. She wore a single strand of pearls and carried a cascade bouquet of white butterfly roses, ornamented with pearls.

Miss Sallie Farrar of Bernice, cousin of the bride, dressed as the other attendants, scattered rose petals in the path of the bride.

Serving as best man was Ronnie Green of Dallas. Groomsmen-ushers were Palmer Dean Jr., Harry Holloway, Eric Green and Ray Alexander. Gregory Farrar of Bernice, cousin of the bride and Miss Melanie Bennett of Farmerville, served as ring bearers.

For the occasion the bride's mother chose a gown of powder blue chiffon over peau de soie with lace cummerbund, hat of chiffon and roses in matching shade as were her other accessories. Mrs. Ryals was wearing a gown of olive green lace over matching satin with white sequin hat and olive accessories. Both mothers wore pink cymbidium orchid corsages.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents were hosts at a reception in the Blue Room of the church, which was decorated with white gladioli and chrysanthemums in massive arrangements. Miss Myrna Gayle Shackleford of Homer, presided at the bride's book at a table which displayed a memory candle, wreathed with pompons and net.

Covered with white satin and a floor length overskirt of coral net, the bride's table was centered with an arrangement of pink sensation and white butterfly roses in an antique bisque epergne. Miss Linda Henry served punch from a crystal bowl and the tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Harry Farrar Jr. Tea girls were Misses Linda Upshaw, Marianne Eldred, Jimmye Carolyn Wiley and Peggy Bailey.

For travel when the couple left on a wedding trip through the Ozarks the bride was wearing an early fall ensemble with matching accessories. On their return the couple will be at home in Ruston where both are students at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

Shermie Clark, Jerry Cooper Exchange Vows

A candlelight ceremony on Wednesday, August 25 in the Hebert Methodist Church united in marriage Miss Shermie Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Clark of Hebert and Jerry Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cooper of Riverton. The Rev. J. W. Boyd of Columbia performed the double ring ceremony at 7 p.m.

Candles were lighted by nieces of the bride, Miss Sheila Poole and Miss Kay Clark, who wore identical yellow dresses of dacron and cotton with matching headbows. Prior to the exchange of vows Mrs. Doris Meredith presented a program of nuptial music and also accompanied Mrs. Doris Howard as she sang.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white peau de soie, fashioned with a bell shaped skirt and overskirt forming a chapel train. Lace encircled the midriff and bordered the skirt and train. Long sleeves tapered to points over the hands. Her elbow length veil of illusion fell from a headdrss of satin roses. She carried a white orchid bouquet atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Janiece Poole, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Mary Adams of Columbia and Miss Patsy Riser of Hebert. They wore belled street length frocks of green crystalline with petal shaped headdresses of self fabric. Their slippers were matching green and they wore short white gloves and carried long stem yellow gladioli.

Serving as best man was Ronnie Bennett of Bosco, and ushers were Bruce Kenney, Gerald Dumas and Gary Mott, cousin of the bride.

Mrs. Clark wore a pink silk model with matching accessories and the bridegroom's mother was dressed in a blue ensemble. Both corsages were matched to their dress color.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in their home on Lafourche Lake. Near the entrance the bride's bouquet was placed on a round table where Mrs. Merlene Clark, sister-in-law of the bride, presided at the guest book.

Extending courtesies were Mrs. Syble Kenney, serving punch, Mrs. Willie Clark, who served cake and Mrs. Georgia Tullos, at the coffee service. Miss Sharon Clark assisted with the serving, and Glynn Poole, nephew of the bride, presented rice bags to the guests.

For their short wedding trip the bride changed to a two piece ensemble with matching hat and brown accessories. The couple will be at home in Riverton. Both are graduates of Caldwell Parish high school.

Fake Aromas Tempt Sniffer

Linger by that bakery door and breathe in that heavenly aroma of fresh bread. Ah, sweet mouth-watering smell, there's nothing like it . . . or is there? Keep an aye on the jolly baker and see if he is spraying something all over his shop. If he is, you're the victim of an aromatic fraud.

It seems that many bakers, at least British ones, are buying fake bread aroma these days. They found that pre - packed bread loses that good old appetizing aroma. But they discovered a sneaky solution — fresh bread aroma in spray cans.

And, as if that isn't enough, International Management says that the company which supplies the bakers with bread aroma also produces some 5,000 other artificial smells, including knippers, flowers, babies, and farm animals.

Pretty soon you just won't be able to trust your own nose.

Dapper Male Likes Variety

NEW YORK (UPI) — Men, too, like variety when it comes to casual dressing. This season there's infinite variety in slacks. A male can choose from pleated or plain-front models; belted or beltless; vertical or angle pockets; standard or tunnel-style loops.

The increasing use of man-made fibers such as Creslan acrylic fiber which has a special affinity for dyes, has made possible shades from pale cream yellow to bright brick reds.

by Marillyn Taylor

Here we are at the end of August, with opening of school looming in the immediate future. There has been quite a bit of coming and going this week, what with everyone taking advantage of the last few days of holiday. Former Monroyan LEILA EWING was in town last weekend as guest of BITZA and EDMUND BROWN. Leila, who now lives in Atlanta, arrived on Thursday, left Monday.

Among the parties planned for this visitor was a sherry party given by JUNE McHENRY Thursday at her home on Riverside Drive. About thirty friends were invited for a reunion with Leila. June centered her table with a summer bouquet of white zinnias and calladium leaves. Sherry was served with cheese straws, dainty sandwiches, and confections.

That evening, the C. D. OAKLEYS, JR., and JOHN F. KELSOS, JR., were hosts for dinner at Bayou DeSiard country club. Among those included for this courtesy were MARY and DAVID DIXON of New Orleans.

Members of a bridge club to which Leila had belonged were invited for luncheon on Friday at the home of CISSY RYAN. TEEDEE DIXON was co-hostess for the party. The first course, fresh fruit in champagne, was served in the living room before the ten guests were seated at the dining table. Included on the menu were chicken salad, asparagus and cheese sandwiches, and lemon tarts for dessert.

The visitor and her hosts were guests of BLANCHE OLIVER and McVEA OLIVER for a late - afternoon boat ride Friday. Aboard the "Toujours Gaie", they travelled the length of the bayou to the dam and back to the Oliver dock . . . Friday evening, MARIE LOUISE and GEORGE SNELLINGS entertained at dinner complimentary to Leila.

Luncheon at Bayou DeSiard Country club was the party planned by GLO WRIGHT for this popular visitor. The table on the porch was covered with a green cloth and centered with an all-white arrangement of daisies and gladioli. Nine ladies attended . . . Sunday the Browns complimented their guest with a milk punch party at their home on Lakeside Drive. About fifteen friends were invited to share this final courtesy with Leila.

Another former Monroyan in town at this time is MAXINE BOARDMAN, now of Big Spring, Texas. Maxine is the guest of her mother-in-law, ETHEL BOARDMAN . . . Wednesday afternoon NELL FAULK complimented Maxine with a dessert bridge at her home on Forsythe avenue. Two tables of players took part in the games, with prizes going to BARRIE SPENCER, high; and BOBBY INABNET, low.

MILDRED and EDGAR McCORMICK of Oak Grove were guests for a brief visit this week in the home of MARY ETTA and TRAVIS BROWN on Pargoud boulevard. They arrived on Tuesday, and their hostess entertained with a luncheon and bridge that afternoon. ELTSNER and HARRY FRAZER took the Browns and McCormicks for a boat ride on the river that night. On Wednesday, Mildred was hostess for a luncheon at the Chateau. The McCormicks left on Thursday.

Mary Etta, who is an alumna of Centenary college in Shreveport, invited a group of prospective students and their mothers to a conversational hour at her home yesterday morning. Approximately twenty who plan to enter Centenary, including a number from Rayville and Bastrop, were expected to attend.

A prospective LSU student, PAM BURGESS, was honored at a bridge-luncheon last Monday in the home of VIRGINIA DUNN. Seventeen other college-bound girls were invited to the party. An arrangement of dahlias and calladium leaves decorated the living room. The girls were seated at three round, tables, covered with white cloths and centered with nosegays of summer flowers. The menu included deviled chicken, marinated green beans, molded salad, and caramel tarts.

Following luncheon, four tables of players took part in bridge games. Prizewinners were KATHRYN BIRD, high; and LELA ROWAN, second.

After an eight - day visit in the home of DOT MEREDITH and CLIO and DICK BRIGHT, ERNESTINE (Mrs. Carl M.) HILL has returned to her home in Dallas. This visitor was named guest of honor at a luncheon given by NOKA SERVICE last Thursday at Bayou DeSiard country club. Seven guests were seated at the round table in the main dining room. Centering the table was an arrangement of white chrysanthemums and asters . . . . Also honoring Ernestine was a boatride given by the Harry Frazers Monday evening. Fried chicken dinner was served upriver to the eight guests. The visitor left on Tuesday morning.

More guests in the Bright home were Clio's brother, J. L. LINDSEY, and his daughter, BEVERLY MIDDLETON, of Austin, Texas. They were here Wednesday and Thursday.

Congratulations to our Lt. Joseph Bowmar Society, Children of the American Revolution! The local group took prizes in all three categories of judging at the CAR Southeastern Region conference last weekend: first place for the best local society scrapbook; first for best news - sheet; and tie for first in best yearbook. They also won third place for their informal skit "The Girl from A. U. N. T. I. E.", presented as part of Friday night's program.

Over 200 young people from seven states attended the meeting at the Inn of the Six Flags, near Arlington, Texas. Another prize brought home (and quite embarrassing for the hosts) was that for the state having the largest attendance. This award was made to Louisiana — at a meeting in Texas, yet!

And speaking of Six Flags, the MILES SAGERS chose this spot for a family trip the first of the week. Joan and Miles and their three sons, MIKE, HARLAN, and BERNARD, drove over on Sunday and were guests at the Inn until Tuesday. They reported a big, hilarious day at Six Flags park.

Four visiting cousins were honored by LIL SHAW at a conversational hour Wednesday afternoon at her home on Loop road. ELLINOR GOLDMAN, LINDA WATSON, and DIANNE ADAMS of Waterproof; SUSAN MAXWELL of Ferriday, were honorees. They were houseguests at the Shaws from Monday until Thursday this week.

For Wednesday's party, Lil centered her table with gardenias in a silver bowl. Assorted bottled drinks were served with sandwiches, potato chips, candy, and pretzels. About thirty girls of the high school set were invited between two and four - thirty.

Real English tea was served when MARY ANN ATKINSON entertained complimentary to her houseguest, LUCY BURTON, Tuesday afternoon. Lucy, a former Monroyan who now lives in Marshall, Texas, visited Mary Ann from Monday until Thursday.

Hostess and honoree greeted guests at the door. Some fifty girls of the high school group attended. They were invited into the dining room, where LINDA ATKINSON presided at the tea service. The table was covered with a cutwork cloth and centered with an arrangement of pink asters in a cut glass container. Tiny sandwiches, shrimp dip, and iced cookies were served with tea.

A REAL MILESTONE is a hundredth birthday. SAMUEL H. FINLEY of Jena reached that age on Tuesday. Two of his daughters, PAULA STEELE and FORREST NORTH, drove to Jena for a spend-the-day celebration. Of his fourteen children, six survive, and all were present to have dinner, complete with birthday cake.

Guest of ROBERTA and BUDDY EUNSON over last weekend was her cousin, CHARLES DUNLAP of El Dorado. He was here for the wedding of MIGNON SCOGIN and MIKE RILEY Sunday afternoon, and the attendant festivities. Charles, who is a graduate of Louisiana Tech, will be doing graduate work at L. S. U. this fall.

Riches I hold in light esteem,
And Love I laugh to scorn;
And lust of fame was but a dream
That vanished with the morn;
And if I pray, the only prayer
That moves my lips for me
Is, "Leave the heart that now I bear,
And give me Liberty!"
Yes, as my swift days near their goal,
'Tis all that I implore;
In life and death a chainless soul,
With courage to endure.

MRS. CHARLES MICHAEL MILES

Vows Unite Pair In Ruston

First Baptist Church, Ruston was scene of the ceremony Saturday, August 28 which united in marriage Miss Ann Watson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan D. Watson of Ruston, and Charles Michael Miles of Lake Charles. He is the son of Mrs. R. W. Farrar, Lake Charles and J. E. Miles of Houma.

Clusters of Fuji chrysanthemums and variegated ivy decorated the altar with arrangements of white gladioli, stock and chrysanthemums forming a background. Dr. Clyde Fant officiated at the double ring ceremony at 6:30 p.m. following appropriate music by Miss Pat Wells of Ruston, organist and Norwell Harper, of Lake Charles, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore an empire style gown of silk organza with controlled skirt and moulded bodice featuring short shirred sleeves and scoop neckline, outlined with a wide yoke of Venice lace. The Watteau train was held in place by a row of covered buttons. A double crown of lace flowers embroidered with seed pearls held her veil of silk illusion. She wore a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and carnations atop a white Bible.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Truman Collins of Tallulah, who wore a floor length gown of pale yellow peau de soie and a veiled Dior bow headdress and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow daisies. Dressed identically to the honor attendant were Miss Brenda Guimbellot of Tallulah, bridesmaid and Miss Debbie Williams, Winnsboro, junior bridesmaid.

Jimmy Greeson of Dallas, Texas, served as best man and groomsman was Danny Watson of Ruston, brother of the bride. Ushers included Rodney Driggers of Arkansas; Leon Overby of Lake Providence and Eddie Crump of Shreveport.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the social room of the church. Miss Lynne Gordy of Tallulah, presided at the guest book and pale yellow rice bags were distributed by cousins of the bride, Miss Judy Ann Guimbellot. Miss Robin Guimbellot and Miss Cindy Farrar.

The reception table, covered with white linen, was adorned with the bouquets of the bridal attendants. Mrs. Lloyd Grafton presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Huey Warner served the tiered wedding cake. Tea girls were Misses Georgiana Lopes, Gloria Bradley, Nan Logue, Cornelia O'Kelley, Ann Hood, Gayle Farrar and Kathy Farrar.

When the couple left on a wedding trip the bride was wearing a bronzine linen suit with beige accessories and the corsage from her bouquet. They will be at home at 612 S. Monroe in Ruston. The bride was graduated from Tallulah high school and is a junior at Louisiana Tech. A graduate of Lake Charles high school, Mr. Miles is a senior at Louisiana Tech and a member of Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity.

MRS. DAVID EDWIN STILES

St. Joseph Church Scene Of Stiles-Parks Vows

Baskets of gladioli, chrysanthemums and stock and two tiers of candelabra holding cathedral candles decorated the First Methodist Church of St. Joseph for the wedding Saturday, August 28 of Miss Lynora Sue Parks, of College Station, Texas and David Edwin Stiles, Midlothian, Texas.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Edward Parks of St. Joseph and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Cloyd Franklin Stiles of Midlothian.

Wearing a gown of candlelight silk peau the bride was given in marriage by her father. The gown featured a scoop neckline, elbow sleeves and slim front skirt with deep back pleats forming a cathedral train. Re-embroidered Venetian lace encircled the sleeves, skirt and train. A matching lace pillbox held her fingertip veil of illusion. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of ivory roses, accented with pale blue miniature carnations, entwined with ivy.

Mrs. Dudley Pillow Jr of Delta, attended her sister as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Diane Todd, Tallulah, cousin of the bride; Miss Ann Coit, Newellton; Mrs. Darrell Smith of Houston, Tex., and Miss Paula Miller of St. Joseph. Their floor length gowns of periwinkle blue silk organza over taffeta were designed with Empire waistlines and floating back organza panels. Circular illusion veils anchored by silk roses in matching blue formed their headpieces and they carried French bouquets in shades of bright pink, yellow, blue and white.

Miss Allison Stiles of Nashville, Tenn., niece of the groom, who served as flower girl was dressed identically to the other attendants.

James Stiles of Midlothian served his brother as best man and groomsmen - ushers were Carmon Stiles, Fort Worth, also his brother; Terrance Oddson of Dallas; Thomas Bantle of Los Angeles, Calif., Dudley Pillow Jr. of Delta; Robert Todd of Tallulah and Bill Martin of Fort Worth.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore a costume in pink, featuring a crepe skirt and ribbon lace bodice, etched with pearls and bugle beads. She wore matching shoes and pink sequin pillbox and a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore an all-over lace sheath in Dior blue with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception at their home, Avondale Plantation. An arrangement of roses, stock, chrysanthemums and gladioli formed the centerpiece for the bride's table which was covered with a hand - embroidered Italian cloth. Pale blue, yellow and pink roses adorned the tiered wedding cake.

Serving were Misses Tomi Lou Bradley, Kathy Wade, Jane Sullins, Carolyn Parks, Linda Sue Patterson, Paula Rich, Jane Berry and Sherilyn Bailey. Tea girls were Misses Nancy and Susan Stiles, Betsy, Mary Frances and Ann Ratcliff, LaRue Myers, Jan Berry, Gail Rives, Susan Redditt, Dena and Brenda Hendrix and Kay Clarke. Rice bags were distributed by Jennifer Lancaster, Beth Berry and Kathy Stiles.

For their wedding trip to Anna Marie Island, Florida, the bride changed into a three piece ensemble of royal blue, with A-line walking coat and black lizard accessories. After September 5 they will be at home in College Station, Texas.

The bride attended Stout University, Menomonie, Wisc., Texas A & M at College Station and graduated from Texas Woman's University. She is a member of Chaparral Literary Social club, Alpha Lambda Delta and Phi Upsilon Omicron. Mr. Stiles is a senior at Texas A & M University where he is a member of Delta Sigma Chi and T Association.

New Brides Like Something Old

NEW YORK (UPI) — The decor of a former era, with its grace and dignity, is finding its way into more and more contemporary homes. Young persons especially are in the vanguard of this trend to the traditional.

Among brides-to-be, for example, traditional patterns in sterling silver flatwear have become as popular as modern and contemporary ones.

Blank Walls Not Dead End In Decorating

There's no need to run into a blank wall when you have a blank wall to decorate. Those large windowless areas, so common to recreation and family rooms, provide endless possibilities.

They can be paneled with wood, draped with curtains, painted, wallpapered or enhanced in many ways. But if you want to turn a wall into a real masterpiece, you might consider the art of mosaic pictures. Once considered institutional, murals of ceramic mosiac tile are becoming increasingly popular for home use.

There are no holds barred on colors, design or theme, and you can be your own artist. Besides adding that distinguishing "something different", the mural of ceramic mosaic tile puts the nix on maintenance. An occasional wiping with a damp cloth is all that is necessary.

MRS. EDWIN STEWART PINKSTON

Pinkston-Briggs Vows Solemnized In Ferriday

Solemnized Friday, August 27 in the First Baptist Church of Ferriday was the wedding of Miss Gloria Dawn Briggs, daughter of Mrs. Shirley Briggs and the late Rev. Briggs to Edwin Stewart Pinkston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Orville Pinkston Jr. of Lake Providence.

Pedestal baskets of white bridal flowers decorated the church sanctuary and the altar rail was banked with greenery and poufs of tulle. The setting was illuminated by burning tapers in white candle trees, lighted by Miss Janet Brown, Tallulah and Mrs. Bill Grimes, Monroe.

A program of organ music was presented by Mrs. Jack Harp, Ferriday, who also accompanied the soloist, Miss Thelma Levee, Tallulah. Rev. M. H. Fields performed the ceremony.

Miss Briggs was escorted to the altar by her cousin, John Daniel Brister Jr., of Baton Rouge. Her gown of white organza and re-embroidered Alencon lace was fashioned with a controlled skirt. The fitted bodice, detailed with pearls and sequins, featured Kabuki sleeves with self fabric bows over the shoulders. Her tiered veil of illusion was held in place by an open crown pillbox, encrusted with aurora borealis crystals, tear drops and seed pearls. A chapel train extended from a self fabric bow at the back waist. The bride's only ornament was a diamond pendant, a gift of the groom and she carried a nosegay of yellow roses surrounded by maline in shades of yellow, atop a white Bible.

Mrs. Evans Wayne Curry of Brusly, served as matron of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Loretta Dennig, Ferriday; Miss Judith Brown, Tallulah and Miss Melba Brister, Baton Rouge. They wore gowns of flower green organza over frost green taffeta. The slim line skirts were overlaid with heavy hand-cut lace in candy green and the bodices featured scoop necklines and cap sleeves. Self fabric bows formed their bandeaux and each carried a nosegay of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums, showered with ribbon streamers in shades of yellow.

Mr. Pinkston served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Evans Wayne Curry, Brusly; Jim Montrose, Pineville and Oren Warren Russell, Baton Rouge, brother-in-law of the groom.

Mrs. Briggs was wearing a gown of pale blue styled with semi-draped skirt of silk and bodice of blue lace over champagne. She wore matching accessories and hat of blue flowers and veiling and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Pinkston, mother of the groom, wore a gown of bone lace over beige taffeta and a tiny hat of rose hued flowers, with beige accessories and an orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony the bride's mother entertained at a reception in the church parlors. She was assisted by Mrs. Virgil Purvis, Mrs. Oren Warren Russell, sister of the groom; Mrs. Jack Edwards, cousin of the bride; Miss Bernice Young, Mrs. Jerry Edmondson, Miss Helen Diamond, Mrs. Joe Weber, Mrs. Earl Quinn, Mrs. John L. Overton, Miss Cheryl Robertson and Miss Elizabeth Taliaferro, Jonesville.

The bride's book and memory candle were placed on a small table decorated in shades of pink and silver. Pink and silver also appointed the bride's table, which was centered with an arrangement of pink blossoms between silver candelabra holding lighted tapers. The silver punch bowl was wreathed with pale pink flowers and tulle and the tiered wedding cake opposite was crescented with a cluster of satin wedding bells.

When the couple left on a wedding trip the bride was wearing a suit of mint green silk with hat of white petals and veiling and black patent accessories. Upon their return the couple will be at home in Baton Rouge where both will further graduate work at LSU.

Miss Pennington Wed In Double Ring Vows

Miss Katherine Louise Pennington, 1113 North 7th, Monroe, became the bride of Glen Douglas Taylor, Coronado, California, in a ceremony Saturday, August 28 in New Zion Baptist Church at Oak Grove. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Pennington of Oak Grove and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Taylor, Lovington, New Mexico.

Large yellow chrysanthemums flanked by candelabra formed a setting at the altar for the 3 p.m. double ring ceremony performed by Rev. T. B. Walls. Ivy garlanded the choir rail to complete the scene.

Miss Robbie Pennington, maid of honor, wore a knee length dress of yellow needlepoint, with matching shoes and wedding ring headdress with nose veil and carried one large yellow chrysanthemum surrounded by yellow tulle, showered with yellow streamers.

Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaids, Miss Lena Pennington, Miss Carolyn Evans and Miss Carolyn Rodgers. Flower girl, Karen Maxwell, wore a yellow needlepoint dress with matching jacket and carried a basket of yellow chrysanthemums.

Serving as best man for the bridegroom was James Taylor and ushers included Donald Pennington, Royce Pennington and Allie Pennington. Kenneth Maxwell acted as ring bearer.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. For the occasion Mrs. Pennington was wearing a navy blue suit, with matching hat, white accessories and a corsage of white chrysanthemums.

Covered with a white lace cloth the reception table held a centerpiece of yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. Annie Mae Maxwell presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Bonnie Walker served the wedding cake. Mrs. Priscilla Breland had charge of the bride's book.

For travel when the couple departed on a wedding trip to New York City the bride changed into a pink silk suit with matching accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. They will establish a home in Chula Vista, Calif.

Fashion Queries Answered

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Q: Is crepe always a fabric worn after five, or can it be worn earlier, say to church: What about lace?

A: It's never the fabric that matters, only the style of the dress. A sleeved and simple crepe can be worn anywhere, while a sleeveless dress with more formal styling would be for after five.

Q: I am 5 feet 3, weigh 120 with most of it in the hip area. I like pleated skirts, shirtwaist dresses, dislike collarless dresses. What would you advise for my figure?

A: Unfortunately, some of your own likes and dislikes are wrong for your figure. Short women look better without collars, since collarless necklines lengthen the neck. They also look slimmer without belts, which most shirtwaist dresses unfortunately have. Pleats are fine as long as they are narrow, don't bunch over your hips. In general, you would look best in princess and A-line shapes whose wider hemlines balance the hip area, and which have no belts or seams to cinch in the waist. Belting the waist only accents hips.

Q: On a tight clothes budget, what would be the best fabric and color for a dressy dress, worn mostly for day occasions? Are solid colors or small prints better, as I am a small woman.

A: Depending on the climate where you live, light wools, crepes or silks are best for general dress-up wear. You should choose the color by what becomes you, since clothes meant to last should always give pleasure. Beige or blue is good, as both are easy to accessorize. For small women solid colors usually do more than do prints.

Q: Our September tour takes us to Hawaii with stops in San Francisco and Los Angeles. We will stay in the best hotels. What clothes should I take?

A: A three-piece suit in light wool with a sleeveless silk blouse, a dress and jacket costume in linen, some separates that can be mixed and matched, in summery fabrics, a light all-weather coat (especially for San Francisco), a cocktail dress or two, one with jacket, chiffon evening dress if you will be going out evenings. These the basic wardrobe.

Q: My husband, 2-year-old daughter and I will go to Ireland in September, staying mostly in the country, with occasional trips to Dublin. The trip is by plane. What clothes do I plan?

A: Ireland is cool and often wet. Simple suits and sportswear separates, sweaters, raincoat and top coat will be needed. The baby should have sweaters and a warm sleeper, as houses are often not heated anywhere near as high as ours are. For your husband, sportswear of conservative style one city suit. For yourself in Dublin, conservative cocktail costume would do for going out.

If you have a question concerning fashion, send it to Florence de Santis, in care of this paper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Scotch Plaids Revived For College-Bound

Freshmen uncertain of their first - time college wardrobes can bank on at least one fashion that will be good anywhere in the country. Authentic Scottish plaids are back, and so are such Scottish costume items as tam O' shanters, kilt-like skirts, knee socks and fringed scarves.

A number of stores are using this total Scottish look for the uniforms worn by their college boards. Others will use travel posters of Scotland, records of bagpipe and Scottish march music, window displays with a British or Scottish theme.

Credit for this plaid revival can go to high-fashion designer David Kidd, who last fall made much of his Scottish heritage in country suits and pant-suit costumes. Now it will be seen on almost every campus.

MRS. RICHARD DALE PHILLIPS

Richard Phillips Claims Slidell Girl As Bride

The wedding of Miss Sue Ellen Baker, Slidell and Richard Dale Phillips, 2743 Point Drive, Monroe, was solemnized August 21 at 7 p.m. in the First Baptist Church of Slidell. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Baker, Slidell and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Phillips of Bogue Chitto, Mississippi.

Dr. Carl Lueg performed the double ring vows with appropriate music rendered by Mrs. A. M. Brown, organist and Miss Elizabeth Baraham, soloist. Lighted tapers formed an arch against a background of palm trees on either side of the altar. Baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums completed the bridal setting.

Mr. Baker gave the bride in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory silk peau de soie with scoop neckline and long tapering sleeves ending in calla points over the hands. Pearl-trimmed Alencon lace enhanced the Empire waistline with drop pearls and crystals at center front. Appliques of the lace were repeated on the skirt with deep side folds sweeping into a chapel length train. Her veil of silk illusion fell from a coronet of pearls and she carried a cascade of white roses encircling a white orchid.

Miss Jean Baker attended her sister as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Sandra Abney, Miss Jackie Carr and Miss Wanda Phillips, Monroe, niece of the groom. They wore full length gowns of pale pink silk fashioned on Empire lines with floating back panels of cerise silk. Their headdresses were self fabric bows with short veils of cerise illusion and each carried a large glamellia of pale pink with long stem, wrapped in green satin.

Dr. Donald C. Phillips served his brother as best man and groomsmen were Claude Bergeron, Morris Massey, Baton Rouge and Bill Baker. Ushers included L. V. McGinty, Don McGinty, Mayo Canulette Jr. and Richard Cusimano. Frankie Cusimano acted as ring bearer.

Mrs. Baker chose for her daughter's wedding a dress of blue crepe with lace bodice and matching accessories. The groom's mother was wearing a dress of pink Italian silk with lace panels and pink accessories. Both wore white orchid corsages.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church parlor which was decorated with baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemums. The bride's table, covered with a Maderia cloth was centered with the tiered wedding cake flanked by silver candelabra holding tall white tapers. Punch and sandwiches were served from a separate table.

For a wedding trip along the Florida coast the bride was wearing a suit of pink silk with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage. They will be at home this fall in Baton Rouge. Mrs. Phillips received her B.S. degree from Louisiana State University where she was a member of Kappa Delta social sorority, Alpha Lambda Delta, Phi Mu Epsilon, Delta and an ROTC sponsor. Mr. Phillips also received the B. S. degree from LSU, where he will receive his masters degree in business administration in January.

Your Problems

Not Available Sign Raises Male's Value

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I went with Dean for three years. We were in college and stone broke. No mention was made of marriage which suited me fine because I was dating others and Dean was never a guy who pushed for heavy romance. He was the tried and true type that I kept on the back burner in case of emergency.

I'm 23 now and still playing the field. Last night I heard that Dean and a mousy little blonde have announced their engagement. This news knocked me out. I realize I care for Dean more than I thought. I'm sure if he knew he stood a chance with me he'd break off with the Mouse.

Would I be making a fool of myself if I let him know that I want him for my own? — TORCHING

Dear Torching: It's funny how some fellows never look good until they get engaged — to someone else. There's something about a "Not Available" sign that makes the property seem twice as valuable.

Use that torch to light the way to another romance and forget about Dean.

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please tell me, why, when a couple gets married, the bride takes her husband's name? After the wedding the groom's family may just as well disappear from the face of the earth because they are never heard from again. Why doesn't the groom take the bride's name and be done with it?

Sunday suppers are always with the wife's family. When the grandchildren have birthdays, it is always the wife's mother who is right in the front with her cake, her gift, her party favors and her camera.

This is not a letter from a bitter mother, although I admit it has happened to me three times. I am speaking for at least a dozen friends who are also mothers of sons.—PUZZLED, HURT AND DISGUSTED

Dear P. H. and D.: What you say is true enough, although each of us knows exceptions.

Perhaps the newly - married couple lean toward the wife's family because the wife makes the social plans and she is closer to her mother than to her mother-in-law.

If anyone knows a better answer please send it on. I'd like to hear it.

Dear Ann Landers: Can anything be done about a husband who refuses to keep his part of a bargain? After ten years of marriage we found ourselves up to our ears in debt. I agreed to go back to work if my husband would help me out around the house.

I really loved being home and considered it a sacrifice to go back to an office job, especially since it meant enlisting my mother's help with our three children.

Now my husband parks himself in the big chair the minute he comes home from work. He refuses to budge. His Lordship won't even take out the garbage. I'm knocking myself out from dawn till dusk, while he relaxes.

Yesterday I learned he bought himself $140 worth of fishing equipment because we are in better financial shape than we've been in for a long time. I am burning. What do you suggest?—SPARKY

Dear Sparky: Tell His Lordship to get off his throne and give Her Ladyship a hand or she will quit her job. If he doesn't straighten out and fly right, make good your threat.

Awkward and self-conscious? Unsure of yourself? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of Monroe Morning World, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

COOLING

NEW YORK (UPI) — For a really special hot-weather treat for the youngsters, keep a batch of cranberry pips in the freezer. They couldn't be tasier to make. Just fill an ice tray with cranberry juice cocktail, freeze until slushy, add sticks, and return to the freezer until hard. Cut into squares and serve.

Gernreich Gives Lesson In Op Art Fall Prints

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

Optical art, called op art, for no good reason, has been an idea quickly picked up by the fashion world. All those swirls, dots and receding stripes — after all, what are they but themes for new - looking prints, and haven knows, we're always starved for new prints!

Some op artists got quite upset when they found their patterns on fabrics, to the amusement of the fashion people. But the artists' feelings were based on something the fashion people didn't understand, that op art wasn't just a series of fancy patterns. It was a liberation of the eye, a way of seeing movement on a static canvas, of seeing new proportions by having several foci in a single work of art, not just one.

These meanings of op art have been fully grasped by Rudi Gernreich, the California daredevil. In his fall knitwear and couture clothes he uses op patterns to proportion the figure. It's a head-to-toe covering, including stockings that continue costume checks or stripes, or sometimes oppose them.

As is always true with Gernreich clothes, one is so busy trying to take in what seems an almost bizarre newness that an observer can fail to realize how easy on the figure the clothes are. Things are shifty or in full smock style, in A-line or tent silhouettes. There are always sleeves and coats that cover up, dirndl skirts and, this time, three-tiered skirts. A girl can get attention in Rudi's clothes without having a perfect figure!

Despite all the "topless" publicity he's had, Rudi actually has always been very strong for covered up clothes. He also has always liked reversible coats, which everyone else is now doing. As for camel, one of the big fall colors, it has been his personal property for ages. Some of his shapes look rather Arabic this time, but crispened with lots of welt seaming. The head is muffled, too, sometimes by a hood which is all - in - one with the coat, at others by a small separate hat whose attched scarf circles the neck. This look is also not new with him, and is being seen around everywhere else for fall.

If Gernreich has been so far ahead in many ways, the chances are good that his understanding of what op art can really mean to fashion will turn out to be equally inspirational. It will take the others only two or three years to catch up with him.

Coming back to the current mode, new designer August de Lorenzo proved today that he can make as elegant variations as anybody else on the general themes. His coat costumes were slim, often bowed at the neck, like one in camel wool with a camel satin shirtdress beneath for that casual cocktail look.

He likes the long-torso jackets in colors like hot pink over a black dress or gray and citron double-faced wool over a gray shift dress. These are all dressy costumes, of course. For evening he accepts the favorite seamed princess look, with chunky jeweled necklines and sleeve edgings.

George Stavropoulos has the advantage of his Greek background when he designs evening gowns, and he knows how to make the most of it. His dresses are always identifiable by his use of Greek columnar themes, done in easy cuts that make any woman taller and slimmer.

One of his themes this fall is the Caryatid, a column with a fluted hemline and a draped capelet sleeve in one of the top. In mimosa silk it's one of the loveliest dresses in any of the collections. For George, however, it's a minor accomplishment in a collection whose classical beauty doesn't preclude drama. His chiffons, for example, with their pure, unadorned line and their graceful cover-ups that can be draped in various ways, are triumphs.

Although he is known for his individualistic evening gowns, Stavropoulos opens with a number of lovely day costumes. His suit jackets are softly shaped with sashes, gracefully long, in softly colored tweeds of tobacco, white, orange and brown. He uses side closings and a new kind of cape, which is drawn in at the bottom to make a cocoon shape. This is a theme which is used throughout the collection, and it is really new. Dresses are always graceful, in such melting fabrics as a pink, gray, yellow and white souffle wool, with bias swing or gathers to make skirts fuller.

His evening silhouette is generally slim, but easy. He seems the only man in town who can make a theater suit without using white brocade. His are in wallpaper stripes of pale gray, beige and white, or in lace. He can make long chiffon look new without getting fussy about it, as in a long shapely dress in layers of various shades of blue. He likes a toga coat over long gowns, and his way with shaping by folds rather than seams must be seen to be appreciated.

Italy, Spain Prefer Elegant Fashion Look

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

There is a difference between teen-age and youthful elegant fashion, and both Italian and Spanish designers prefer the latter school. Couturiers in both countries are showing soft silhouettes for fall, with a wide hemline swing that made knee-high skirt lengths look acceptable.

In Spain Elio Berhanyer, one of the younger designers, made a bow to the geometric look in fashion with a military coat, double-breasted and wide-shouldered, the stand-up collar in a square shape called the "blockade." A tall Foreign Legion-type kepi hat prevented the silhouette from looking too squat for the average woman.

Hats have become very important to all the Spanish and Italian couture. Short skirts tend to make many figures look somehow incomplete unless the proportions are corrected by a hat. Fabiani does a high-waisted reefer coat with a swirling width of hem, adds a leopard scarf and high leopard toque for accent and proportion. Baratta likes the wasp-waisted reefer, with a white velours cap shape that sits high and round on the head.

Where the silhouette is slim, as at Lancetti of Rome, the hat is high-crowned and widely brimmed to balance the stalk look. Couturiers in both countries are leaving nothing to the hair dressers, as smart women in these countries prefer simple daytime coiffures and hats that are elegant and protective against southern suns.

Couple Wed In Crossett

Solemnized Saturday, August 28 in the First Methodist Church of Crossett at 3 p.m. was the wedding of Miss Alice Carol White and Dennis M. Carter. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. John Bernard White and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Carter, all of Crossett.

Rev. Clinton M. Atchley of Little Rock, performed the double ring ceremony before a background of white stock, carnations and chrysanthemums on either side of the cross. Jade palms were massed behind the altar rail, garlanded with leatherleaf fern and a pyramid of candelabra at either end of the chancel.

Billy Wade Moffatt and Bobby Hulse of Pine Bluff were candlelighters. Mrs. W. B. Anderson was organist and Miss Sharon Doss, soloist.

The bride's father gave her in marriage. She wore a floor length gown of slipper satin fashioned with fitted bodice and keyhole neckline accented by a medallion of Alencon lace. Long sleeves tapered to lily points over the hands. The modified bell skirt swept to a chapel train from back fullness, defined by a fabric rose at the waist. Her bouffant veil of illusion fell in tiers from a Queen Anne cap of satin roses. She wore a single strand of pearls and carried a cascade bouquet of feathered carnations.

Mrs. James W. Abston of Monticello, cousin of the bride, was matron of honor. Her floor length gown of aqua chiffon was designed with a fitted bodice, long fitted sleeves and back fullness in the skirt. A flat fabric rose held her nose veil and she carried a pale yellow satin rose. Miss Kim Carter, niece of the groom, was flower girl and wore a floor length white frock, sashed in aqua and carried a basket of flower petals.

Ralph Carter attended his brother as best man and ushers were John Campbell and Bobby Hulse of Pine Bluff; Billy Wade Moffatt and Mike Strack of Arkadelphia.

A reception followed in Fellowship hall of the church. Centering the bride's table was a candelabra epergne with lighted tapers, white stock and yellow roses. Miss Carol Johnson poured punch and Miss Glenda Campbell served the wedding cake. Miss Penny Nason was at the bride's book and piano music throughout the reception was provided by Miss Martha Smith.

Following a wedding trip to New Orleans the couple will be at home in Arkadelphia, where both are seniors at Henderson State Teachers College.

Diane Cohen To Be Bride

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cohen, Laredo, Texas, formerly of West Monroe, of the engagement of their daughter, Diane to Joseph Drago III of Port Arthur, Texas.

The wedding will be an event of September 5 in Austin, Texas where both are students at the University of Texas.

Miss Cohen, whose mother is the former Eva Dale Coon of West Monroe, is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Coon, 110 Ozone, West Monroe.

Interior Decorating Questions Answered

By BETTY PEPIS

Q: I am building a new home and would like some help with the colors in the living room. Sofa is gold, two chairs are persimmon. Rug will be gold, wall-to-wall. I plan to have olive green draperies. With all this, what color for the walls?

A: Paint walls and woodwork in a pastel olive green. Select a rich olive green for pillows and some accessories.

Q: Our eight year old daughter's bedroom is small but has three windows. We are painting the furniture white. Walls will be pastel blue and ceiling white. Should woodwork be blue or white? Please help us with suggestions for headboard, bedspread, curtains and rug.

A: Since room is small, paint woodwork, ceiling too (only lighter) in pastel blue, and have blue scatter rugs. A gay, pretty chintz, one in white with blue and yellow in design, would be appropriate for cafe curtains, pleated dust ruffle and even as a panel in back of bed to serve as a type of headboard. It should be width of bed back, with a border of plain blue and lined with heavy muslin. Have top of spread in pale blue and have a few bright yellow accessories.

Q: Will you help me furnish my small living room? Walls are knotty pine. What color for sofa and two chairs, block ceiling, draperies, rug and pillows?

A: Have off-white for block ceiling. A print is generally good in a room with knotty pine walls. Find a small scale one in offwhite ground with bright yellow and green in pattern. Use this for short draperies and also to cover two chairs. Have yellow or green for the sofa. Since room is small, rug might be a soft beige to tone in with walls. Have bright yellow and green for pillows.

Q: I dream of having a feminine bathroom and the one I now have in my new home badly needs to be enhanced and made to look larger. I am stuck with sea green fixtures and tile at lower half of walls is a lighter green, fleckel with white and has a dark green border. Floor is ivory tile marbelized in dark green. I plan to have white taffeta curtains with orchid and green floral print border. The towels will carry out this color scheme. There will be shutters in place of curtains. What color should I paint upper half of the walls and ceiling, green to match tile or off-white? Should shutters be same as walls? What color for rug?

A: Have upper half of walls, ceiling and shutters in a very pale green and rug in a deep green.

MISS BARBARA DONELSON

MISS LAURIE ALICE CAGLE

Couple Sets September 17 Wedding Date

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Barbara Jean Donelson and Robert Lee Bastian is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Donelson of Monroe. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Bastian, Monroe.

The ceremony will be performed Friday, September 17 at 8 p.m. in Jesus the Good Shepherd Catholic Church with the Rev. Edmund Moore officiating.

A reception will be held at Highland Park Country Club following the ceremony. After a wedding trip the couple will be at home in Monroe.

Mid-September Vows Planned By Area Couple

Approaching marriage of Miss Patricia Ann Reynolds and Burton Boyle, son of Mrs. Edward Boyle and the late Mr. Boyle of Winnsboro, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Reynolds of Bossier City.

The wedding will take place September 17 at 4 p.m. in the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Powell, Bossier City with the Rev. John Carlberg of Winnsboro, officiating.

Miss Jeannette Reynolds will attend her sister as maid of honor and John Boyle of Winnsboro will serve his brother as best man.

Miss Reynolds was graduated from Bossier high school, Ayer's School of Business and is a recent graduate of T. E. Schumper's School of Radiologic Technology in Shreveport. She is now on the Schumpert X-Ray staff.

A graduate of Winnsboro high school, Mr. Boyle attended Northeast Louisiana State College in Monroe and is now with the United States Air Force stationed at Barksdale Air Force Base. The couple will be at home in Shreveport.

Boots Continue Popular In Fashion World

For the iconoclasts who thought the boot boom would take a dive by now, this fall is a real startler. Boots have become true classics, with the classic's way of wielding a pervasive influence throughout fashion. Examples: the well-loved boot shoe and the whole wonderful world of high side, high heel and high front.

Because they are among those rare delights that combine great good sense with good fashion, women love them. Men do too, which is rarer. All in all, every indication is that they will enjoy a long and vigorous life.

Tops this season are the boots that barely reach the calf, show the tender curve of leg below the knee. Variations on this basic Courreges idea have to do, mostly, with cuffs that can turn down or up, pinking or perforations around the top, new ways with zippers, amusing laces or multiple buckles. White kid is the great favorite but there are tweeds and smooth and brushed leathers in every color too. They're even done up for kicky little evenings in brocade and lace.

One strikingly evident point: they are almost always found on the very small heels that give the prized little girl look. The tall, spikey heel has all but disappeared from the boot scene, though medium chunky shapes are still around.

When the boot soars to knee level designers love to experiment with kooky ties and off beat toplines. They might lace all the way down the front or, cavalry-wise, just at the ankle. Either way the fit is fabulous.

Boots shine most of all in bad weather, come out in the rain in poplin, canvas, treated tweeds and leathers and exciting new man-mades that have the look and feel of leather.

Laurie Cagle To Be Bride In September

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Cagle, West Monroe, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Laurie Alice, to James Herman Bounds, son of Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Bounds, also of West Monroe. The wedding is planned for September 11 at 7 p.m. in Cheniere Baptist Church with the bridegroom's father officiating.

Chosen as attendants by the bride - elect are Miss Brenda Oglesby, maid of honor; Mrs. Virginia Smith, sister of the bride - to - be, matron of honor and Mrs. Sherri Simon and Miss Martha Rutledge, bridesmaids.

Mr. Bounds has named Randell Gandy to serve as best man and ushers will be his brother, Billy Ray Bounds and Orville Taylor. Chosen as groomsmen are John Smith, Shreveport, Lester Bounds and Mickey Bounds.

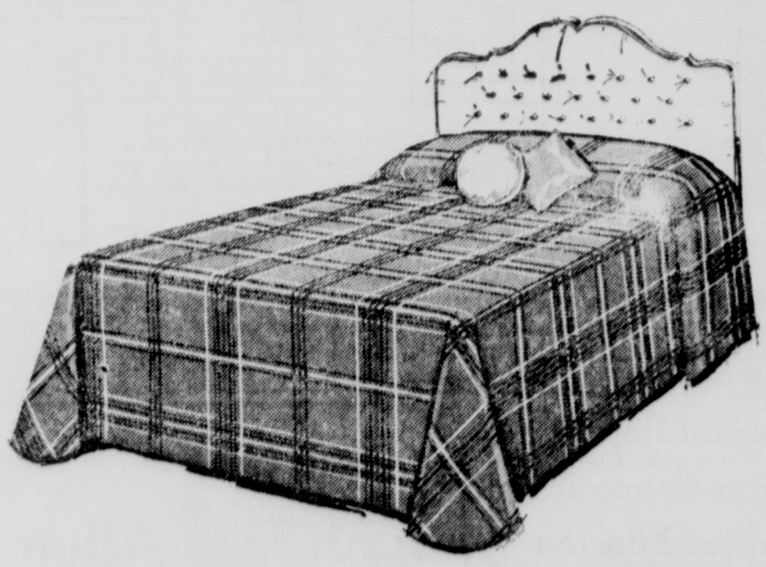

Miss Cagle is a graduate of West Monroe high school. Her fiance was graduated from Pineville high school and is employed in West Monroe where the couple will reside.

Nixon Outlines Views On What Could End War

TAIPEI (UPI)—Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon declared Saturday the United States cannot accept a settlement in Viet Nam which would impose neutrality or a coalition government on the Saigon regime.

He also asserted that Nationalist China has the most formidable air and ground forces in "free Asia" and was preventing the Chinese Communists from direct intervention in the Viet Nam war.

Nixon, now a New York attorney, is on a business trip through Southeast Asia. He flew into Formosa from Tokyo and was expected to remain until Tuesday.

The 1960 Republican presidential candidate will arrive in Saigon Thursday for three days as the guest of U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge. He planned discussions with U.S. and Vietnamese government officials on the war effort in Viet Nam.

Before leaving Tokyo, Nixon declared at a news conference in his hotel suite the United States must avoid any negotiated solution in Viet Nam similar to the 1962 Geneva agreement on Laos.

"We must not make the same mistake in settling Viet Nam as we did in Laos," he declared. "The downward spiral began with the Laotian agreement. Our failure to keep our commitment to a free Laos had a drastic effect on other nations in the area.

"A Laotian - type settlement, imposing on South Viet Nam a coalition government or 'neutralized' status, would be widely construed as a Communist victory and failure of the U.S. to keep its commitments.

THIS IS A VIEW of the 300 block of DeSiard Street looking east toward Five-Points back about the turn of the century. The date is set about 1902. The bricks shown stacked in the left foreground were to be used for bricking DeSiard street. The canvas tents you see directly behind the pile of bricks served as the photo labs for Ed and Joe Crowley who came here as photographers. The Monroe Masonic Temple now stands on this site. On down the street on the right is shown a vacant lot which was later the location of a produce market, long since torn down and replaced by People's Homestead & Savings Assn. at Fourth Street and DeSiard. Joe Crowley took the picture and he later operated a paint store in this block, selling out to Krauss and Cahn Clothing Co. which still occupies the building. The picture is the property of E. W. Crowley. It was his dad who took the picture back before the streets were bricked and before the first trolley lines were laid. If you have a picture of an old Twin Cities scene bring or send it in to us along with all the information you have. We would like to have it for publication.

Garden Center Notes

Use Designs For Contrast

By MRS JOHN TOLAR

"Focus on foliage for arrangements", was the theme of a program presented here by Dr. John Wright of Louisiana Tech last Wednesday. Five designs, all featured in papier mache containers of the same type, showed colorful foliage that is available in the garden today. Blooms are scarce at times in the garden and this type design is good to make.

It is refreshing as well as versatile. There is such beauty in many of our shrubs and foliage plants that it is quite the smart thing to do to make a design for the home from several different types. By combining two or three of these, Dr. Wright showed how well we could execute an outstanding design that would be just as lovely as one with the blooms. The secret lies in combining contrasting or blending textures and colors.

The first design contained clipped castor bean foliage, from small to large, forming a line in the design. For contrast and secondary placement he used a line of begonia, large type with pink blooms as filler. The colors blended beautifully, and the contrast was pleasing in the texture.

The next design contained all of one type foliage, the fire spike, or the "Cardinal's Guard." The brilliant red bloom was on the tips of the stems of this foliage. The foliage of this plant is very rich and glossy. This is a long lasting bloom. The plants start easily from cuttings. In fact, Dr. Wright started his lovely plants from cuttings given to him by Mrs. M. O. Bullock of Downey Lane in Monroe. Mrs. Bullock has given away hundreds of these cuttings which she places in glass jars and roots. The plant is tropical and will not stand the cold of our winters. She always has a glow of color in her flower beds each summer from these lovely plants.

Castor bean foliage formed the primary line, combined with tradescantia for a blend of color, but a contrast of form which added interest to this lovely combination of material. The tradescantia is a soft purple color with trailing lines that is easy to work with. Some types of this plant are grown in the open, others in green houses or in hanging baskets. The indoor species are usually grown for their foliage, but several of the hardy species make attractive border plants with white, rose-purple or blue flowers. All are easily grown from seed, division or cuttings. The "Wandering Jew" (fluminensis) is a variety of this plant. Cuttings from the fleshy stems root easily in water and can then be potted up. The variegated type has yellow and white striped leaves, but this coloration is seen only when the plant grows in full light, the foliage returning to the ordinary green when shaded.

Begonias, massed to form the main line, combined with "copper plant" created a colorful design. This material is easily rooted if left in water. Then plants may be brought into the house for winter. Then plants are all ready for the yard the following summer.

Canna foliage combined with the copper plant also created a colorful and long-lasting design. Dr. Wright used the large leaves of the canna in this design, but, he said he preferred the rolled leaves or new growth of the canna plant. These give a more pleasing line for design. The copper plant will be killed with the first frost, so if you have it in your yard be sure to cut some of the foliage, place it in water or use it in a design so that you can root some to have on hand for next year.

There are some other foliage plants, in fact many others that will make a beautiful design for your home if combined in contrasting forms or colors, or a blend of harmonious colors — try it and see for yourself.

Make Plans For Spring

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Make plans now for your perennials and annuals for next spring blooms. It's time to start them in flats. Some suggestions are early Sweet Pea, Phlox - Drummond, Sweet Alyssum and Cockscomb.

Be sure to check your Azaleas. The common disorder of Azaleas, at this time of the year, is chlorosis. Chlorosis is characterized by a yellowing of leaf areas between the veins while the veins remain dark green. This is caused by a lack of iron. Correct the deficiency by applying aluminum sulfate to the soil at the rate of one fourth pound per yard of soil surface. Broadcast the material - Chelated Iron compound now on the market is also effective. Ferrous Sulfate sprayed on the leaves will give temporary correction of this yellowing.

Council Meeting

This is to remind all Home Demonstration Council members of the important meeting, Sept. 3 at 10 a.m. in the Agriculture Extension Auditorium. Be sure to come and help make plans for our fair and make decisions on other Home Demonstration matters.

Stretch and spandix yarns are being used in an ever increasing variety of fabrics and garments where stretch and elasticity are needed to achieve comfort, fit and support. The washing procedures for stretch fabrics are often governed by other fibers in the garment since stretch and spandex fabrics can be combined with any other fiber. If a garment has seventy five per cent wool and twenty five per cent stretch then the garment must be laundered as a woolen garment.

A few general rules for washing that are suitable for home laundering should help care for stretch garments easily. Follow washing instructions which come with the garment, if available. Always use soft, warm water about 100 degrees. Stretch fabrics may be line dried or dried automatically at a maximum temperature of 160 degrees. If pressing is needed, set the iron at a low or synthetic setting.

Refinishing Furniture

If you, Mrs. Homemaker, have a piece of furniture to refinish and do not know exactly how to go about it, we have a bulletin prepared by Jessie G. Schneider, specialist in house furnishing, that would be most helpful. The home - made remover which we have used here in the parish so many times is included in the bulletin. The home - made remover is made by using one part of baking soda to three parts of household lime. There are ever so many good suggestions for refinishing furniture in this booklet. If you would like a copy, call your Agricultural Extension office or come by and pick one up at 704 Cypress Street, West Monroe.

You, Mrs. Consumer, can expect to see more and more produce pre - packaged foods. Researchers predict fruits, bananas, peaches, pears and citrus fruits, vegetables etc. You may expect pre-packaged lettuce, asparagus, green beans, sweet corn, sweet potatoes and artichokes. Pre - packaged produce is still bothered by some factors such as limited visibility, poor quality, cost of package and size. Some shoppers complain they cannot see what is in the containers and they fear they may be buying produce of inferior quality. Sometimes the cost of the pre packaging is added to the cost of the produce. Shoppers do not like to pay extra for packaging. Size is another gripe. With shoppers, produce often comes in sizes too big or too small for the average shopper.

Congratulations

Congratulations to Mrs. Van Westbrook for winning a blue ribbon for Ouachita Parish in the state dress revue. Also, a great big thanks, too, for taking time from her family to attend Home and Garden Week on the LSU campus. Mrs. Westbrook is a member of the McGuire Home Demonstration Club. She lives in the Sherwood Forest Subdivision in West Monroe.

The 49 home demonstration clubwomen reported a wonderful week of getting up-to-date information for better homemaking.

3 Bedroom Ranch For Big Family

By ANDY LANG

Architect Lester Cohen, in designing the latest House of the Week, has taken into account the need for privacy, for outdoor space within sight and control of the kitchen-dining area, and for a section that can be converted to a different use when the occasion demands.

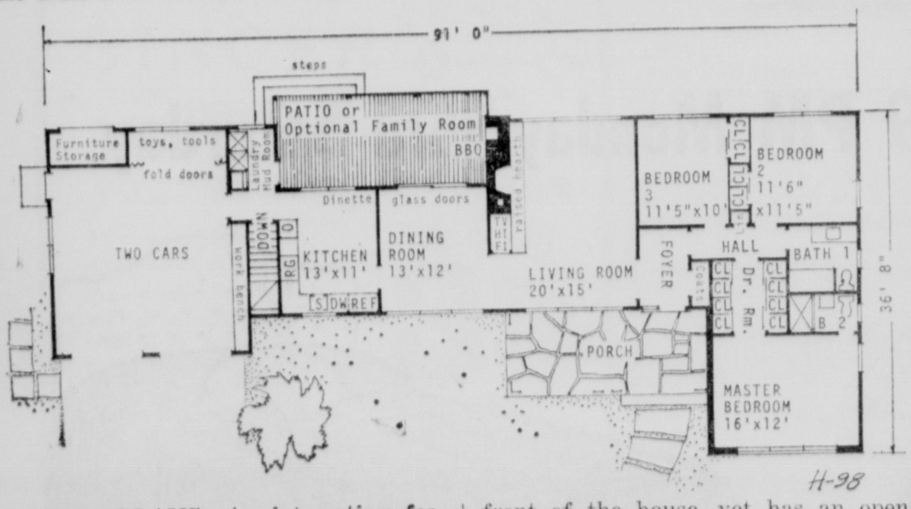

The heart of this three-bedroom, two-bath ranch is a living room extending from the flagstoned porch at the front of the house 20' to the rear, with living room and the laundry-mud room, with only a small bathroom, acting as an additional buffer against noise. The value of well-defined sections cannot be overestimated, as anyone who has two or three children can testify. Later, when, the children have left, the two smaller bedrooms are ideal for overnight guests, yet will need little attention when not in use.

Although the habitable area of Design H-98 is a modest 1512 square feet, there's a first impression of bigness after walking across the front porch into the foyer. This illusion is created by the immediate view across both the living and dining rooms, a feeling enhanced by the front-to-rear expanses in those two rooms as well as the kitchen.

The two-car garage has room at one side for a work bench, and space at the rear for toys and tools behind folding doors. A convenient plus is a storage section which can be reached from the rear without going into the garage.

With a pleasant, smooth exterior, this house is neither old-fashioned nor ultra modern. It has the kind of clean lines that make it suitable for almost any neighborhood.

A full study of this architect - designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c-o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan 98.

Rose Garden Test Is Noted

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

In the American Rose Society's national test garden at Columbus, Ohio, an interesting project is being carried out. The Ohio Department of Agriculture bought a number of roses from various rose outlets in the state to see how true to name these bushes being sold to the public would turn out to be. The results were a little surprising; about a fourth of the roses were incorrectly labeled. One of the greatest problems a nurseryman faces is that of keeping his stock straight and being sure that the public gets what it orders, but this seems a rather high percentage of error. Some of these plants were raised in Ohio, and some were from out-of-state nurseries.

Another project conducted by the combined efforts of several agencies such as the American Rose Foundation, the Columbus Parks Division and the Agriculture Department was to buy bare root roses being sold in June and plant them. Fifty per cent of these bushes were dead in short order because June is too late in Ohio to set out bare root roses.

Sad Thought

It makes a Southerner wandering around a big rose garden this far north feel sad to think that the winter here is so cruel to roses. Down in Dixie, as we said in a column earlier in the summer, our bushes get to be giants in comparison to these bushes only a few feet tall. The absence of more climbers here is owing to the awful fact of winter-killing, too.

Late August is a real testing time for roses. Ninety-five degree heat is apt to put the quietus on many varieties. Nevertheless, some varieties were making a good show in the garden. Oddly enough, most of them were the same varieties which seem to be able to take it and still bloom farther south. Golden Girl makes a handsome tall mass which attracts the eye clean across the garden. It happens to be the most vigorous yellow rose in this test garden.

Of the salmon pinks, Duet seems to be one of the best to hold its color instead of fading out to simply pink. Good News has all the charm of some of the old roses. The twisted petals of the opening flowers give each blossom a definite star effect. Tiffany is a gorgeous pink that I would bet on as a hard one to beat for years to come.

Blossom Time is certainly one of the most eye-catching of pink climbers. It has that combination of cherry and light pink that is the charm of some of the big tender climbers for warmer climates plus that somewhat twisted opening petals we mentioned above. This gives in mature specimens a soft pink effect heightened by the touches of bright cherry-pink of the opening flowers: one of the ideals of rose lovers.

Thant Contacts Hanoi's Leaders Through Algiers

ALGIERS (UPI) — U.N. Secretary General Thant has been in contact several times with North Viet Nam, Viet Cong and Communist Chinese leaders through Algiers, well-informed sources said Saturday.

Algerian Foreign Minister Abdelaziz Bouteflika met Thursday with Communist Chinese Ambassador Tseng Tao, National Liberation Front (NLF) representative Huynh Van Tam and the North Viet Nam ambassador, it was learned. The NLF is the political arm of the Viet Cong.

Thant called in the Algerian ambassador to the United Nations, Taoufik Bouattoura, and was believed to have received a report on Bouteflika's talks.

Soviet Report Says Space Trip Failed Mission

MOSCOW (UPI)—Tass said Saturday the American Gemini 5 "failed to carry out its main experiment."

The Soviet news agency, in a long dispatch on the space flight, reported fully on Gemini 5's accomplishments, including its maneuvers near a simulated satellite.

"This experiment was successful and will be useful in new flights in space and the intended flights to the moon," Tass said.

Charges Of Heresy Point Up Tensions

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

The heresy charges lodged against Episcopal Bishop James A. Pike of San Francisco by 14 Arizona clergymen are a sign of the tensions building up in U. S. churches over attempts to modernize the Christian gospel.

Episcopal church leaders say it is highly improbable that Bishop Pike actually will stand trial on the charges. Canon 56 of the denomination's basic legal code provides a complex, four - stage procedure whereby a bishop may be brought to trial before his peers for "teaching doctrine contrary to that held by this church."

Bishop Pike's critics have yet to clear the first hurdle. To set the heresy machinery in motion, they need the signatures of at least three bishops. So far, they have none.

The Episcopal House of Bishops will hold its regular annual meeting at East Glacier Lake, Mont., Sept. 7-10. Unless the three signatures are obtained by then the complaint against Bishop Pike will be referred to a committee for private burial.

Refrain From Signing

Soundings indicate that some Episcopal bishops who heartily disapprove of Bishop Pike will refrain from signing the charges because they suspect he would like nothing better than to figure in a heresy trial.

Other bishops won't sign the charges because they don't think Bishop Pike is guilty of heresy. They may not agree with all of his theological views, but they sympathize with his basic objective.

That objective, in Bishop Pike' words, is to "restate the unchanging gospel in terms which are relevant to our day and meaningful to the people we would have hear it."

"The most formidable roadblock to understanding and acceptance of Christianity," he said recently, "has been erected by the church itself in its refusal to abandon concepts, words, images and myths developed in past centuries when men were operating under different worldviews and different philosophical structures."

In his latest book, "A Time For Christian Candor" (Harper & Row). Bishop Pike cites the doctrine of the Trinity as something contemporary Christianity very well could get along without.

Miss Nuances

He said the concept of three divine persons — Father, Son, and Holy Spirit united in one "Godhead" — came into Christianity not via the Bible but from the philosophical categories of the fourth and fifth centuries A. D. It baffles and repels modern man, who misses the nuances of the Greek in which the doctrine was formulated and therefore concludes, mistakenly, that Christianity preaches a kind of polytheism.

Bishop Pike contends that nothing essential would be lost and much clarity would be gained if Christians abandoned traditional Trinitarian terminology and simply spoke of God acting as the creator and sustainer of the universe, revealing Himself in the person of Jesus Christ, or dwelling within men as a holy spirit.

His critics also accuse him of heretical views about the virgin birth, the incarnation and the resurrection.

To Bishop Pike, the claim that Jesus was born of a virgin is a myth which has been extremely valuable in conveying the essential truth that God and man were united in his person. He does not think Christians should insist upon its literal historical truth, especially in view of the fact that the earliest Christian writings (the epistles of St. Paul and the gospel of Mark) do not mention it.

As for the doctrine of the incarnation, Bishop Pike affirms with the Nicene Creed that Jesus was at once truly human, having all of the limitations of a mortal man, and at the same time was "very God of very God." Jesus, he says, so emptied Himself of self-centeredness that He became a perfect vehicle for the revelation of God's love.

What offends the bishop's critics is his statement that there is no inherent reason why there could not be another incarnation on another planet or even on this earth, "given the right historical context and given the right man responding aright." Bishop Pike adds his conviction that there has never been anyone like Jesus in human experience, so that the incarnation stands as a unique event —so far.

The bishop speaks of the resurrection as a real, historical event in time and space. But he says that "Christians are free to hold different views as to the precise mode of the resurrection" and that he personally finds most satisfactory St. Paul's description of the risen Christ as having a "physical body."

Bishop Pike's views are similar to those expressed by Anglican Bishop John A. T. Robinson in his book, "Honest To God," which has been stirring controversy in England and America ever since it was published two years ago.

Civil Rights Church Casualty Toll Rises

United Press International

The casualty toll for the churches' involvement in the civil rights struggle now stands at two clergymen and one seminarian killed, and two clergymen seriously wounded.

The first clergyman to give his life in the fight for equal rights was the Rev. Bruce W. Klunder, a Presbyterian pastor of Cleveland, Ohio who was crushed by a bulldozer on April 7, 1964 while taking part in a demonstration against de facto school segregation.

The second victim was the Rev. James J. Reeb, a Unitarian minister from Boston, who died last March 12 from a beating by segregationists in Selma, Ala.

The third to die was Jonathan Daniels, an Episcopal seminarian from Keene, N. H., who was killed by a shotgun blast at Hayneville, Ala., last week.

The latest casualty was the Rev. Donald A. Thompson, pastor of a Unitarian church in Jackson, Miss., critically wounded by a shotgun blast from ambush Sunday night.

The vast library of Jewish wisdom known as the Talmud is being made available in a simple English translation which the ordinary layman can read and understand.

The Talmud is a collection of rabbinical writings, accumulated over many centuries and running to more than 60 volumes. Although primarily a series of commentaries on the first five books of the Bible — known to Jews as the Torah or Law — the Talmud is also rich in philosophy, theology, folklore, history, legend, moral precepts, advice on human relations, genealogy, agricultural hints, observations about botany and zoology, medical lore and anecdotes.

The new translation will provide the lay reader not only with the original Talmudic commentaries in English, but also with background and elaboration.

Even the most optimistic apostles of the ecumenical spirit would not have believed, a few years ago, that they would live to see an Alphonse-and-Gaston exchange of compliments between that unswerving Catholic, Bishop Fulton J. Sheen, and the outspokenly Protestant magazine Christian Century.

Bishop Sheen touched it off by publicly praising Protestants for their generosity in giving to foreign missions. He wished Catholics would spend less on lavish buildings and more on missions.

The Christian Century replied this week that Protestants are quicker to give money to missions than to volunteer for missionary service. It commended Roman Catholics because they are "'still able to arouse that personal dedication to mission" that produces "an unbroken flow of recruits."

Church Of God World Missions Convention Set

ANDERSON, Ind. (Special) — The Church of God holds its sixth World Missions Convention this fall in eight major cities in the United States and Canada on two successive weekends.

Church leaders said locations for Sept. 16 - 18 sessions are Detroit, Mich.; Atlanta, Ga.; Sikeston, Mo.; Pasadena, Tex.

On Sept. 23 - 25 the convention will be held at Pomona, Calif.; Denver, Colo.; Walla Walla, Wash.; and Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.

Convention theme is "God Loves People — Where? How?"

It was pointed out the convention is being held in the eight locations this year in order to be accessible to as many Church of God people as possible with thousands of persons expected to attend.

Sponsors are three national boards of the church, located at general offices here — the Missionary Board, the Board of Church Extension and Home Missions and the Woman's Missionary Society.

Worthwhile Risks Can Bring Gains

By REV. GEORGE W. HARBUCK,
Pastor First Methodist Church, Monroe

"They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters; these see the works of the Lord, and His wonders in the deep." Psalms 107:23-24.

The Psalmist is saying that anything worth winning is worth risking something for. The Jews were not a sea-faring people, and any time they involved themselves in business that required going to the sea, they risked something. The Psalmist tells them that for that risk they see the works of the Lord and the wonders of the deep. The more you risk, the more you can lose; conversely, the more you can gain.

The truth is, all of life is a risk. It was a risk to be born a human being — but aren't you glad to be a member of the human family?

Sometimes, of course, we hate to admit that we're a member of the human race, for there's nothing sorry that man has not done. But by the same token there's no good that he hasn't dared! Man has crossed mountains, seas, and deserts in an effort to aid his fellow beings. He has left his sacred bones on every shore, and his deeds of mercy are legion.

As a human being I am able to stand at the forks of the road and make a choice; a choice between life and death. I am able to know God — to have communion with Him!

Marriage is a risk. With so many of the marriages today ending in divorce, it becomes an even greater risk. But the corresponding gains of marriage are much greater than the risks. There is nothing on this earth more beautiful than the home that God intended.

Bringing children into the world is a risk. Recently, a broken hearted mother said to me — "We don't know what we're bringing them into the world for, do we?" The words are true — "sharper than a serpent's tooth is a thankless child." Conversely, our children can make us swell with pride at their achievements! They can — and more than often do — respond to the love and sacrifice we make for them.

The decision to live a decent life is a risk. So many people are drowning in the sea of mediocrity that the man who decides to be different — to be decent — is often ridiculed. Personal integrity — just downright honesty — is at a premium today.

Yes, all of life is a risk. But if we are willing to risk something of self, we may, as the Psalmist suggests, "see the works of the Lord, and His wonders in the deep."

Robert D. Abrahams wrote this short poem during World War II:

"Tonight Shanghi is burning,
What bomb more surely mortal
Than death inside of you?
For some men die by shrapnel
And some go down in flames,
But most men perish inch by inch
In play at little games."

In today's world, we can ill afford the complacency involved in "perishing inch by inch in play at little games." Rather, let us risk ourselves for better schools, better churches, a better community, and a better home.

Baptist Women Elect President

HODGE (Special) — Mrs. Wayman Smith has been elected president of the Hodge Baptist Women's Missionary Union. She will take office Oct. 1.

Elected vice president was Mrs. Dayton Driskill.

ECUMENICAL PRESIDENT

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — President Johnson is a member of the Christian (Disciples of Christ) Churches, but he has an interdenominational family and interdenominational habits, frequently worshipping in other churches.

On a recent weekend at his Catoctin Mountain retreat, he worshipped for the first time in St. John's Lutheran Church. His wife and daughter Lynda are Episcopalians, and daughter Luci has become Roman Catholic.

Presbyterian Church To Have Guest Speaker

The First Presbyterian Church of Monroe will have as guest speaker at the 11 a.m. worship service today James S. Dollar, layman and elder of the First Presbyterian Church in Natchitoches.

Dollar was born in Alabama, reared in Columbus, Miss., and graduated from Mississippi State University, Starkville, Miss.

He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Monroe from 1954 to 1961, and served as elder and deacon during his residency here.

He is presently serving on the Christian Education Committee of Red River Presbytery, as well as the committee on examinations, and has been active in leadership training schools and workshops.

Dollar is married and the father of five children.

Revival Slated At Pine Grove Baptist Church

A revival begins tonight at Pine Grove Baptist Church at Moore and Winnsboro Road with the church pastor, the Rev. George E. Womack, and assistant pastor, the Rev. J. T. Hinke conducting nightly services.

The revival is scheduled to continue through September 5th with services nightly at 7:30 p.m. No morning services will be held.

The revival will close on Sept. 5th with an "old fashioned dinner spread" at noon, with final services that night.

MY ANSWER

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Many scientists like Einstein and philosophers like Russell have advanced convincing arguments against the existence of God. Should their observations be taken seriously?

O.N.

ANSWER: No. Not any more than you would accept the arguments of a theologian against science.

It is interesting to note that when a man becomes an expert in one field, he is often deluded to believe that that qualifies him to be an expert in every field. Scientists and philosophers in particular are given to this error. Remember, however, that not all scientists are unbelievers — even if the skeptics get most of the publicity. The main thing that an unbeliever's arguments prove is that all men are preoccupied with thoughts of God; even those who have not yet found Him. Titov, the Soviet astronaut, came back from outer space saying, "I did not see God out there." The significant thing was that he, a Communist, was looking for something he professed not to believe in.

God has written eternity in our hearts. Whether we are conventionally religious or not, all of us are consciously or unconsciously looking for God. But if you want to know about God don't go to someone who doubts His existence; go to someone who has devoted their lives to knowing Him. I have never known anyone who came seeking God with an oper heart, an open mind who did not find Him. The Bible says, "If you seek me you will find me."

There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities...

In God is man's great hope.

Anyone desiring to know the location of a church of any denomination in the Twin Cities and the time of its Sunday services may call The Morning World at 323-2070, FA 3-3660, FA 3-0501 and ask for the church service directory. We'll be glad to supply you the information.

Churches' Youth Programs Diversified, Pay Dividends

By DIANE TAYLOR
World Staff Writer

Not only are the programs helping mold boys and girls to become useful citizens, embodying the Christian spirit in their endeavors, but are helping to curb juvenile delinquency and moral deterioration.

Typical of the local churches offering a program to fill the spiritual need of youngsters today is First Christian Church of Monroe, whose pastor, Rev. John O. Stewart, said the church offers a place for recreation, worship and study to its teen groups.

Fellowship Groups

He said the church's Sunday school classes are held prior to the Sunday morning worship services and evening classes are offered for junior high groups and for senior high groups. Through these fellowship groups, the pastor said, the church's young people become involved in Christian recreation, special projects, social events and various other activities.

The church usually has a youth choir, he said, which sings at one of the two Sunday morning worship services during the fall and spring.

"Of course," Rev. Stewart said, "we feel we are not doing enough; What church does? Yet, we are trying to reach this important age group through our youth activities. Even though we might reach the youngsters, there cannot be a guarantee that their morals won't decline. There is a better chance, though, for these young people to build to solid life if there's a strong Christian influence prevalent."

Rev. Warren T. Larroque, principal of St. Frederick High School, the local Catholic high school, said that while there is not a Catholic Youth Organization officially in existence in this area, local parishes do hold youth activities for their members.

Father Larroque said most Catholic young people attend the school activities at St. Frederick, including the Sodality Club there, and formal religion classes are held at the individual churches.

Most of the churches, have scout troops which the youngsters may join, also.

Extensive Program

Even the youngsters and older teens who are "joiners" would have trouble participating actively in each of the numerous program offered at Parkview Baptist Church. Its associate pastor, the Rev. Harold Hughens, who also serves as minister of education, recently came to Parkview from Park City Baptist Church at Dallas, Tex., and brought with him many ideas for the church's extensive youth program.

Aside from the weekly Sunday school and Baptist Training Union classes at Parkview, some of the meetings on the church calendar include meetings of the Sunbeams, girls and boys, ages 4 to 8 years; Girls' Auxiliary, girls, ages 9 to 16; Royal Ambassadors, boys, ages 9 to 16; Young Woman's Auxiliary, ages 17 to 24, or until married; and Young Men's Brotherhood, ages 17 to 24, or until married.

These groups are organizations in depth, said the pastor, Rev. James T. Edwards. Requirements are made for gaining entrance into each of the groups and various stages of study are pursued. "It's wonderful training for the young people," he said. "They have a real opportunity to develop spiritually and socially.

Second highest of the church's youth programs, attendance-wise, is its music area. There is an emotional joy in the fellowship and singing experiences of choir work, the youths have learned. They are given a further chance to develop their characters through this contact with other Christian young people.

Reason For Success

The reason for the huge success of the music program at Parkview, the pastor says, is the emphasis on the jingle, "Mean what you sing!" When the young choir members sing from their hearts, the spiritual meaning of the words in the hymns are driven home. There is a choir organized for every age group of church members, the pastor said.

Rev. Hughens said the church's young people have organized a Youth Council which elects officers and assumes projects and sponsors weekly get - togethers, combining recreation and spiritual thoughts. The group helps to plan and promote an annual trip of the church's teens to Glorietta Baptist Assembly at Glorietta, N. M. Some 20 young people attended the week-long assembly last week along with five adult leaders. The youngsters made the trip via bus and stayed on college campuses overnight while enroute to Glorietta.

The annual trip, said the associate pastor, has a many-fold purpose. Among the most important gains are the spiritual teaching, the Christian fun and fellowship and the fact that the young persons learn to live with one another successfully, thus growing emotionally as well as spiritually and socially.

The course of study during Sunday evening programs at the church are benefiting BTU members, too, for the older group has begun to study other faiths and to acquaint themselves with the beliefs of others. This is an admirable endeavor in that the group members will each grow more broadminded toward non - Baptist beliefs. "Sometimes," the associate pastor remarked," they find that a lot of things they've heard about another faith aren't necessarily true." Prejudices are wiped out and a greater understanding is gained.

Recreation

Recreation programs are developed for the youngsters in the areas of softball and basketball. Many churches around the Twin Cities sponsor teams which compete with each other.

Camping is coming into its own at area churches, too, and a number of churches are beginning to see its benefits in the youth groups.

Rev. Hughens said the young folks at Parkview hold youth retreats twice a year and camp out nights. The teens of the church recently held an overnight retreat at Caney Lake near Minden and had a Bible study session, recreational activities and campfire devotionals. Some 60 young people of the church went along.

A youth-led revival is currently in progress at the church, he said. This three-day event will end tonight.

"And when we get our youth choirs built up, we'll begin a program of choir tours," Rev. Hughens said. He said this program teaches youths dependability and responsibility.

Extensive youth programs also are carried on at the First Baptist Church of West Monroe and St. Paul's Methodist Church, as well as at other churches in the Twin Cities.

Older Youth

Something semi-unique is to be made a part of the young people's program at Parkview in the fall, the associate pastor announced. This will be the Single, Career Young People's Class which will include high school graduates not in college who are working. "This age group in so many churches, "Rev. Hughens said, "is the group with which the church loses all contact. Single persons between the ages of 19 and 25, up to 30 years, are not eligible for the young married adults classes and they are too old for and have nothing in common with those of the high school classes. There is a dire need in a great number of churches to reach this age group."

Beginning in October, Parkview Baptist Church will offer a program designed for this 19 to 25 years and over group. Social meetings and study groups will be a part of the initial program.

Those newest methods of reaching young people at Parkview and other successful attempts in other churches are providing a program for youths which can only be termed advantageous — because such programs are aiding in the spiritual enlightenment and the building of strong moral character of the youth of the Twin Cities.

'SEMITIC' IS SEMANTIC

NEW YORK (AP) — The terms "Semitic" and "Semite" refer to language, not race, Dr. Marvin Pope, Yale University Old Testament scholar, pointed out in a lecture here. He said: "The term 'anti-Semitism' was conceived in ignorance and bigotry and lives on in confusion."

JOINT FRENCH BIBLE

PARIS (AP) — Work on a joint Protestant-Roman Catholic translation of the Bible into French is underway here by the French Bible Societies and the Roman Catholic publishing house "Editions du Cerf." Orthodox theologians also are participating.

STATUE OF QUEEN

PETERBOROUGH, England (AP) — A life-sized statue of Queen Elizabeth II will replace one of the 13th-Century figures on the west front of Peterborough Cathedral. Alan Durst, a London artist, has been given permission to use contemporary figures to replace 10 statues on the front which have crumbled away.

CHURCH TRADE

SOMERSET, Ky. (AP) — Father Thomas E. Buren of St. Mildred's Catholic Church asked the folks in his five county-parish last fall to bring in their trading stamps.

Now Father Buren has a car, at the cost of about 1¼ million stamps, and a few left over toward another car.

NYET TO "NEW THEOLOGY'

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The "new theology" of social involvement has made no inroads in Christianity in Russia, says the Rev. Ivan Motorin of the All - Union Council of Evangelical Christian Baptists of Russia.

"We preach Christ crucified, not a social Christianity," he told a news conference here in connection with the Baptist World Alliance Congress. He and other Russian churchmen said they reject Communism. As he put it: "If a person is a believer, he cannot be a Communist."

WAY-OUT WORSHIP

NEW YORK (AP) — The cool beat of jazz forms the background for the prayers and litanies of Christian worship in a newly released RCA Victor record, "Jazz Suite on the Mass Texts." Says the composer and conductor, Lalo Schifrin: "It makes sense to introduce the vitality of jazz into this form."

PREACHING BY PENNIES

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) — Women of the Assemblies of God gave $47,000 to 1964 missionary projects — in pennies. The "penny collection" was 25 per cent above the previous year's total.

'Hiawatha' Train Runs Into Engine

RED WING, Minn. (AP) — A head-on crash of the Milwaukee Road's Hiawatha passenger train and a switch engine here Saturday hospitalized five persons and 20 more were treated for minor injuries and released. No deaths were reported.

The train, carrying 252 passengers, was eastbound on its way to Chicago. Another passenger train locomotive was brought in and the passengers who were not injured in the crash continued on their way, after a delay of about five hours.

Trains will be rerouted until the tracks at Red Wing are cleared, the Milwaukee Road said.

Man Is Charged With Violations Of Liquor Law

WINNSBORO (Special) — Franklin Parish Sheriff A. J. Stephens said Saturday night that J. W. (Kit) McCain, owner of the Westside Drug Store here has been placed under $4,000 bond on two charges of liquor violations.

The charges were made Saturday morning by the sheriff's department after an investigation by the Louisiana Alcohol Beverage Control Board and the sheriff's department.

McCain is charged with "selling alcoholic beverages in a dry area of an alcoholic content of 6 per cent or greater, without a doctor's prescription, in violation of Franklin Parish Ordinance No. 1989." Bond was set at $3,000 on this charge. He was also charged with "contributing to the delinquency of a juvenile by selling to a minor alcoholic beverages of an alcoholic content of 6 per cent or greater, in violation of the laws of the State of Louisiana." Bond on this charge was $1,000.

YAF Advocates U.S. Blockading North Viet Nam

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Young Americans for Freedom, a conservative youth organization, called Saturday for an air and naval blockade of North Viet Nam.

The organization also denounced U.S. trade with Communist nations and promised to call public attention to moves by American business firms to engage in such trade.

The actions came at the fifth anniversary YAF convention attended by 850 delegates, most of them in their teens and early twenties, from more than 400 chapters throughout the country.

In its resolution on Viet Nam, the convention called not only for a blockade but for sufficient U.S. ground forces to deal with Communist guerrillas, bombing of missile sites near Hanoi, and Haiphong and air action against industrial plants.

The red trade resolution declared against "all trade of a strategic nature" with all Communist countries. Its adoption was followed by an announcement that a committee would be set up to advise the organization on "possible further action" against firms negotiating trade agreements with Communist nations.

Washington In Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were hints Saturday of trouble ahead for President Johnson before Congress brings its busy session to a close.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., a staunch ally in helping get much of Johnson's program through says he will go all out to keep Congress from repealing state bans on the union shop.

And a Senate attempt to put a ceiling on immigration from the Western Hemisphere has clouded and complicated efforts to pass a major reform of U.S. immigration policy.

Although out of town, the President moved in the steel wage negotiation crisis by sending special mediators to Pittsburgh. And his advisers are urging that the industry increase its offer to the union.

GOP To Fight

Union shop: Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, said Republicans will put up "a spirited, sustained fight" to block repeal of the Taft Hartley Act that allows states to prevent union shop agreements.

The Senate Labor Committee is expected to approve the repeal bill Thursday and indications are that opponents will try to talk it to death on the Senate floor.

Dirksen said the Republicans have a flock of amendments they plan to offer to the bill, which is the one measure organized labor wants most from Congress this session.

IMMIGRATION LIMIT

Immigration: Dirksen also played a key role in getting a ceiling of 120,000 a year put on immigration from Canada, Mexico and other Western Hemisphere nations, which now are permitted entry rights without numerical limitation. The State Department has said a ceiling would seriously damage U.S. relations with Latin America.

The amendment, put in by a Senate judiciary subcommittee on a 5-3 vote, was worked out by Dirksen and Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D.N.C., in conference with Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach.

The administration vigorously opposed such a ceiling in the House and succeeded in keeping it our of the reform bill it passed Wednesday. But administration sources say they had to go along with Dirksen and Ervin to get the bill out of the Senate subcommittee. The administration hasn't made it clear yet what course it will take when the bill reaches the floor.

Off To Mediate

Gal 2 Washn Roundup TA54

Steel: Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and undersecretary of commerce Leroy Collins were sent winging off to Pittsburgh to try to bring about a contract agreement before the Tuesday midnight strike deadline.

Johnson's advisers say there can be a steel wage settlement without an increase in the price of steel if the steelworkers will accept a raise at or near the administration's guidelines, which permit a 3.2 per cent wage boost.

The industry has figured its latest offer at 3 per cent, although the union says it would amount to only 2.3 per cent. Johnson's advisers have worked up figures to show that if the offer is raised to 3.2 per cent, the steel companies, now pocketing record profits, still won't have to raise their prices.

Anti-Veto Action

Military bases: Some members of the House Armed Services Committee think an attempt should be made to override Johnson's veto of a military construction bill that would have required Johnson to delay base closings for 120 days so Congress would have a chance to block them with legislation.

One such member, Rep. Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., said the issue is important enough to take the licking that probably would result from an attempt to override. The senior members, however, including chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., are expected to accept a compromise under which the administration would delay closings for 30 days.

Race Car Slams Into Spectators; 4 Persons Dead

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP) — A stock racing car hurtled over a fence into a crowd at the Missouri Fair Saturday, killing four persons and injuring 14 others in view of 10,000 horrified spectators.

About 50 persons had slipped into a restricted area behind the fence at the first turn south of the grandstand and a highway patrol trooper, W. P. Cooper, was walking over to move them back when the car slammed end-over-end into the group.

Cooper said he had warned them by loudspeaker to move a few minutes earlier.

The crowd in the grandstands gasped as the car hit the people. Then there was a deathly silence.

"There was an eerie stillness in the crowd," said Trooper W. D. Ryan of St. Louis, "and even before I could see the bodies on the ground I knew it was bad.

The car was driven by Bill Crane of Liberty, Mo., who was making a time trial prior to the 100-mile feature race. His right front tire blew out going into the turn and the 1964 Dodge flipped over the guard rail and fence.

Then there were screams from relatives of the victims. One woman cried, "They're mine! They're mine!" as she found two crumpled children.

The dead were:

Mrs. Jacqueline Bogard, St. Louis County, Mo.

Glenn S. Taylor, Maysville, Mo.

William E. McCartney, 21, Amity, Mo.

Rickie Brandt, 4, Wichita, Kan.

At least two of the injured were reported in critical condition. Several of the injured were children.

Race officials said it was the worst racing accident in Missouri.

The official said spectators repeatedly had slipped into the restricted zone as soon as the troopers moved them out. From that spot a person can look down the straightaway before the grandstand, but can't see the cars after they enter the turn. The track is banked high for the curve.

French Express Slams Into Rear Of Parked Train

PONT D'HERY, France (UPI) —The Milan - to - Paris sleeper express train smashed into the rear of another crack locomotive in dense fog early Saturday in this tiny station in eastern France.

At least 16 persons were killed, including eight children returning from summer camp in Italy, and 28 injured, some seriously.

The train from Milan was jammed with vacationers returning home from Italy. The other train was the "Lombardy express" from Venice, Milan, Pescara, Lausanne and other cities in Switzerland and Italy.

The accident happened after the Lombardy express made an unscheduled 4:40 a.m. stop at Pont D'Hery when the engineer discovered the brakes of the big electric locomotive were locking.

About 15 minutes later, the Milan - Paris express — comprised of sleeping cars and boxcars for transporting automobiles—rumbled through the fog along the same track. Witnesses said the engineer tried desperately to halt the train and managed to slow it to about 12 miles an hour when it slammed into the parked express.

The last two cars of the Lombardy express were tossed from the track and ground into a mass of twisted debris. The locomotive of the second train also derailed but its two crewmen were thrown clear and not seriously hurt.

All of the victims were in the last car of the parked express.

Workers Strike

BEIRUT, Lebanon AP) — A four-day strike for higher pay by U.N. Relief and Works Agency — UNRWA — employes in Beirut ended Saturday, a spokesman for UNRWA said.

The 450 employes of the regional headquarters walked out Monday, demanding that they benefit from a pay hike decreed by the Lebanese government for all employes in the country.

ADD NO I CAIRO'S NASER

The group—including Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev—left the capital after a 2½-hour morning meeting and luncheon at the Kremlin.

Egyptian sources said that during the morning meeting Nasser presented the U.A.R. point of view on world matters and problems in the Middle East. These sources said there was no discussion. It was the first business session since Nasser arrived Friday for a five-day stay.

DECLARE DIVIDEND

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (Special) — The directors of Associates Investment Company have declared a regular quarterly dividend of 35 cents per share on all shares of $5 par value common stock outstanding.

The dividend will be paid on October 1, 1965, to all shareholders of record September 10, 1965.

Dairy Show Is Scheduled At Ruston

BATON ROUGE (Special) — Two elimination shows, for the purpose of selecting dairy animals to attend the National Junior Dairy Show, have been scheduled for Friday and Saturday, September 10-11, at Ruston and Baton Rouge, according to B. L. Kilpatrick, associate dairy specialist, Louisiana Cooperative Extension Service.

The national event will be held September 27-28 in Memphis, Tenn. Elimination competition for Louisiana junior exhibitors will be held at the Ruston Fairgrounds, beginning at 10 a.m., while the second one will be held the next day at the John M. Parker Agricultural Center on the L.S.U. campus in Baton Rouge.

Breeds to be shown are Holsteins, Guernseys and Jerseys, the dairy specialist said. Approximately 30 to 35 animals will be selected to make the trip to Memphis.

Animals selected will be trucked directly to Memphis on September 24, Kilpatrick said, while the youths will travel by chartered bus, leaving Louisiana on Saturday, September 26, and returning on Wednesday, September 29.

Young Negroes Toss Tomatoes; Natchez Tense

NATCHEZ, Miss. (UPI)—Angry young Negroes hurled rotten tomatoes at cars of passing whites Saturday night in this tense waterfront town where a Negro leader was injured Friday by a bomb planted in his car.

The Negro youths were apparently unmollified by city officials' swift action in forming a biracial committee, long sought by civil rights leaders in this Ku Klux Klan stronghold.

But a priest said that the meeting between Negro leaders and city officials earlier today was "the reason we have peace today."

FBI experts set up floodlights tonight in a warehouse where the mangled car of local NAACP President George Metcalfe was stored, and began going through the wreckage piece by piece. Metcalfe was reported in good condition at a local hospital, suffering a broken arm, broken ankle and multiple cuts from the blast.

It ripped through his car Friday outside the Armstrong Tire and Rubber Co. plant, where he has worked for the past 20 years.

Nearly 700 Negroes gathered Saturday night outside the NAACP headquarters for a mass rally featuring state NAACP chief Charles Evers, whose brother Medgar was slain by a sniper two years ago.

They jeered and laughed when a local Negro leader, the Rev. Shed Balowin, shouted "You young people don't interfere with the cars. You've got honest people on both sides. It's wrong to take it out on everybody."

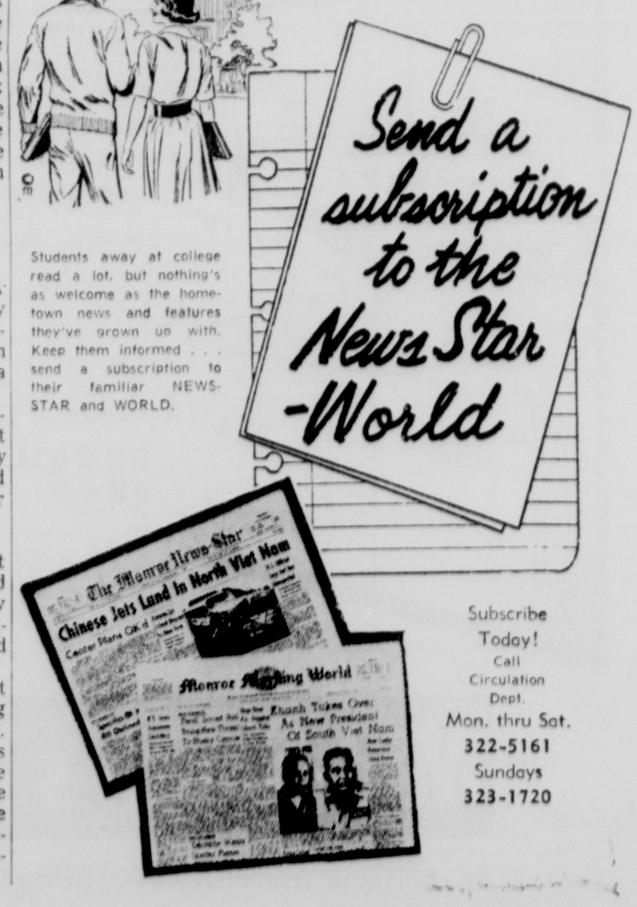

Evers urged them to cease and eventually they did. "We don't intend to start violence," said Evers in a sharp warning to the Klan, "But we're going to react to it.

"I want to say this to the Ku Klux Klan—stay out of Negro neighborhoods at night. We're going to protect ourselves."

New Typhoon Revs Up Winds

HONOLULU (AP) — A typhoon with 100-knot winds near its center has developed in the Pacific 500 miles northeast of Guam and, the Weather Bureau reported, was expected to move in a generally northwest direction.

The Weather Bureau said the typhoon had been named Olive. It was expected to slowly intensify as it moved in the direction of Iwo Jima.

CARD OF THANKS

TO ALL the many friends who expressed sympathy in any way during the recent loss of our beloved husband and father we say "Thank You". Just to mention a few, we especially thank the people at Spears Funeral Home, Farmerville, La. for their kindness, The Cross Roads Baptist Church for so graciously letting us use their church building for the funeral, and all those who visited the funeral home and the funeral, as well as all those who sent flowers and cards. Your expressions of love and sympathy made our loss much easier to bear. It is comforting to know there were so many who took the time to show their concern. Again we sincerely Thank You.

'PLEASE DON'T HURT MY LITTLE GIRL'

DEAR DRIVER:

My daughter, who is eight years old, will start another new year in school. She'll wear a light blue dress with a white collar. She'll have on black shoes with colorful anklets. Her Cocker Spaniel whose name is "Scoot" will sit on the front porch and whine his canine belief in the folly of education, as she waves "goodbye" and starts off to the hall of learning. Last night we talked about school . . . you know, all those tremendous vital, unimportant things, then we talked a little bit, and then she went to bed . . . She's upstairs now . . . sound asleep, with "Princess Elizabeth" (that's her doll) cuddled in her right arm. You guys wouldn't hurt her, would you? You see . . . I'm her daddy. When her doll is broken or her finger cut, or her head gets cut . . . I can fix it . . . but when she starts to school . . . crosses the street, then she's in your hands. She's a sweet little girl and I'm proud of her. She can run like a deer and darts about like a chipmunk. She likes to ride horses and swim and hike with me on Sunday afternoons. But I can't be with her all the time . . . I have to work to pay for her clothes and education. So please help me look out for her . . . please drive carefully, please drive slowly past the schools and intersections . . . and please do remember that children do run from behind parked cars.

PLEASE DON'T HURT MY LITTLE GIRL

SUBJECT: MARRIAGE, DOGPATCH STYLE

Only two types of man have ever been totally free of divorce; the Stone Age Man and the Dogpatch Man.

This may be due to the startling resemblance of the husband and wife relationship of these two great societies.

MY DEAR INPA, YOU ARE A BEAUTIFUL MAN, BUT HOW DO I KNOW YOU ARE REALLY A TRAITOR TO THE SOVIET UNION?

DOROGAYA, YOU HAVE BUT TO TEST ME!

SO I SHALL! IN THE WOMEN'S ROYAL AIR FORCE IN HONG KONG IS A FLYING OFFICER MEW HASTY!

I WISH YOU TO CARRY HER AWAY IN SUCH A MANNER THAT IT WILL APPEAR TO HAVE BEEN AN OFFICIAL SOVIET ACTION!

BUT HER FRIEND, COL. CANYON OF THE U.S. AIR FORCE, WILL KNOW BETTER—AND COME TO FIND HER HERE...

THEN I CAN CONTINUE PAYMENT OF A PRIVATE DEBT I OWE HIM!

BUT, MADAME HOOK—I—HOW AM I TO INVOLVE THE U.S.S.R. IN A--

YOU SAID YOU WERE A TRAITOR TO YOUR COUNTRY! -REPEATEDLY YOU BEG ME TO TEST YOU!

SO GO TO HONG KONG AND COMMIT A CRIME AS IF YOU HAD BEEN ORDERED BY MOSCOW

IF YOU ARE A TRAITOR AND YOU ARE CAUGHT AND REPATRIATED TO RUSSIA, YOU WILL BE SHOT!

IF YOU RETURN TO ME WITHOUT MISS HASTY, I SHALL DROP YOUR BODY ON THE STEPS OF THE SOVIET CONSULATE!

KISS ME BEFORE YOU DEPART!

IT WILL HELP YOU TO REMEMBER THE WAY BACK FROM HONG KONG!

AH-HEM!

MY SUPERIOR, WHAT IF HE DOES NOT APPEAR AGAIN?

HE HAS NOT FULFILLED HIS MISSION—WHICH IS TO CAPTURE MADAME HOOK FOR THE SOVIET UNION! HE WILL RETURN—AND THE RUSSIANS AND AMERICANS WILL BLAME THE RED CHINESE, WHO WILL THINK OF SOMEONE TO ACCUSE!

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

hints from Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:
I have read your column featuring a lady's suggestion concerning using a vacuum cleaner to inflate and deflate a child's swimming pool. May I add my suggestion on how to deflate an air mattress used at a swimming pool, lake or beach?

Disconnect the air plug and submerge the opposite end of the mattress in the water. The water will force all the air up to the plug. Slowly force more of the mattress under the water

Be careful not to get the open plug under water as water may enter the mattress, and this I don't know how to get out!

Now you don't have to roll, push and squeeze the air out only to find when you are finished that the mattress still has air in it.

Michael L. McDonnell

SOUP KITCHEN

DEAR HELOISE:
When I heat canned soup for my kiddies, I add half the amount of water called for and bring it to a boiling point.

Then when I serve the soup, I add the rest of the water—cold—and there is no waiting for the soup to cool. It is just right for the children to enjoy.
Mrs. Peggy Kramer

GROUNDLESS IDEA

DEAR HELOISE:
When the coffee basket in your percolator gets plugged with coffee grounds, just set it over the simmer burner or pilot light on your stove.

When the basket gets hot

Jean Mullins

* * *

It works! But I caution you on one thing—do not let the basket get red hot. Pick up the stem (that's the long narrow gadget on the end) with a hot pad, and tap it easily. Never, never, never let it get too hot. All we want to do is dry it out. And all these 45 years I've tried to pick the grounds out with a toothpick!
Heloise

NEW PIE CRUST

DEAR HELOISE:
Try using oatmeal cookies (they have nuts and raisins in them, I hope) instead of graham crackers for a party pie crust. Bake about 10 minutes at 350 degrees. Great.
Sally Freeman

WASHDAY JUGGLER

DEAR HELOISE:
A plastic gallon bleach jug with a handle can be used as a clothespin holder for the line.

Cut the handle near the bottom with a knife (or scissors) to leave a hook. Then cut out a hole near the top of the jug, making the hole big enough so that the clothespins can be extracted easily.

MADE TO MEASURE

DEAR HELOISE:
If you have a small child sick in bed and do not have a bed tray for him, just take a heavy cardboard box and cut it down to the right height, then cut out a section on both sides so that the box will fit over his legs.

Mother

PRESSING PROBLEM

DEAR HELOISE:
To keep a trouser crease sharp on boys' school clothes, try rubbing a thin piece of soap on the inside of the crease and then repressing it.

Mrs. R. Smith

[illegible]

DEAR HELOISE:
I have solved the problem of always having to search the bottom of my purse for my car and house keys . . .

I sewed a bobby pin, open end up, to the lining of my purse. The key ring slips on and off easily and is always accessible.
H. M. B.

[illegible]

DEAR HELOISE:
When laundering girdles or combination garments, which I hang on the line, I button the garters over the line, eliminating the sharp crease on the edge of the girdle that is caused by using clothespins.
Irene Mayes

NEW SHOES FOR BABY!

DEAR HELOISE:
Here's a wonderful method for cleaning and polishing baby's white shoes:

First, I clean the shoes with a rag and some rubbing alcohol, then polish as usual with white polish. (I have never had this hurt any of my baby's kid shoes).

When the shoes are completely dry, I take transparent boot polish (wax) and apply it to the shoes. When the wax is dry, I buff the shoes to a beautiful shine.

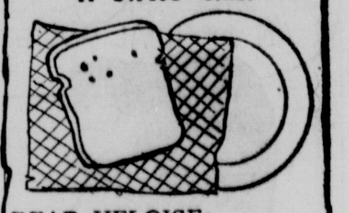

The wax prevents the white shoe polish from rubbing off on mother's dark clothes!

Mother of six months

IN A SAFE PLACE

DEAR HELOISE:
I store medicines in plastic trays in a locked suitcase on a high shelf. The plastic protects the suitcase in case of spills and enables me to remove the things quickly when the suitcase is needed.
Mickey Gill

IT STAYS CRISP

DEAR HELOISE:
If you put a folded paper towel on the toast plate, it will keep the bottom slice of toast from getting soggy from condensation.
Mrs. Lewis Pierson

"WHAT MAN HAVE YOU EVER SEEN WHO WAS CONTENTED WITH ONE CRIME ONLY?" -JUVENAL-

WHY, "BUGSEY" ALWAYS SEEMED LIKE JUST A HARMLESS ODDBALL GOING THROUGH THE SILLY BEATNIK PHASE! BUT AFTER SHOOTING SANDY WITH A POISON DART, AND NOW POOR NELLIE...

JAIL'S THE PLACE FOR HIM! WHY DON'T YOU PRINT A STRONG EDITORIAL ABOUT IT, TOM?

HUH! DON'T EVEN DARE MENTION THE MATTER IN THE PAPER!

RULING NOW SEEMS TO BE, ANY DISCUSSION AND MOST REPORTING IN SUCH CASES VIOLATES A CRIMINAL'S "CONSTITUTIONAL RIGHTS"! HE'D GO FREE!

HE'LL GO FREE ANYWAY, IN THIS TOWN, I SUPPOSE!

WELL, WELL! GLAD TO SEE NELLIE, THE MAMA CAT, IS O.K. ONCE MORE!

YEAH! BUT SHE'S SURE A "NERVOUS NELLIE", AFTER THAT CLOSE CALL SHE HAD!

HEY! WHAT DOES "BUGSEY" THINK OF JAIL LIVIN' SO FAR?

THAT VICIOUS YOUNG MONSTER? I'VE NOT ASKED FOR HIS OPINION, AND I COULDN'T CARE LESS!

HM-M... YOU BEEN WASTIN' A LOT O' YORE VALUABLE TIME TRYIN' T'UNDO THAT CELL DOOR! REAL OLD PROS GIVE UP ON THAT LOCK AFTER YEARS O' EFFORT!

YOU GET AWAY FROM ME OR I'LL SPIT ON YOU!

SHORE! YOU JEST DO THAT, AND TH' NEXT TIME YOU SPIT WILL BE AFTER YOU'VE GROWED A NEW FACE!

ULP!

AN OLD BUM LIKE YOU MAY LIKE JAIL! ME, I'M BLOWIN' THIS TANK, SEE? IF YOU GOT ANY BRAINS YOU'LL BUST OUT, TOO! YOU COULD BE A RICH MAN!

EH? HOW YOU FIGGER THAT, BOY? I ALLUS DID HANKER FER A BUNDLE O' SPENDIN' CASH, BUT...

I KNOW WHERE MY OLD IDIOT GRANDMA'S GOT MORE MONEY HID THAN YOU COULD COUNT IN TWENTY YEARS!

YOU CAN GET TH' KEY TO THIS CAGE AND A COUPLE GUNS; WE'LL SHOW 'EM! JUST LEMME GET ONE SHOT AT THAT FAT COP ON OUR WAY OUT!

Y'KNOW, BOY, Y'GOT A GOOD PLAN THAR! BUT I GOTTA HAVE ME SOME GUARANTEE ON THET THAR CASH!
